Papa May Be Saved

Federal Environment Minister Len Marchand said Wednesday Ottawa is taking a second look at a decision to close down weather station Papa, 320 kilometres off the B.C. coast.

Government spokesmen said earlier the proposed shut down, part of the federal spending cutback, would result in a saving of $4 million.

Marchand, who was in Victoria for a one-day forest conference, said he wants to find out if new technology will provide enough weather information without the two weather ships used at the station.

Marchand also said there is a desperate need for intensive reforestation in Canada.

DOWNTOWN TIME-SAVER

Passenger Ferry Push

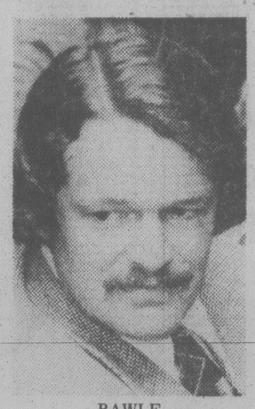

The B.C. Ferry Corp. wants a privately operated, passenger-only ferry service between downtown Vancouver and Victoria and Nanaimo.

Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf, the minister in charge of ferries, said Wednesday such a service would cut the existing ferry travel time.

He said the run to Nanaimo and Swartz Bay would be convenient for both Vancouver Islanders and visitors.

"It would easily lend itself to a reservation system as well," Bawlf added.

The minister said although the B.C. Ferry fleet is heavily subsidized, he's confident a passenger-only service would be profitable enough to attract private enterprise.

BAWLF

The key to the profitability would be the short travel time of a fast harbor-to-harbor ferry.

Bawlf said a passenger ferry could run from downtown Vancouver to downtown Nanaimo in about an hour and a similar run to Swartz Bay would take about an hour and 20 minutes.

To date there have been no formal approaches made to the crown corporation although several B.C. firms have indicated interest in building or operating ferries of this type, Bawlf said.

"From what I can see of the economics, the cost to the user would be far less than the airplane and not too different from the present bus-ferry combination, but with a tremendous saving of time."

Asked if a profitable passenger ferry might necessitate even higher subsidies for the B.C. Ferries fleet, the minister said a private system would complement rather than compete with the existing service.

As it stands now, 93 per cent of visitors to Vancouver Island travel on the B.C. Ferries system.

"Any alternative — any added service — would be of benefit to Vancouver Island," he said.

Bawlf said he cannot say if the government would be prepared to offer incentives for this type of service.

He also said the conventional car-ferry system will have to expand.

Bawlf said during the first 17 years 100 million people were carried across the Strait of Georgia on the ferries.

"But we've reached the point now where last month alone we carried more than a million people and over the next eight years we'll carry another 100 million."

Bawlf's ministry is currently conducting a study outlining alternative methods of expanding the service.

Dollar Jumps Back To 85¢

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian dollar jumped more than a quarter-of-a-cent against its American counterpart in afternoon trading today, on the eve of the release of new foreign trade figures.

At 12:30 p.m. PDT the dollar was changing hands at 85 cents U.S., up 29-100ths of a cent from Wednesday's close of 84.71 cents.

It was the sharpest jump the dollar has posted this month, although it is currently worth nearly 2½ cents less than at the beginning of September.

Earlier today, the beleaguered currency was quoted at 84.55 cents on Toronto's inter-bank wholesale market, the hub of international dollar trading.

Traders said Finance Minister Jean Chretien's statement Wednesday that the government will not seek help from the International Monetary Fund (IMF) to support the dollar is continuing to have a negative effect on the market.

Chlorine Carriers 'Serious' Threat

VANCOUVER (CP) — Railway cars carrying pressurized chlorine liquid from the Hooker Chemicals Ltd. plant in North Vancouver are a serious threat to all British Columbians, a report by an environmental consulting firm says.

The report, by Beak Consultants of Vancouver, says the likelihood exists of a major rail-car accident every 25 years "causing the release of 16 tons of chlorine in a puff followed by a continuous release of 1,000 pounds per minute at some point in B.C."

A 4.5-hectolitre (100-gallon) canister, owned by Hooker, fell from a truck and ruptured on a city street Monday, spewing deadly chlorine gas into a residential-industrial area. At least 78 persons were treated after inhaling the gas and 200 others were evacuated from a 25-block area surrounding the accident.

Two sisters, treated in hospital Monday for exposure to chlorine and released, have been readmitted. Janice Hiley, 12, has suspicious spots on her lung and Cindy Hiley, 15, has toxic pneumonitis, said Teresa Hiley, the girls' mother.

Dr. David Bates, a respiratory specialist at the University of B.C. medical school, said, however, there is little danger of permanent lung damage to those stricken by the fumes.

He said it normally takes three or four days to recover from exposure to chlorine.

Lawyers say it will take thousands of dollars and possibly years of legal argument to untangle the mesh of insurance problems created by the accident.

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. (ICBC) is responsible for damage or injury claims arising from the accident and company spokesmen said Wednesday that ICBC has never before had to deal with such a large-scale accident.

"It's going to be a bloody nightmare, I can assure you," said one ICBC em-

FACULTY BUCKS AMERICAN BOSS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Malaspina College faculty association wants the college council to re-open its search for a Canadian president at the Nanaimo institution, faculty association president Ellis Lindsay said today.

Lindsay said earlier in a telephone interview from Nanaimo that American Jack Nutt, president of Highland Community College in Highland, Kansas, will be the new Malaspina president.

Lindsay said a large number of Canadians applied but the selection committee did not consider any of them qualified.

However, Lindsay said the committee should have determined earlier which Canadians would be qualified and then asked those people to apply for the position.

Nutt, 40, said in a telephone interview Wednesday that any nationalism debate that might surround his arrival "wouldn't be an attractive part of the move."

"But, I hope that I'll be accepted as Jack Nutt, educator, and not known as Jack Nutt, that Yankee," he said.

Nutt has 12 years experience as a community college administrator, and has a PhD in education from Washington State University.

He said he hopes that immigration clearance will allow him to assume his post in Janaury in time for the second semester.

South Africa Gets a Hawk

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Pieter Willem Botha, the hawkish minister of defence, became South Africa's eighth prime minister today, promising to maintain law and order but also announcing a quest to improve relations with the country's black majority.

Botha, 62, nicknamed "Pete the Weapon" for his tough military views, emerged the winner to succeed outgoing Prime Minister John Vorster, 63 and ill, after a three-hour caucus of the ruling National Party's 172 deputies and senators.

Botha, no relation to the foreign minister, stepped out on the front steps of the Parliament building to the cheers of more than 1,000 spectators to make his first official speech as prime minister.

"We must set ourselves certain goals," the balding, bespectacled Botha told the crowd and the country, which listened on radio.

"First, the maintenance and development of orderly government.

"Secondly, at all times to uphold honest public administration and effective government.

"Thirdly, to apply a positive policy to improve the relations between the different population communities, taking into account the inalienable right of self determination of all peoples.

"Fourthly, the application of a positive policy to build friendly relations with neighboring states on the basis of non-interference in each other's internal affairs.

"Furthermore, more economic development through dedication in our work and through economic patriotism.

"And in the sixth instance, the determined maintenance of law and order through an effective police force and a well-balanced defence force to guard the integrity of our borders."

Botha, defence minister for 12 years, is a relative moderate on race relations, South Africa's crucial issue, but he is unlikely to modify the National Party' fundamental policy of apartheid, or separate development of the races. That is a policy that rejects giving the country's blacks any political or property rights outside their tribal homelands. There are four million whites in South Africa and 18 million non-whites.

Knesset Ratifies Camp David Pact

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government began preparations today for peace negotiations with Egypt, its largest Arab foe, after the Israeli parliament voted by an overwhelming margin to ratify the Camp David accords and withdraw all Jewish settlers from the Sinai peninsula if Egypt makes peace.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin said negotiations could start as early as next week on the peace treaty, which he and President Anwar Sadat pledged at Camp David to complete within three months.

Egypt's acting foreign minister, Butros Ghali, said in Cairo that Israeli and Egyptian delegations will meet in Ismailia, on the Suez canal. An advance Israeli party was going to Cairo today to re-establish the direct links Egyptian President Anwar Sadat severed in July.

Ghali, speaking with reporters, lauded the Knesset decision as "proof of a positive change in Israeli public opinion because they now realize that occupying other countries' lands cannot bring peace."

He also urged other Arab countries to reconsider their refusal to negotiate with Israel, so that "we can achieve a comprehensive peace in the region."

The 120 members of the Knesset, Israel's one-house parliament, put peace with Egypt in exchange for the Sinai settlements to a vote early today following more than 17 hours of emotional debate. The vote of 84-19 with 17 abstentions showed wide acceptance for the two frameworks for peace drafted at Camp David and the painful settlement resolution demanded as a condition for further negotiations by Sadat.

Winding up the debate, Begin said a peace treaty between Israel and Egypt would be "the great turning point in the history of the Middle East."

"The circle of wars would be closed for five years, perhaps 10 years, perhaps 50," he said. "Syria can't attack us because it knows that would be suicide. Jordan can't attack because the Hashemite king (Hussein) would lose his crown."

TWO-PER-PERSON DOG LIMIT EYED

TORONTO (CP) — A city council committee passed a draft bylaw Wednesday that would limit to two the number of dogs a person may keep in Toronto.

The bylaw will be presented for approval to the last regular city council meeting, Oct. 10, before municipal elections in November.

Under the bylaw, pet owners would be limited to keeping two dogs per person in each household. A family of four, for example, would be allowed to have a maximum of eight dogs.

Dog owners would also have to pay $15 instead of $10 to purchase a dog licence for a second dog.

The committee was told city council might seek provincial legislation enabling it eventually to restrict the total number of dogs per household, instead of just per person.

Carter Poised On Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration readied plans today to take emergency action to end a three-day rail strike as union and industry negotiators met past a midday government deadline without settling their dispute.

Sources close to the talks said Labor Secretary Ray Marshall was making a final attempt to mediate the dispute as aides prepared to announce that the two sides had failed to negotiate an end to the strike.

A labor department spokesman said Marshall was in contact with the White House, where Carter was expected to invoke his emergency powers under the National Railway Labor Act to get the trains moving again.

The president could ask Congress to end the strike through emergency legislation, but congressional sources said legislative leaders were told Carter would not take that route at this time.

B.C. Exports Jump by 17%

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's exports of produced or processed goods totalled $3.5 billion for the first six months of 1978, up 17.7 per cent from the first half of 1977, the Employers' Council of B.C. said Wednesday.

The national average increase is 15 per cent.

Dick Bryan, the council's economic research director, said the decline in value of the Canadian dollar has allowed exports to continue to grow at healthy rates despite a world-wide slowdown.

"Our growth rate for the first half compared with a growth rate of 22.9 per cent for the same period of 1977, and 18.5 per cent in the first six months of 1976," he said.

Lumber sales to the United States in the first half were up 33.4 per cent compared with the first half of 1977, reflecting a stronger United States housing market.

Pulp exports, while unchanged in value, increased 17.2 per cent in volume.

The dollar value of B.C.'s copper exports increased by 2.6 per cent in the first half, while volume increased by 6.1 per cent.

Coal exports increased 12 per cent, both in value and volume.

"We don't expect a strong pick-up in coal demand in the near future," Bryan said.

Uproar over 30% Pay Hikes

DELTA (CP) — A strike-ending settlement at Island Cement Co. that gives 80 workers a wage increase of 30 per cent over two years triggered an anguished reaction Wednesday from the Employers Council of British Columbia.

Council vice-president Jim Clifford said high settlements such as this led the country into three years of anti-inflation controls starting in 1975.

"It scares the hell out of me," he said.

The settlement includes a $1.40 hourly wage increase over two years and a cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) clause providing one cent for each three-tenths rise in the consumer price index starting in August, 1979.

The employees are represented by the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International Union, Local 277.

Clifford said that although most COLAs are restricted in some way, the Inland COLA clause is like those of the early 1970s which contributed to large settlements and the need for wage controls.

Union president Bruno Schachel said part of the reason for the high settlement was because the 55 employees had heavy financial losses when they had to move to the Vancouver area from Bamberton on Vancouver Island, where the company was previously located.

In addition, he said, "we have a cement plant here that produces twice as much as the one it replaced with half the fuel and half the manpower."

Schachel said that because the COLA clause does not come into affect until next August, the company added an extra 45 cents an hour in the first year, bringing the increase to 90 cents effective Nov. 1.

Base rate at Inland will be $8.25 an hour and the rate for tradesmen and control room operators, the classification which includes at least half the employees, will be $10.25.

37% Markup on Gov't Rent

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is paying a private developer 37 per cent more than current market rates for rental of office space for a controversial new building in nearby Hull, Que., a Senate committee report released today shows.

The report says that the economic benefits of the agreement with Campeau Corp. for the Terrasses de la Chaudiere project, as well as with two other developers for "lease-purchase" contracts for buildings in the capital region, are "questionable."

The report by the Senate committee on national finance says it was "not fully satisfied with the explanations which it received regarding these agreements."

"The decision to proceed appears to have been based on other than purely economic considerations."

The opposition has already called for a public inquiry into the Terrasses project, alleging developer Robert Campeau used political connections to get the contract.

Campeau defended the Terrasses project at its official opening this week as "a good deal for the federal government and a good deal for Campeau Corporation."

The four "lease-purchase" projects examined by the committee involved long-term leases, with the government getting the right to eventually purchase the buildings. No tenders were called.

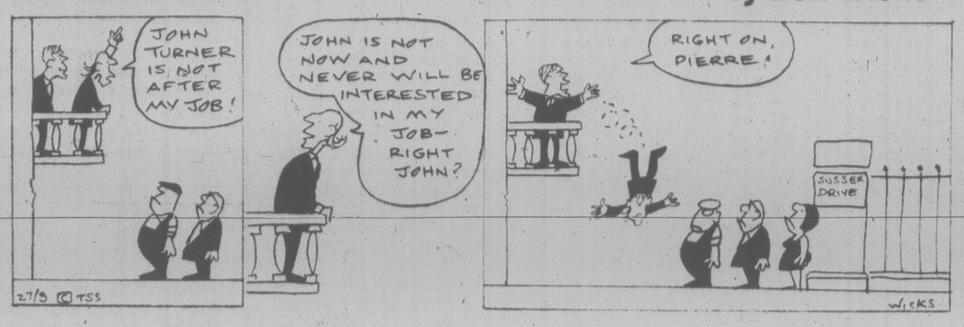

The committee examined the terms of agreements with Campeau for the Terrasses project and with two other private developers — Olympia and York Developments Ltd. and Cadillac Fairview Corp. Ltd. — for three other buildings as part of an investigation of office space programs of the department of public works.

The committee report shows the department agreed to pay Campeau $14.67 a square foot and $13.67 a square foot for two long-term leases on the Terrasses project. These rents are 37 per cent and 27 per cent higher respectively than the estimated market rental rate of $10.70 a square foot for comparable space.

The report shows the department agreed to pay Cadillac Fairview $11.58 a square foot for space in the new Place du Centre project, also in Hull. This is 12 per cent above the $10.35 market rate.

It shows the department has agreed to pay $10.13 a square foot to Olympia and York for space in Esplanade Laurier in downtown Ottawa, about 17 per cent higher than the $8.65 market rate. It is paying the company $11.37 a square foot for space in a new Industry, Trade and Commerce building, also in downtown Ottawa, about 10 per cent above the $10.35 market rate.

Another Look At Tsitika

The provincial government has agreed to take another look at a controversial decision to open to logging 84,839 acres of virgin forest in northern Vancouver Island's Tsitika watershed.

Ray Ostby, chairman of the Tsitika Resource Planning Committee, says concern expressed by wildlife biologists and environmentalists has prompted the committee to try to reach a compromise.

Strike Halts Flights

Times News Services

Most Air France flights have been cancelled for the second consecutive day and all flights by Italy's international and domestic airlines will be suspended Friday because of a strike by cabin crews.

Less than a fifth of Air France's scheduled incoming and outgoing flights were maintained at Orly and Roissy-Charles de Gaulle, the two main Paris airports, sources said today.

Short and middle-haul flights were the most affected. The two-day strike, for higher pay and better working conditions, is due to end tonight but Air France traffic is not expected to return to normal for one or two days, the sources said.

Alitalia, Italy's international carrier, said night flights will begin operating when the strike ends at midnight Friday.

GUILTY 20 YEARS LATER

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Winnipeg woman has been sentenced to life in prison after a jury convicted her of killing her husband nearly 20 years ago.

Katie Harper, 44, was sentenced Wednesday by Mr. Justice A. C. Hamilton in Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench. She will be eligible for parole in 25 years.

During the trial, the eight-man, four-woman jury was told Mrs. Harper's statements to police in 1959 and 1976 were inconsistent. She tried in 1959 to indicate to police the death of her husband, John Bruce Down, resulted from suicide or accidentally from sleepwalking.

In a statement to police early in 1976 she told police she slipped sleeping pills into his coffee June 1, 1959, the night of his death. She said her lover, Sandy Harper, smothered Down and forced her to help him throw Down out of the second-storey window of her residence.

Iroquois Salvage Approved

Under the Heritage Protection Act, a permit must be obtained to excavate historical sites, including recovery of underwater wrecks.

The Iroquois, a passenger and cargo ship that plied between Sidney, Nanaimo and the Gulf Islands, sank about two kilometers northwest of Sidney on April 10, 1911.

Its exact location remained a mystery until the wreck was discovered last November.

A spokesman for Rimpac Diving Club and the Vancouver-based Underwater Archeological Society of B.C., said Tuesday the wreck is in about 100 feet of water amid strong currents.

"The location of the wreck is still a secret because we don't want people going down there and taking things away," he said.

"We want to make sure the artifacts go to a museum."

He said articles recovered from the wreck will be offered to the Sidney Museum and the Maritime Museum in Victoria.

The salvage operations were being funded by a private source, he said.

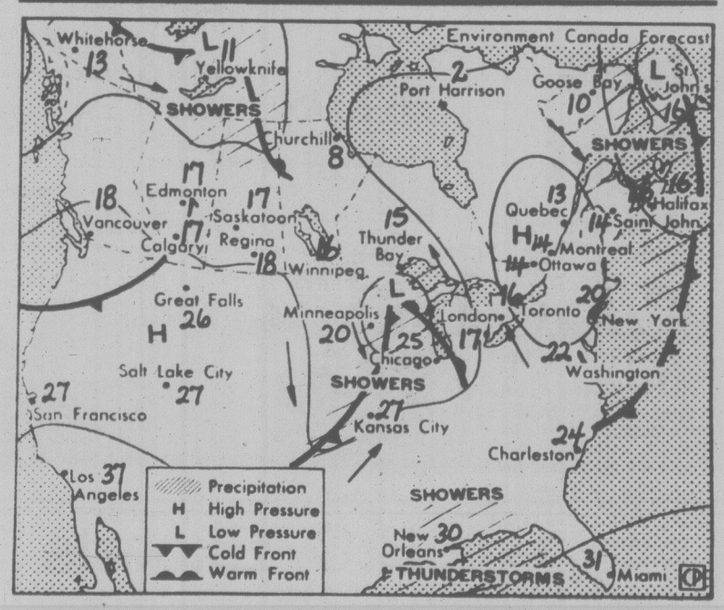

Income Up 7.6%

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor income, including wages, salaries and fringe benefits, during July totalled $10.9 billion, up 7.6 per cent from the same month a year earlier, Statistics Canada said Wednesday.

The 12-month increase in consumer prices in July was 9.8 per cent.

B.C. Distinct: Brief

OTTAWA (CP) — The British Columbia government officially told the federal government Wednesday that a new constitution must recognize the province as a distinct region and not just part of Western Canada.

For too long, B.C. had been unjustly lumped together with the three Prairie provinces and been denied its fair share of decision-making in the national capital, the B.C. government said in a brief to the Senate-Commons committee studying federal constitutional proposals.

Rafe Mair, B.C. consumer and corporate affairs minister and chairman of a provincial cabinet committee on Confederation, presented the brief on behalf of his government.

The most favorable reaction to the brief came from two B.C. MPs, Art Lee (L—Vancouver East) and George Whittaker (PC—Okanagan Boundary).

The brief, the first and probably the only provincial government submission to the committee, emphasized B.C.'s difference from the other four regions it identified — the Atlantic provinces, Quebec, Ontario and the Prairies.

Because of these differences, B.C. should have equal representation in the Senate to the other four regions, Mair said. B.C. now has only six of the 104 Senate seats, although it represents 11 per cent of the national population.

Mair also asked that B.C. be allowed to place more representatives on such national decision-making bodies as the Canadian transport commission, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission.

STRAIGHT FROM the horse's mouth? Not really, even though Marvin, a regular on the race track at Calgary's Stampede Park, appears on the verge of phoning his bookie with a hot tip. In this case, though, it's probably a case of straight in the horse's mouth.

Halt on Uranium

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

A moratorium on uranium mining has been declared by the provincial government until an inquiry can establish regulations and standards governing the highly radioactive material.

Environment Minister Jim Neilsen said no uranium mine will be allowed to be developed until the results of the inquiry have been reviewed by the cabinet and standards are in place.

Neilsen said he will be naming a chairman and other members of the panel as soon as possible.

He said he hopes the report will be in cabinet hands by next June.

He denied any suggestion the environment ministry is bowing to pressure from groups fighting several potential mines in the Okanagan and Kamloops districts.

"Some of those groups are asking for an outright ban," Neilsen said at a press conference Wednesday.

He said, however, the inquiry is simply to establish mining regulations, standards and pollution control objectives for uranium mining in the province.

He conceded the inquiry panel could recommend such stiff regulations it would have the same effect as banning uranium mining.

There are a number of properties in the province being touted as potential uranium producers — two in the Kelowna area, one on Birch Island north of Kamloops and near Genelle in the West Kootenays.

Under the ban, companies will be allowed to continue at the exploration level but no further.

The inquiry is a reasonable step at this time because of the increased activity in uranium mining and because of the emotion surrounding such projects, the minister said.

The need for regulations has been under consideration for some time, he said. There are no uranium mines in B.C. and the existing mining regulations not designed to cover uranium.

Deputy Mines Minister Jim Fyles said the danger in mining uranium comes from the highly radioactive radon gas which is released when the rocks are broken up during mining.

There is also a problem with radioactivity in tailings ponds, which will be a special problem in B.C. with its steep valleys and lack of flat land.

One of the duties of the inquiry will be to set standards appropriate for specific conditions found in B.C., Neilsen said.

The inquiry will be public and submissions will be accepted.

Oil Outlook Brighter In New Energy Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Oil produced in the western provinces should be enough to meet demands as far east as Ontario until after 1995, the National Energy Board said Wednesday.

The federal petroleum regulatory agency also says it would be reasonable to continue current exports of high-quality, light crude oil to the United States at 55,000 barrels a day until 1981 instead of making sharp, gradual cuts.

In a new study handed to government, the board says increased production and a cut in demand combined to brighten the country's energy outlook.

The latest estimate differs sharply from a board report 19 months ago which predicted imported oil would start moving into the Ontario market in the early 1980s. The area west of the Ottawa valley traditionally has been reserved for domestic oil production.

Other forecasts in the latest report include:

—Large-scale expansion of natural gas into eastern markets, already proposed by Ottawa, would worsen the existing surplus capacity in refining. New markets for the displaced oil might be hard to find;

—There is no need to provide new ports to handle oil imports, confirming a cabinet decision made last February on a proposed development for Kitimat;

—Exports of low-quality, so-called heavy oil to the U.S. should continue to be licensed separately from light oil. The calculation would be made after domestic needs are met;

—Shipments of domestic oil into the Montreal market can be maintained at 315,000 barrels a day until 1983, dropping off gradually to about 100,000 barrels a day by 1995;

—Increasing the Montreal shipments above current levels would endanger the economic well-being of the pipeline between Portland, Me., and Montreal now used to deliver imported oil.

The latest report, based on hearings and briefs from the oil industry last spring, was ordered by Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie early this year to aid in setting national policy.

Gillespie handed a copy of the report to Alberta Energy Minister Don Getty as they met in Edmonton Wednesday to open negotiations on oil and gas pricing and expansion of gas markets.

In new estimates of the potential capacity to produce, the board sets the figure at 1.8 million barrels a day for 1979, up 170,000 barrels a day from its previous report.

Production in 1985 is estimated at 1.3 million barrels, up 237,000 barrels, and for 1995 1.4 million barrels, an increase of 360,000 barrels.

The board estimates reserves in the West Pembina area of Alberta, billed by the industry as the most promising discovery in recent years, at 500 million barrels. Reserve estimates provided by the industry ranged up to 1.5 billion barrels.

In discussing security of energy supply, the board said the needs of Ontario and the western provinces could be met with domestic supplies until after 1995.

Recreation Ban Goes To Court

CRANBROOK (CP) — A couple whose home is just 60 metres outside the city limits has filed a writ in B.C. Supreme Court demanding the city drop a ban prohibiting non-residents from using in city-run parks and recreation programs.

Brian and Doreen Adams pay taxes to the city on their property, are on the city voters' list and their daughter Cathy attends school here.

When Cathy was denied permission to take swimming lessons under a city-run parks and recreation program, the family decided to take the city on.

The non-resident ban was initiated after voters in the surrounding rural area soundly defeated a measure June 12 under which they would have paid a percentage of the operating deficit on the city's recreation facilities.

Referendum Charade

Saanich council seems to think it has found its way out of the woods with its idea for a public opinion poll cum referendum-plebiscite on the subject of industrial parks along with the November elections. In fact, its troubles are probably only just beginning.

Anyone who thinks that the results of such a ballot are going to provide council with a clear indication of the direction it should head in this contentious matter is surely naive.

The proposal is that Saanich council will hold a non-binding vote of ratepayers to see if the residents want an industrial park (a) at the Royal Oak site; (b) at the Interurban Road site; or (c) nowhere. The exact wording of the ballot remains to be determined.

In putting forward the referendum idea, Mayor Mel Couvelier said he still believes council was elected to make the tough decisions, "but when we are unable to resolve the matter in a clear-cut way, we have no obligation but to ask the voters at large."

That is, we submit, a somewhat odd view of democracy. If that philosophy had been applied on the federal and provincial scenes in the past few years, we surely would have had referendums (non-binding, of course) on rising ICBC and ferry rates and on the imposition of wage-and-price controls and would be preparing for ones on constitutional reform and the future of the B.C. Railway.

When the resolution of a question is close and difficult in our democracy, the majority wins. It may not be a perfect answer, but it's the best we've got at the moment. And it's certainly better than putting some fuzzy questions to the voters in the hope that they will provide some miraculous answer.

They won't. The chances are excellent that almost everyone in Saanich will say he wants an industrial park — but somewhere else in the municipality than his neighborhood, please. Voters in Gordon Head, where there isn't a square inch of space on which an industrial development could fit, will probably be quite keen on either the Royal Oak or Interurban sites.

Of course they will. They will receive all the benefits — more jobs, a broader tax base — without having to pay a single penalty in terms of noise, pollution, or increased traffic.

Voters in the Royal Oak or Interurban areas, however, will probably want an industrial park only if it goes somewhere else. Some of them may have been put off enough by the whole idea that they'll say they don't want one at all.

So what is council going to do with that? Follow the wishes of the municipality as a whole and override those who would actually be affected by the proposal? Or bend to the wishes of those who would actually have the warehouse across the street and the trucks zipping by their front doors despite the fact that 70 per cent or more of the voters want some industrial development? The arguments will be even more fun if they can argue that the Gordon Head residents are strongly in favor of the idea but the Interurban people are only slightly against it, provided it goes somewhere else.

What council will end up doing is what it would have done anyway — having another long debate next December or January about the future of industrial development in Saanich, each alderman using the referendum figures to support his own views.

And at the end of the debate the majority will win. Which is exactly what would happen if the referendum charade was omitted.

Keeping the Myth Alive

The impression among some sectors of the public that the academic life is a cushy, well-paid profession does not receive the puncturing it should when stories like the recent controversy in the Educational Research Institute of B.C. filter out of the ivory tower.

Some dissident members of ERIBC's board, fed up with the back-scratching and funding of trivial, meaningless projects, publicly condemned the institute's policies last week.

It was learned that a member of ERIBC's committee which advises on the merits of projects lining up for provincial tax dollars herself received more than $15,000 while her husband got another $4,000. Quite rightly, this has been branded a blatant conflict of interest.

More generally, they criticized the institute's policy of underwriting mostly university types instead of school teachers and principals and lay persons, as originally intended.

Now, after the controversy has become a public affair ERIBC directors have been told to shut up. Jaap Tuinman, chairman of the 10-member board representing B.C.'s school boards and universities, told his colleagues to keep quiet about ERIBC disputes and said they should redirect questions to him. Fine, but Tuinman refuses to talk to the press.

Aside from questions of conflict of interest, directors and their spouses receiving grants from an agency they are expected to direct impartially and conscientiously, is this any way for an institute that got $320,000 in public money last year to operate?

BRUCE HUTCHISON

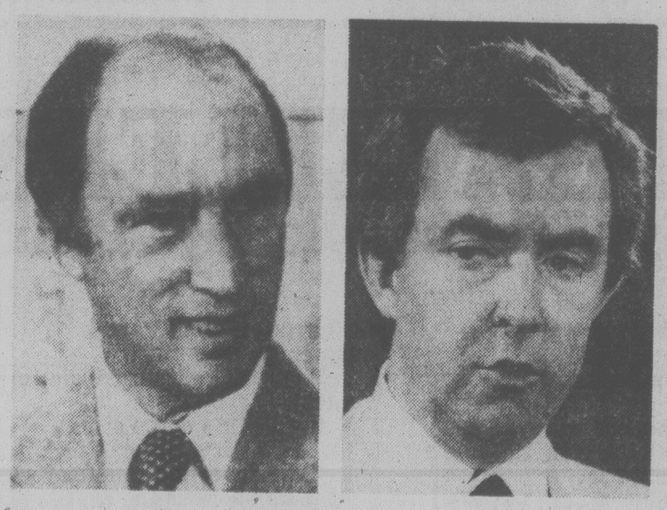

The Politics of the Viscera

As it tries to inflate and deflate, to stimulate and restrain the economy at the same time, the Canadian government is like a man walking a tightrope strung across the Grand Canyon. About half the public, watching him stagger and sway, hopes he will get safely to the far side by next spring. Another group hopes he will fall off and let a better man take his place.

This may be thrilling spectator sport but the cheering, or jeering, crowds seem to forget that their future is also on the tightrope, their money in the acrobat's pocket.

Politics is thus reduced to a contest between Pierre Trudeau and Joe Clark, as if one would save the nation single-handedly and the other would destroy it. Unfortunately the choice before us is not so simple. We must choose not merely between well-known men but between little-understood policies.

What do we really want from the Liberal government or the Conservative opposition? As reflected in a debate of deepening incoherence we want far more than any government and any economic system can possibly deliver.

Pierre Trudeau, Joe Clark: neither man the villain some think.

If It Doesn't Hurt

We want higher money incomes and production costs — but lower prices. We want reduced governmental spending but only if it affects someone else's job, pension and welfare. We want a fairer distribution of wealth so long as we keep our present share, preferably a larger share. We want brave and universal sacrifice if it doesn't hurt.

These demands do not represent a choice or a policy. They resist both and distract our attention from the permanent facts to concentrate it on two personalities of brief passage.

The real business and the real issues in Canada are far bigger than the man temporarily in charge of government or the man eager to replace him — bigger and longer-lasting. For the nation will still be here, with all its problems, its unexcelled resources and opportunities no matter what happens to Trudeau and Clark. In the course of nature they, and all of us, will soon depart. The fairest estate in the world will remain, our troubles forgotten by our children who will have others of their own.

Perhaps one should apologize for mentioning such obvious truths if they were not getting lost in the debate of incoherence. Surely the time has come to stop cheering or jeering and to start thinking, but that has never been a popular sport like tightrope-walking. If patriotism is the last refuge of scoundrels, as Dr. Johnson remarked, political thought is the last extremity in an age of free entertainment, televised tranquilizers and lack of faith in God, government or itself.

In such an age personal hatred thrives because it is easier than impersonal thought, the hardest kind of work. Every prime minister was hated by some Canadians, even Macdonald, the greatest of them, Laurier the most glamorous, King the most unloved and durable.

But the hatred now directed at Trudeau seems to break all records, especially in the western provinces, and much of it has nothing to do with the issues or the necessary decisions. This politics of the viscera instead of the mind is directed, too, at Clark, who incurs not the hatred but the contempt of his enemies, until you might suppose from the Liberal propaganda that he was unfit for the poundkeeper's job in High River, that in Ottawa he would promptly arrange the nation's funeral.

Neither man is as good or bad as he appears in these gaudy caricatures, the artificial image hiding the actual human being. Neither yet knows what must be done about our basic problems, what we would let him do if he had the chance, or how to reach the far side of the canyon. The same is true of statesmen everywhere, few of whom have outlasted Trudeau on the tightrope. Distinguished bones and reputations litter the floor of the canyon.

We ignore that unpleasant spectacle and, unwilling to admit the facts of our collective making, cry out for a leader who will somehow reverse them, a miracle worker, a deus ex machina when there is none in sight, no man we fully trust.

Difficult Profession

His absence is not surprising or accidental because the best type of men and women avoid politics like the plague — a game that rewards the player mainly with abuse, often with poverty and heartbreak or, worse, a senatorship. We disparage the professional politician because he is professional and may even understand the most difficult of professions, though we expect nothing less in the game of hockey where the wages are higher.

The hero theory of politics works fine if we have a hero. Since he appears at very infrequent intervals and then is usually disappointing, or disastrous, we turn to the devil theory, casting Trudeau or Clark in that role, according to individual prejudice and which of the angry pundits we happen to read.

It is thrilling spectator sport all right, it keeps our minds off the disagreeable issues, it provides a sure catharsis for our accumulated grudges and failures but it won't get the acrobat or the nation across the canyon. Hatred always injures the hater more than the hated and organized contempt will finally react against the organizers. We can't afford the old genial game any longer when no one ever wins in the end and we are now playing for keeps.

PQ Not Marxist

At a recent conference of socialists in Australia the point was made that were socialists to tackle every lie and distortion, in the media, about socialism, they would not have time to breathe.

However uphill the battle is, it is necessary to take on the most blatant perversions of the truth, such as Rowland Mans' promoted paranoia that Quebec could become another Cuba. (Quebec: Another Cuba Crisis?; Times, Sept. 21.) Notwithstanding what a close friend of Levesque said, anyone close to the scene knows that this is the wildest fantasy that could only come from the weird channels of a military mind.

But the distortion that most ires socialists is Mans' contention that "dedicated Marxists" can penetrate subversive separatist organizations. Although I know of no Marxists who grant themselves Mans' title, on behalf of Marxists and Karl Marx himself I must protest. How welcome, in these separatist groups, would be people who announce the classic Marxist position? Namely, the problems and interests of the working class cut across all language and cultural differences; they own no country and have no interest in exchanging one exploiter for another.

In fact, in a climate of raving nationalism, socialists are not only not welcome they receive vilification not too different from Mans. This is well evidenced by the stagnation or decline of receptivity to socialist ideas in the present political climate of Quebec and Ireland.

Without proof, to attribute to Marxists that they would lend support to elements that oppose everything Marxists stand for is ludicrous. It is also a grossly unfair defamation of the man Karl Marx himself. Karl Marx was a noted historian, economist and philosopher; one time German editor, English researcher and extremely popular American foreign correspondent. I challenge Rowland Mans to find, anywhere in Marx's voluminous writings, where the man advocated subversion, sabotage and nationalism and general dishonesty. Had Marx been so villainous his works would not be so widely popular in colleges and universities.

This is not to say there have not been advocates of the villainies above. In fact these tactics of subversion and nationalism most mirror the theories of one Nikolai Lenin. And that is what these various subversives and Soviet compadres should be identified as.

It is not possible to preempt all the fallacies of Marx villifiers. The one that identifies Marx with Lenin because Lenin studied some of Marx's works should quickly be dispelled. This is no more valid than calling Lenin's Bolshevism a Christian plot, because Lenin was also studying to be a priest.

It would be doubly fallacious for Mans to claim ignorance in these matters. The journal of the Socialist party of Canada, Socialist Fulcrum, is regularly received by the Kingston Royal Military College library where Mans taught. — Larry Tickner, 589 Nora Place.

Robertson II

It was a beautiful sight; eight large sailing ships under full sail heading for the starting line off Point Grey. The fleet included the Brigantine Lady Frei of San Francisco, run by a lovely lady skipper; Lol Killam's majestic racing machine, Graybeard of Vancouver; the graceful gaff rigged schooner, Adventuress from Seattle, skippered by Captain Curt Maier; the H.M.C.S. Oriole, beautifully handled by Captain Bill Walker, and the old fishing schooner, Robertson II, skippered by yours truly.

The Robertson II was given the highest rating of all non-spinnaker vessels. According to the time correction factor calculated by Colonel Scofield of the Sail Training Association in London, she had to beat Adventuress by six hours to win. It would be difficult for a working fishing vessel to beat a carefully designed yacht, like the Adventuress, but the old lady accepted the challenge with a will and was the first to cross the starting line. After that, lack of wind and tide played havoc.

Because of this, it was hardly a test of Robertson II's sailing capabilities, but I was pleased and I know other experienced seamen were quite impressed. She can sail at least at 10½ knots and has probably gone faster; she can point 55 degrees either side of the apparent winds. There have been some skeptics about her rig, but it has proven to be safe and efficient. With no one sail being greater than 600 square feet, the young trainees can handle the sails themselves. Because of the large number of sails, it is possible to set a number of configurations and easily reduce sail in high winds. The wheel house has made it possible to operate all year round, house the electronics and provide a warm steering platform with good visibility, thus reducing the chance of hitting deadheads. All in all, the ship has shown herself worthy of a noble heritage.

To be part of the bicentennial cost all the private ships participating large sums of money. It cost the Robertson II $23,000 to $25,000 in lost summer program earnings, expenses and refitting and there were no government or private grants.

Robertson II could have been the only Canadian entry in the Victoria-San Francisco race but it would have cost someone $8,000 to $10,000. It is not economically feasible for large ships to participate in four- to five-week events and they will not, even if personally invited. Unfortunately, although the Eagle received considerable incentive, there was nothing for the Class B vessels and very few turned up for the bicentennial. The staunch supporters of Robertson II deserve a lot of credit for their contribution. — Philip G. Ney, M.D., 1958 Fort Street.

Turn off your televisions and tune in to beautiful church bells.

Listen to the Bells

Regarding the complaints about bell-ringing at the cathedral, I have some considerable knowledge and familiarity with this matter.

Bell-ringing is becoming a lost art and the ringers must practise to maintain their proficiency. The type of complaint further emphasizes the way our sick society is undermining the foundations on which our country was built. We must learn to get back to basic living which includes the reconfirmation of the Christian principle laid down by our forefathers.

It's time we shut off the TV, put away much of the junky reading material and listened earnestly to the bells and thought more about the significance of their message. — R. D. Thornburn, 770 Wilson Street.

Give Them Work

It was shortly after 3 p.m. on Sept. 19 that one of our local radio stations told listeners that a recent check on unemployment insurance claims showed that almost $200,000 was given to persons not qualified to receive benefits. From time to time, also, we hear or read of stunning abuses in collection of welfare payments and other social assistance schemes.

Far from begrudging and resenting the help given to people in need, the harassed and honest taxpayer must feel some anger and dismay when confronted with the reality of the cheating which is going on, often discovered after a considerable period of time, and nearly always by chance.

Surely in an age of advanced technology, and precise computers providing almost instant and correct information, some abuses could — and should — be brought under control and almost totally eliminated without the help of an oppressive and expensive bureaucracy.

The persons who received money to which they were not entitled should whenever possible be helped to find some work, any type of work and be asked to repay, gradually, the total amount stolen from the government, plus the interests they would have been required to pay had they borrowed that amount from any financial institution. This procedure, in the last analysis, is far better than imposing a fine which may not be possible to collect, or a prison term which will create more problems than solve any.

This procedure will restore self-respect and a sense of personal responsibility to those who fell victims of the myth of "free money" and "getting something for nothing": a small step towards a better society. — E. J. Lattes, 432-200 Dallas Road.

Can't Get Power

We in northern British Columbia are sick of being exploited!

Northern B.C. supplies most of the province's needs in gas and oil, natural gas and hydro power, yet folks up here can't get power poles for one mile into new houses because B.C. is out of money!

Are you in southern B.C. aware that at least 35 cents of each dollar you pay Hydro for power goes to pay interest on hydro debts, for the dams they have already built? It's no wonder the cost of Hydro went up 25 per cent on last March while our wage increases are restricted to six or seven per cent.

It is time to put a stop to unnecessary flooding of thousands of acres of top quality farm land on the pretence that this province needs more power.

Our province needs its farm land to feed future generations of British Columbians, not more Hydro and more debts. — Peggy Staton, Dawson Creek.

ASEAN: War Gong Rings With Weapons of Comfort

By GAVIN YOUNG
London Observer

SINGAPORE — A servant has wheeled up the prime minister's imposing golf bag. Lee Kuan Yew steps up to it, large, aggressive head, short greying hair and puffy, boxer's eyelids. He is wearing shorts, canary-colored ankle-socks, white tennis shirt. He picks out a long driver with a massive head and begins to swing with considerable force at an invisible ball.

Above the lawns and English-looking trees around his official residence, I can see the concrete tower blocks of the brave new Chicago-by-the-Sea that Lee has made. I have already seen the small forest of red hammer-and-sickle flags on Soviet ships being repaired in Keppel Dock. And a waiter had pointed out two Japanese tourists making love in my hotel swimming pool.

Still, the recent influx of Russians and Japanese is not Lee Kuan Yew's main concern (although he keeps a sharp eye on the Russians). Before his golf practice, over bowls of tea, he said, "Asian Communism has shown itself to be barbaric, bringing — what? Degradation and senseless terror. ASEAN — this is the point — ASEAN must build a more satisfying world before the present generation forgets the Communist horror in Indo-China."

ASEAN. That unimpresive little word — meaning Association of South-East Asian Nations — echoes and re-echoes east of the Indian Ocean like a war-gong. It has indeed, according to some, announced the outbreak of The Third World War in Asia.

Supermarkets Full of Pies

Not a war, please note, waged by the non-Communist countries to oblitereate Communism with bombs, but to kill it with comfort. The ASEAN leaders want to sell their people — 240 million of them — not a single, futile pie in the sky, but supermarkets full of them on solid earth.

Singapore, Malaysia, Philippines, Thailand and Indonesia, armed with 70 to 80 per cent of the world's exports of rubber, tin, copra and timber, have taken up the challenge flung down so confidently by Nikita Khrushchev years ago: "Peaceful co-existence. Let's see whose system works best."

Much of Khrushchev's confidence seemed to have rubbed off on the sinewy, ivory-white figure of Lee Kuan Yew as he whacked that non-existent golf ball. And why not? Lee's Singapore, though many carp, is a multi-racial success story — the highest standard of living in Asia outside Japan.

Lee Kuan Yew, Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines, Hussein Onn of Malaysia, General Kriangsak Chamanan of Thailand, Suharto of Indonesia — what are the ASEAN leaders like? It is a disparate group, racially and historically, but the important factor is that, driven together by the Communist threat, such different men are beginning to co-operate effectively as Communist Asia breaks up in anger.

Marcos has golf in common with Lee, but I couldn't imagine him unashamedly displaying knobbly knees in old shorts. I saw him first addressing his hand-picked National Assembly as, simultaneously, president and prime minister. Stiff-backed in a white barong (the Filipino embroidered shirt), there was no doubt who was boss.

Nor is there any doubt about who is the boss' wife. Marcos' successor will be the beautiful, ebullient Mrs. Imelda Marcos, governor of Manila and ambassador extraordinaire.

Admiring groupies from Marcos' New Society Movement are urging "this modern Cinderella" to accept a deputy prime ministership, praising her "awesome credentials."

Easy-going Manila seems far away from the horrendous events on the Asian mainland. In fact, my own harsh remembrance of those horrors took some time to reassert itself.

What ASEAN is designed to avoid re-impinged unexpectedly at the Hong Kong Press Club. Suddenly on a wall I saw the famous photograph of the terrified scramble of Vietnamese for the door of one of the last American helicopters to leave Vietnam. A big American official is seen repelling a Vietnamese by crunching his fist into his squelching cheek.

After such a reminder of some recent realities of South-East Asia, a feeling of uncertainty about non-Communist Asia is understandable at Bangkok Airport.

Thai Leader Has Toughest Task

The leader of beautiful, proudly Buddhist and monarchist Thailand has the toughest job in ASEAN: 46 out of 73 provinces infected by Communist insurgency; Khmers rocketing and kidnapping Thai villagers and fishermen; thousands of Khmer refugees — 700 new arrivals in the last two months — talking of new purges.

Thailand's moderate prime minister, Kriangsak Chamanan, a 59-year-old soldier-turned-politician, has engineered rapprochement with China and is taking things easy with Soviet-backed Vietnam. His trouble is that the Chinese cannot abandon totally the Thai Communist underground — which might thereupon turn to the Russians. Now there are probably Communist cells among Bangkok's students and factory workers.

"We can contain insurgency," he said, "but only raising standards of living will beat Communism. We must do that in no more than five years."

Tan Sri Ghazali bin Shafie of Malaysia is a golfer, pilot, admirer of modern painting, ex-University of Wales, ex-law student at London's Lincoln's Inn. Casually dressed in trendy sports clothes, he looks like a friendly character from a TV space drama.

Coming new to the job, Ghazali rounded up urban Communist cells. He now has a good working relationship with Lee Kuan Yew's internal security department — not always an automatic liaison. Joint Malaysian and Thai forces are chasing Communist and Muslim separatist rebels on the Thai-Malaysian border.

The first enemy remains Communism although, in a way, it is also ASEAN's best friend. When I expressed doubt about Thailand's future, Kriangsak said, "How can a Communist really sell people here the terror of Phnom Penh?"

No Time To Play Politics

By RONALD KOVENS
Washington Post

LISBON — Antonio Ramalho Eanes, Portugal's soldier-president, likes to go horseback riding in the capital's Monsanto Park on Sundays. But the last thing he wants to be is a man on horseback.

The chaotic course of Portuguese politics, however, has forced him to risk having the politicians accuse him of just such a temptation.

Eanes, in his first interview as president, made clear that he does not believe his small country, beset with major econmic problems, can afford a democracy whose politicians believe in politics as usual.

"There has been so much ideology in this country that people are fed up . . . The people are not seeking political brand names but achievements," he said.

The stern Eanes, 43, was a gym teacher in the army. He grips the wooden arms of his chair in Belem Palace as if he were afraid he might start gesticulating. But unlike his public appearances, he offers a shy, almost relaxed smile occasionally.

Eanes indicated that although he is offering the politicians in parliament a last chance to get together on a government, he is not going to wait very long. "I'm disposed to give them the time they ask for — if the political situation allows it."

In a solemn address to the nation last Friday night following a week of self-imposed silence, Eanes refrained from setting any time limits. But in the interview he said that if they have not shown within a week that they can form a coalition, he will move into the next phase — an attempt to form a government headed by an independent figure with party men under him in the Cabinet.

That approach, Eanes said, would get another week's try. If that failed, he would appoint a Cabinet for the sole purpose of preparing new elections. The present political leadership in parliament, especially the Socialist Party of former premier Mario Soares, can expect to emerge greatly diminished in such a contest.

His approach to politics is novel in a country given to expansiveness, position-taking and overstatement. Eanes said he had refused to see any politicians in the week's interval between the fall of the latest government and the presidential address to the nation because "everybody needed to reflect calmly, to de-dramatize things and to have a little silence for a few days."

The Socialist Party, in its first reaction to the speech, complained about this refusal to talk things over. Most of the other parties, including the Communists, hailed the president's speech.

One of the leaders he is likely to have the most relaxed talk with is Communist Party chief Alvaro Cunhal, although in 1975, Eanes led the military men who headed off a Communist takeover. Since having their union demonstrations forced off the streets by Eanes' soldiers, the Communists have been on their best behavior.

Speaking of the Communists, Eanes was free with his compliments. "Compared to other parties," he said, "the Communist Party does not have the same type of problems that leap to the eyes of the militants and the population. They project an image of capability, of cohesion and of organization that leaves a good impression, even to outside observers . . . The Communist Party doesn't try any more to impose its ideology but rather to offer solutions to problems. To solve those problems it sometimes uses the most competent people even if they don't belong to the party."

In contrast, Eanes' "most tense talk" is likely to be with the Socialist Soares. Although the president insists he could work smoothly with Soares again Eanes showed in his speech that he has not yet forgiven his ex-premier for having "subjected the regime to excessive risks and dangers."

The threat of elections gives the president the upper hand, even though he says he would rather avoid them. The uncharismatic Eanes, who reads his TV addresses with his eyes glued to his text, seems to be at the height of a personal prestige, surpassing the popularity he enjoyed when he was elected president with nearly 62 per cent of the vote in 1976.

Now, Eanes seems to be working out a direct relationship with the electorate that reaches over the heads of the politicians. "Democracy," he said, "shouldn't be a game in Lisbon between the parties and the president, but something involving the whole population. Maybe that is too ambitious an approach. We shall see. It is my historical responsibility," he said, "first to consolidate democracy and second to act so that the constitution works fully to let the Portuguese people see both its defects and its good points. Then the people could say what changes they may possibly desire, including the kind of presidency they want in the future."

Portugal's stern soldier-president, Antonio Ramalho Eanes, does not believe his country can afford to let its politicians play politics. As a result, he is not prepared to wait long for them to form a government.

Holocaust Shown but Ban Urged on Turk Massacre

JERUSALEM — In the same week that it is screening Holocaust, the American TV series about the murder of six million Jews, Israel Television is coming under intense political pressure to ban a documentary on the Turkish massacre of more than a million Armenians in 1915.

Modern Turkey, which in six decades has neither acknowledged the crime nor offered repentance, is one of only two Muslim states which maintain relations with Israel. (The other is Iran.)

The film was made jointly by Israel Television and Kastel, a local production company. It examines the life of the 3,000 Armenians who live in the old city of Jerusalem. Michael Arlen, the American-Armenian author of the best-selling Passage to Ararat, came here to record a commentary for the English version.

The publicity drummed up for Arlen's visit first attracted the attention of the Turkish Consul-General, Yusuf Dicle.

And Ankara mobilized leaders of the 40,000-strong Jewish community in Turkey, who lobbied the Israeli charge d'affaires, Shimon Amir. They warned him that Turkish Jews would be endangered if the film was shown on Israeli television. There could even be a pogrom, they are reported to have said.

The Israeli diplomat sent an urgent message to the Foreign Ministery in Jerusalem. This was followed by equally agitated representations from leaders of the association of Turkish-Jewish immigrants in Israel. According to the film's producer, Micah Shagrir, the Foreign Ministry decided to intervene, even before officails had seen it or read the script. They wanted all references to the Armenian massacre deleted.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said they had not tried to stop the film being shown here. What they did want was to delete an offensive reference to the Turks in general. "We thought it was wise," he said, "to avoid offending the Turkish Government and harming relations."

The chairman of the broadcasting authority, Professor Reuven Yaron, is consulting outside experts before reaching a decision, which he maintained would be taken "in full independence" by his board.

Western Provinces Deny Unity against Pay Hikes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Government spokesmen for four Western provinces Tuesday shrugged off charges they are collaborating on holding wage increases to four per cent for their employees in next year's negotiations.

But they did acknowledge that research personnel from the four provinces are meeting regularly to work out common definitions on job and compensation descriptions so as to help standardized bargaining procedures.

"A co-ordinated effort to hold wages down? You're joking," said Ray Purdie, chairman of Saskatchewan's Public Services Commission.

"You could imagine the different viewpoints we'd get with two Conservative governments (Alberta and Manitoba), one Social Credit (British Columbia) and one New Democratic (Saskatchewan) — it would be pretty difficult to come up with a common-line approach."

Purdie echoed similar sentiments from B.C.'s Mike Davison, chairman of the Government Employee Relations Bureau, the government's new bargaining arm, Alberta provincial treasurer Merv Leitch and Manitboa's deputy Labor Minister Jack King.

They were commenting on suggestions from John Fryer, general secretary of the 43,000-member B.C. Government Employees Union who claimed Tuesday he has documented evidence the four Western provinces are in cahoots on a co-ordinated pay and benefit approach to limit public employee compensation in the coming bargaining year.

Fryer told an audience in nearby Burnaby that the governments have held confidential meetings and that the B.C. government has keeping wage increases with a number of groups down to four per cent.

But Purdie said Fryer was "way off the mark."

SUIT REVERSES MORTGAGE BILL

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court has awarded Giovanni Zen of Vancouver a $33,871 penalty he paid to a mortgage firm to keep his payments in good standing.

The court was told that Zen completed payments after he paid the penalty under a bonus clause in the mortgage, the mortgage was discharged and then he sued for repayment of the penalty on his claim it was recoverable under the interest.

The court was told the mortgage contained a clause which said that in the event of non-payment and default, Zen would be required to pay the firm a bonus of three months interest if he wished to resume payments.

The award was against Millwick Financial Corp. Ltd. and Colonial Properties Ltd.

Justic George Murray said he belived it was the first time the issue had been raised in court as to whether a penalty voluntarily paid is recoverable after the mortgage has been paid off and discharged.

24-Hour TV Starts Monday

VANCOUVER (CP) — Television viewers will be able to watch a local channel around the clock beginning Monday when CKVU becomes the city's first 24-hour TV station.

The station made the decision last month after it started running midnight movies and almost immediately sold out all its advertising spots through to next July.

"We added an even later one, and sold that out too, so we decided to go all night," said Norm Klenman, vice-president in charge of programming.

"Vancouver is the only major centre we could find that didn't have late-night TV, and we realized there must be thousands of late viewers out there," he said.

Klenman said the move had been under consideration since last year.

"The only reason we didn't do this earlier is because we didn't have enough shock titles," he said.

"I believe in violence and murder, said Klenman. "There might even be a little sex in there because we don't edit late at night."

While the station plans to run a variety of late-night thrillers, Klenman said 26 full-length, top-grade, BBC produced TV dramas, as well as some comedy programs and old classics are also scheduled for the late-night fare.

Talks Resume

FERNIE (CP) — Contract talks between the British Columbia School Trustees' Association and striking clerical workers, bus drivers and maintenance personnel are scheduled to resume Friday.

The workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), have been on strike for three months, crippling school operations throughout the East Kootenay region in southeastern British Columbia.

Union representatives said the talks will be held at Radium Hot Springs where the expiration date of the contract will be discussed.

The union is seeking a contract that expires during the school year while the trustees' association wants the expiration date to occur during the summer vacation period.

Union officials have refused to discuss salary until the expiration date issue is settled.

Pro-Abortion Win

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Attempts by anti-abortionists to gain seats on the Lions Gate Hospital Board were turned back Wednesday night as abortion advocates joined with hospital establishment to take the four seats open.

George Carruthers, a defeated candidate, said the defeat of the anti-abortionists means a pro-abortion policy at the hospital would continue.

The North and West Vancouver Hospital Society attempted earlier in the year to head off the issue by proposing in July an amendment to its bylaws, limiting membership to residents of North Vancouver.

Coach Guilty

BURNABY (CP) — A hockey coach pleaded guilty Tuesday to a charge of assaulting a Prince George hockey player at a Prince George hotel after a hockey game last spring.

Peter Shmyr, 36, of the North Shore Hurry Kings of North Vancouver was charged after Prince George Mohawk player Grant Williams was punched at a local hotel cabaret April 7.

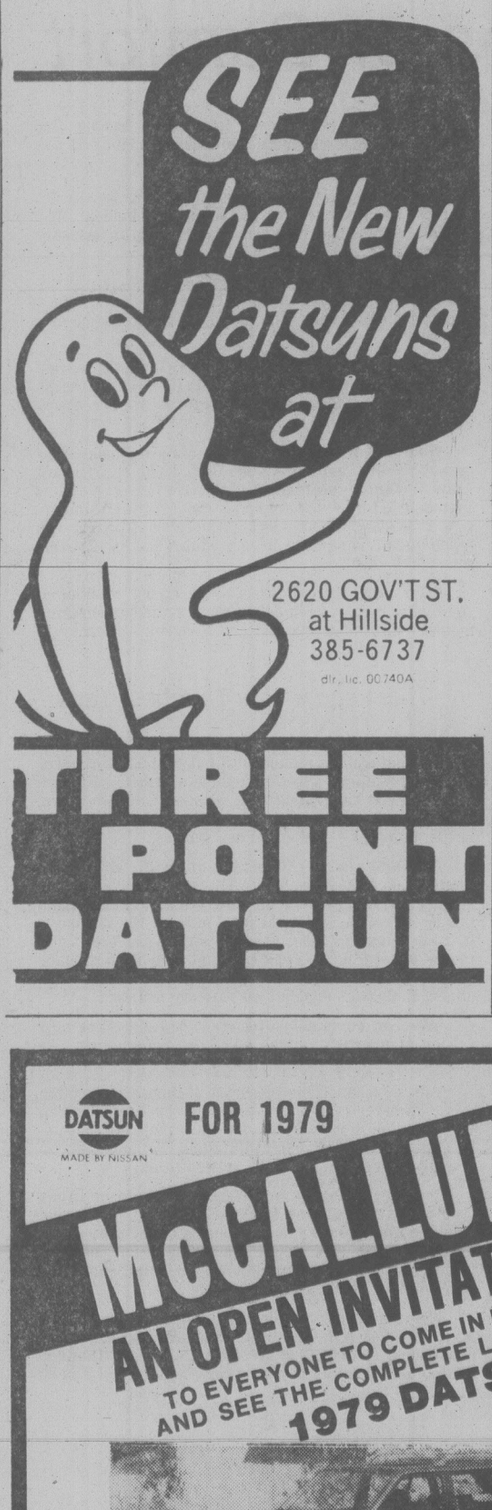

Williams was working at the hotel when the incident occurred. The teams had just played a game in the B.C. intermediate hockey championship, won by Prince George. Shmyr is to be sentenced Oct. 17.

Nine Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nine persons were charged in connection with a suspected cocaine trafficking operation following a four-month investigation, police said.

The Co-ordinated Law Enforcement joint forces operation, including RCMP and city police, seized two ounces of cocaine, one pound of marijuana, $20,000 in United States funds and cocaine cutting equipment.

One of the persons charged was a well-known 26-year-old businessman who was flown to Vancouver Wednesday fom Fort McMurray. His name was not released.

DEER ME, it's disco time and shakin' it up with this swinger is Rick Tucker, a technician with the federal Agricultural Research Station near Kamloops. His partner is one of five tame deer being filmed by the department of agriculture. The movie will be released next spring.

Fairtax: $110M Saving?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Teachers' Federation (BCTF) has come up with a scheme it believes could save B.C. taxpayers $110 million.

The 30,000-member federation has launched a campaign it calls "Proposition Fairtax," and it is using pamphlets, buttons and bumper stickers to publicize its call for more public funding of education and less demand on property owners.

"We're trying to show that there has been a shift to the local property owner as the (principal) source of education revenue," BCTF president Pat Brady said Tuesday.

The campaign literature says the program is a "response to concerns about property taxes and public expenditure on education."

The program "is based on the premise that there should be adequate public support for public education, fair distribution of tax support for education."

The federation is calling for proclamation of the Colleges and Provincial Institutes Act which provides for 100-per-cent government funding of post-secondary education. Community colleges now are financed through local taxation.

BCTF also is calling for increased homeowners grants, a reduction in the minimum school taxes and increased government grants to school boards tied to inflation.

Third-Party Considered In Maritime Fish Talks

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian and U.S. fish and boundary negotiators are giving more consideration to some type of third-party arbitration to settle some issues in the Maritimes boundaries dispute.

Sources close to the talks said Wednesday that while the two sides are pursuing a negotiated settlement, the possibility that arbitration may be necessary to draw some boundary lines is increasing.

The idea of arbitration was discussed Tuesday by special negotiators Marcel Cadieux of Canada and Lloyd Cutler of the U.S. in their first meeting since Canada extended its boundary claim off the East Coast.

Canada served notice two weeks ago that it claims almost half of the fish-rich Georges Bank as its territory. The U.S. has rejected that claim.

If the boundary issues are referred to arbitration, a process that might take four or five years, officials say, the two countries will have to figure out what to do about fishing arrangements in the meantime.

The 1978 interim reciprocal fishing agreement — which had been designed to continue historical fishing patterns while the boundary settlement was worked out — broke down in June amid accusations from each side that the other was not living up to its obligation.

Since then, fishermen have been ordered to stay out of the other country's waters.

During the negotiations, Canada has been concentrating on the need for a long-term solution to the problem rather than a speedy return to reciprocal fishing.

Meanwhile, both sides say they hope to have some recommendations for their governments by the end of the year.

Asst. Deputy Appointed

The regional manager of the Vancouver forest region has been appointed assistant deputy minister responsible for timber and range management, Forests Minister Tom Waterland said Wednesday.

He said the appointment of W.G. Bishop brings to four the number of assistant deputies appointed over the past several months.

Waterland said A.C. MacPherson of Prince Rupert, will replace Bishop.

WANTED!!

I am a 39-year-old female and I NEED A JOB! I am articulate, sensitive and well-informed. I have been self-employed for ten years as a free-lance journalist, writer, editor and publisher. I can produce ideas, concepts and advertising campaigns from original thought to finished product. I am also a British trained nurse with experience in dermatology and geriatrics. I am completely self-educated, having left school at the age of 15 because of financial circumstances. I have spent eleven years in the N.W.T., two miserable years in Ontario and three and a half years on Vancouver Island. During those years I have turned my hand to a variety of jobs and have never been fired.

Politically, I am a Libertarian — believing completely in the Free Enterprise system, which belief, of course, precludes my getting involved with unemployment benefits, welfare or any other gross wasting of the taxpayers money.

This ad represents the last of my dwindling financial resources but it beats pounding on the pavement or wasting my time at Manpower. If you have the need in your organization for someone who will give you an hours work for an hours pay please call me. I am willing to accept low pay in exchange for the opportunity to learn something new — as long as it is honest and challenging!

P.S. I do not drive (poor night vision) and hate bookkeeping (can't count) but apart from that I think I'm pretty competent.

FOR AN INTERVIEW PLEASE CALL

Pension Refund Ignorance Costly to Job-Changers

OTTAWA (CP) — Thousands of employees who change jobs each year may be paying extra income tax and losing valuable retirement savings because they are not taking advantage of a wrinkle in income tax legislation.

The wrinkle allows anyone leaving a job to defer paying taxes on refunded contributions to the company pension plan, severance pay or other separation allowances by putting the lump sum into one or more registered retirement savings plans (RRSPs).

Using this "rollover" provision of the Income Tax Act can enable an employee changing jobs to avoid having a hefty portion lopped off the top before receiving the lump sum from his former employer.

"It means you can avoid getting burned on the income tax," said Tom Delaney, a Barrie, Ont., financial consultant and author of a book on RRSPs.

It also means that all pension savings built up during years with an employer can be retained for when they will likely be needed most-in retirement.

The money is put into one or more RRSPs — available from credit unions, trust and insurance companies and banks — where it can accumulate interest.

There is no tax on this money or on the interest it earns until it is taken out. If it is taken out in retirement, the tax bite is usually lower because income is lower. The RRSPs must be cashed in by age 71 and there are a number of investment packages available designed to pay out annual retirement income.

This is what should be done.

When leaving an employer, ask what amount of money is to be received as pension refunds and severance pay and make sure this is a "before tax" figure.

Shop around for a suitable RRSP, making certain to ask about interest rates and cash-in flexibility.

Get a waiver of withholding tax form from the local taxation office or the company where the RRSP is obtained and present it to the employer. Without this waiver, the employer will automatically withhold a portion of the money in tax.

There is no limit on the amount of money that can be deposited at any one time and no limit on the number of times it can be done, providing the money is received legitimately as severance pay or as a pension refund from a former employer. Refunds from profit-sharing plans are also eligible.

The money can be deposited into the RRSP any time during the taxation year or within 60 days of the end of the taxation year to benefit from the provision.

Enumeration to Depend On Timing of Election

A full-scale enumeration hinges on when an election is called, says B.C.'s chief electoral officer.

Ken Morton said in an interview Wednesday he won't be able to launch a door-to-door enumeration until his office has finished revamping the voters list, taking into account the recent changes in electoral boundaries.

Few of the province's 48 ridings escaped at least some change in the redistribution that added four more ridings while eliminating two others.

The next election will see 57 MLAs elected in 50 ridings, seven of which are are double ridings.

So if an election were to be called for example on Friday for Nov. 6, Morton just won't have time for the full enumeration that he would like.

A new enumeration either can be ordered by the premier or Morton can go ahead with one if he feels it is necessary.

The last enumeration was in 1972.

"There was no way in 1975. The election was called with the minimum 38 days and in the middle of a postal strike. It nearly drove us crazy," Morton said.

"If I have the opportunity, I would like to see the list updated by door-to-door enumeration."

Since 1972 there have been changes in the province's growth pattern — especially in the Lower Mainland — and Morton says it would be wise to undertake a complete update.

He said he could complete a door-to-door enumeration in two weeks.

There are 28 registration offices scattered throughout the province. Applicants can phone, write or drop into one of the centres for a registration application.

When an election is called, the registrar sends a note to every registered voter in the province. Later each voter is sent a where-to-vote card.

After an election, if a person didn't vote, he is sent a notice. If that notice is returned undeliverable, the name is struck off the list.

So the list is constantly being revamped but Morton would still like a full enumeration.

In 1975, booths were set up in shopping malls and stores in an effort to help people get registered in the short time between the election call Nov. 3 and the Dec. 11 voting day.

In that election 1,088,001 of the 1,559,663 registered voters cast ballots for a 69.76 per cent turnout.

Library Strata Title Best: NDP

A New Democratic Party government would favor allowing the Greater Victoria Public Library to buy space through strata title for its new central library, says Victoria MLA Charles Barber.

The buying of space in the government building on Broughton is a condition set by Esquimalt before joining Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay in approving moving the library into the new building.

Esquimalt wants an "unconditional commitment" from the government by Sept. 30 that it will agree to a strata title, to be presented to the four councils for approval by July 31, 1979.

"It's clear that the only deal that makes real economic sense is a strata title deal," says Barber. "That's what I understand the Greater Victoria Library Board and the city are both negotiating for."

Hospital Funding Study

The B.C. Health Association and the health ministry are embarking on a year-long joint study into the funding of the province's hospitals.

The $600 million annually spent on running hospitals is the single largest item in the provincial government's budget but the disbursement of funds is based on a system developed 25 years ago.

"The aim of the project is to assure a funding system that allocates funds equitably for the best possible patient care in this province," health ministry and health association officials said in a joint statement.

The old system has been modified from time to time, but does not adequately reflect the modern hospital system with its emphasis on ambulatory and day-care programs, special care provided by different hospitals and health agencies and technologist innovations, officials said.

Known as the Hospital Funding Project, the study will involve ministerial officials and representatives from BCHA and individual hospitals.

Lions Buy Cliffside

The former Cliffside School for Boys at Shawnigan Lake has been bought for $400,000 by the B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children.

The school closed in June, 1977, due to financial problems.

Ray St. Dennis, associate director of the society, said the buildings and property will become the new Camp Shawnigan for handicapped children, replacing the summer camping facilities for children and adults at the Kiwanis Camp at Lake Cowichan.

"Due to inadequate indoor facilities at the former site, and without definite prospects in the immediate future that these facilities would become available to us, the society set out to look for an alternative site," he said.

The Shawnigan Lake property consists of about 20 acres, five of which are on the lake front and seven with two playing fields on the east side of Shawnigan Lake Road.

There are several buildings, plus a large gymnasium. There is a 200-seat dining room, a kitchen equipped with stainless steel heavy duty equipment, a large dormitory, classrooms, three small cottages and one duplex cottage for caretaker personnel. There are also tennis courts.

St. Dennis said it is proposed to run Camp Shawnigan year-round, operating for three months during the summer for handicapped persons, and also periodically throughout the fall, winter and spring months.

"But in order to offset operating costs during the off-season the society will soon be embarking on a promotion to rent the facility to school boards for outdoor recreational programs, athletic associations, church groups, and social and service clubs for seminars and conferences," he said.

He said during the next few months certain ramping and other modifications will be made to make the buildings accessible to the wheelchair handicapped.

The society, he added, plans to build a heated pool, primarily for therapy of immobile physically handicapped persons, within two years.

Mayor Against CBC Licence

The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. will be opposed by the city of Victoria when its application for licence renewal is heard by the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission next month if Mayor Mike Young has his way.

The mayor has asked city council to file an intervention at an Oct. 24 hearing in Vancouver. The request will be dealt with at the next council meeting.

Young said the CBC should be asked to start program service from Victoria as soon as the new building at Blanshard and Kings is finished.

In a letter to council, Young said the federal government decision is "totally unsatisfactory.

"What it would mean if this was allowed to happen is that the state of television broadcasting in this area would be subject to the whim of the CBC for months and possibly years to come."

Israel Backs Peace Pact

as saying there would be very serious problems if Begin continues to insist that the freeze on Israeli settlement-building on the West Bank of the Jordan River last only three months. U.S. officials say Begin agreed to a freeze of up to five years. Carter spoke Wednesday in a breakfast interview with selected reporters.

—Syrian President Hafez Assad met with Kuwaiti leaders in that oil-rich emirate to explain his rejection of the accords. Syrian sources said Assad and Kuwait's ruler, Emir Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad as-Sabah, agreed the U.S.-inspired accords could not serve as the basis for a comprehensive Mideast peace.

Sharpest opposition in the Knesset came from Begin's Likud bloc, the mainstay of his parliamentary coalition. Eight of the 20 members of Herut, Begin's own faction, voted against the accords or abstained along with the eight-member Laam faction because they believe abandonment of the Sinai settlements will set a precedent for the settlements Israel has established in the West Bank and on the Syrian Golan Heights.

Jewelry Store Robbed Of $1M

BELFAST (AP) — Two men and a woman posing as reporters stole about $1 million in cash and jewelry Wednesday from a new wholesale jewelry firm that has not yet opened for business, police said.

A member of the gang telephoned Mondana's warehouse on Royal Avenue and said they were reporters who wanted to do a story on the new business. They were admitted when they rang the bell at lunchtime, police said.

One of the men carried a handgun. The robbers tied up the owner and manager and took $30,000 in cash and about $1 million worth of watches, rings, bracelets and other valuables, the jeweler's estimates show.

The robbery was discovered when other employees returned from lunch. The firm planned to open later this week. Police said the robbery is one of the biggest jewel thefts ever in Northern Ireland. Another Belfast jeweler was robbed of $120,000 two weeks ago, police said.

CBC Fires Toronto Reporter

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC has fired a Toronto television reporter who filed an intervention in the corporation's licence-renewal application and discussed it on the Global television network, a CBC program director said today.

Ron Devion, program director for CBLT, the CBC televison station in Toronto, said the dismissal of Jock Ferguson followed "an exhaustive disciplinary investigation at all levels of the CBC."

Devion said Ferguson had been suspended with pay after he gave an interview to the Global television network Sept. 11, in which he discussed his intervention and disclosed confidential CBC information about an investigative story.

Ferguson said today he filed the intervention with the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) on Sept. 8 after his superiors ordered him to cease work on an investigative story about corruption in the municipal building department.

Devion said the story still is being researched by the reporter to whom it was assigned the day Ferguson was asked to abandon the story.

Ferguson, a CBC employee for 8½ years, told the Global interviewer that he would continue to work on the story on his own time and said today the letter of dismissal he received Wednesday accused him of using his journalistic talents for personal ends.

Ferguson, who said he will file a grievance through his union, the Canadian Wire Service Guild, said the CBC seems to be saying it owns him completely.

City Teachers Oppose BCTF on Salaries

The Greater Victoria Teachers Association isn't buying a B.C. Teachers Federation recommendation to ask for a 10- to 12-per-cent salary increase.

The GVTA prefers to negotiate salaries directly with the Greater Victoria school board, president Trevor Calkins said today.

He said the membership is confident the board will make a reasonable offer during negotiations next week.

Calkins said the GVTA agreements committee has received assurances from the board the offer will be a fair one.

Neither the GVTA or school board wants to polarize negotiations by taking a stand on salary increases.

The BCTF called for local associations to ask for 10- to 12-per-cent salary increase this year, while the B.C. School Trustees Association is recommending school boards stand firm at a four per eent raise.

Teachers and school boards have until Oct. 15 to reach agreement before conciliators are appointed by the education ministry.

Arbitration is the next step if nothing is worked out by Nov. 15 and is the usual outcome of school board-teacher contract negotiations.

Accident Seen Every 25 Years

ployee. "It could take years to sort out."

Many of the 78 persons treated for inhaling the chlorine gas are expected to file claims.

As well, CKVU-TV, which was forced to shut down its evening operations two hours early due to the accident, said it will be looking for compensation for lost advertising revenue.

The Beak Consultants' report, commissioned by North Vancouver district, said that every week Hooker ships 1,400 tons of liquified chlorine by barge and 1,465 tons by railway tank car. The company usually has 1,000 tons of chlorine in storage tanks and another 1,000 tons in rail cars at its plant.

The report said an accident at the plant, resulting in the release of 100 to 400 tons, can be expected once every eight years, causing a possible 68 deaths in the surrounding area.

"Massive dosages of chlorine gas will result in the destruction of lung tissues followed by death due to suffocation within a few minutes," the report said.

Mayor Jack Volrich has taken action to regulate the movement of dangerous chemicals through Vancouver following Monday's spill.

He said Wednesday that chemical companies now are co-operating with his voluntary scheme to avoid operating trucks on city streets without first checking with fire officials for safe routes and times. A bylaw making the system mandatory is being drawn up.

Meanwhile, an official of the federal transport department said trucking companies face little punitive action in the event of a catastrophe.

"There are no regulations that apply to highway transportation of toxic chemicals anywhere in the country," Duncan Ellison, director of the dangerous goods branch of the department, said.

Capital Region Safety Council manager Ken Wyatt is convinced children need a lot more education before they are sent out into today's "traffic jungle"

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Traffic safety education in Canada generally — and in B.C. particularly — is a tragic flop, says the manager of the Capital Region Safety Council.

Ken Wyatt said in an interview the need for traffic education in the province is urgent.

"B.C. has a tremendous network of roads and terrific traffic problems. Yet we're doing very little in education of people in traffic safety."

Federally, he says politicians wear blinkers when it comes to traffic safety.

"In Canada the federal government doesn't provide safety funds to provinces in contrast to the United States where the federal government takes a big part in traffic safety."

Wyatt says about one of every three people will be involved in an accident yet little is done to educate young people in traffic safety.

"We send children to school for 12 years yet we don't provide education so they can go out in our traffic jungle," he said.

What traffic education exists is largely provided by volunteers.

Wyatt has spent all his working life in the field of transportation, starting with 25 years in the Canadian Army. Before coming to Victoria he spent four years in Winnipeg in the education section of Manitoba's motor-vehicle branch.

Wyatt said he and others involved in traffic safety education are like "preachers of the gospel, trying to shake people out of their apathy, to get them off their butts and do something."

Psychologists, he said, claim people have learned half what they will ever learn by the time they are 12.

Yet less than half of the elementary schools in the Capital Regional District avail themselves of the training provided at the Tom Thumb Safety Village in Colwood.

"I don't believe that the schools which do not take part in the program (which also provides bicycle safety education) don't believe in safety but rather that they suffer from the malaise of apathy," he said.

While people in general, including politicians, are apathetic, Wyatt said large companies employing professional drivers are well aware of the need for defensive driving training.

He mentioned the Altrans Express trucking firm which every year provides a travelling classroom in which drivers receive instruction between Vancouver and Montreal.

For three years, Wyatt said, B.C. Hydro has provided defensive driving education for its drivers. In each of those years 62 per cent less of Hydro drivers were involved in accidents.

"Traffic education can be — and should be — cost effective," said Wyatt.

He said the eight hours of instruction and the $15 it costs to take the CRSC's defensive driving course could save drivers that amount many times over and perhaps even their lives.

He wants high school students prepared in traffic safety before they can take to the road in their own cars. He said this should include 25 hours of classroom theory, eight hours behind the wheel and at least eight hours of observing somebody else driving.

While federal, provincial and municipal governments enact unpopular enforcement legislation they fail to see traffic safety education as effective preventive medicine, Wyatt said.

"The total benefits accrued would be a reduced demand on medical staff and hospital facilities," he said.

"Over-all accident costs would be greatly reduced. There would be a dramatic increase in productivity and much less heartache and suffering."

Chamber Poised For Drive

Victoria Chamber of Commerce plans an all-out campaign to get Saanich residents to vote in favor of industrial development in the Nov. 18 referendum.

And the chamber is determined not to blow the job this time.

Chamber president John Ansell concedes the chamber's effort at two Saanich public hearings on the issue was half-hearted at best.

"But now we will stand up and be counted."

The chamber is 100 per cent behind Royal Oak as a site for industrial development, he said.

"Many people think of an industrial site as smokestacks and wall-to-wall buildings," he said.

But in fact the industrial site planned for Royal Oak would have a park-like atmosphere with a strong emphasis on landscaping.

Developers Win Minnie Mt. Fight

Couvelier's Vote Sinks Protests From Residents

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The development firm Broadmead Farms Ltd. successfully scaled the heights of Minnie Mountain early today, winning Saanich council approval to proceed with a multi-million-dollar housing development on its prominent 72-acre property at Ten Mile Point.

Council's 5-4 decision, with Mayor Mel Couvelier casting the deciding vote, came at the end of a marathon 5½-hour public hearing attended by nearly 500 residents.

Most were crammed into the Cadboro Bay United Church gymnasium, but latecomers had to content themselves with overflow accommodation and televised coverage in the nearby church building.

The occasion marked the first time this year that Saanich council has rejected majority neighborhood opposition — in this case based largely on dislike of multiple-family accommodation — to approve a major development proposal.

Although the 40 or so residents who addressed council were divided fairly evenly between supporters and opponents, the latter group was clearly in the majority among the audience as a whole.

Boss and numerous other speakers urged council to retain the present single-family zoning on the Minnie Mountain property.

They claimed that Broadmead's plan to include 62 townhouses and 71 condominium apartments in its 210-unit project would inject a clashing urban density and style of living into an area they cherish for its tranquil, village-like atmosphere and charm.

Many also voiced the fear that the development, if approved, would open the door to other projects of similar or higher densities in the years ahead.

In the sombre hyperbole of one resident, semi-rural tree-lined avenues such as Arbutus and Queenswood might some day become "Apartment Alley" and "Townhouse Tour" respectively.

Residents supporting the Broadmead proposal cited the developer's tasteful subdivision in the Royal Oak area, and said a similar development at Minnie Mountain would enhance the site itself and the surrounding area.

Some expressed concern that if the present plan is rejected the firm might sell the property to a less sensitive developer who would cover the entire site with single-family homes.

★ ★ ★

They argued that a mixed-density style of development is the best use because it allows the developer to set aside more land for open space and general recreational use than would be the case under a single-family approach.

"I get the feeling we may ask for too much and end up with something we will like a lot less than this particular plan," said one resident.

Broadmead architect Dick Mann pointed out that the higher-density part of the project generating all the controversy amounted to no more than four per cent of the total site area, while in return the developer was providing nearly 18 acres or 24 per cent as open space.

He described it as a fair trade-off for both groups.

It was nearly midnight before all the residents had their say and the council discussion began.

With each alderman's contribution, following a general pattern of pro-development and anti-development factions seen on other occasions, a certain tension developed as it became obvious that the mayor would again find himself in a tie-breaker role.

In favor of the Broadmead proposal were Aldermen David Paterson, Fred Severson, Ian Cass and Geoff Vantreight. Opposed were Aldermen Howard Sturrock, Bob Cameron, John Mika and Mary Casilio.

Couvelier dismissed what he said were the two main fears of the opponents — that the Broadmead proposal would set a precedent in Cadboro Bay and that present residents' property values would be depreciated.

He denied that any zoning decision taken by council creates the so-called domino effect, and said there was no way this council could predict the attitudes of future councils or the desires of property owners.

But the mayor indicated that his support of the development was based largely on financial considerations. (Broadmead estimates the municipality will receive tax revenue of at least $175,000 annually from its Minnie Mountain development).

Couvelier said a recent study by the provincial ministry of housing showed clearly that municipalities bear a net cost burden on single-family detached residential areas, while enjoying a net gain from apartments, commercial development and the like.

He agreed with Paterson that rejecting the Broadmead proposal because it contained apartments would be tantamount to asking residents of the Gorge, Tillicum and other Saanich neighborhoods to subsidize their counterparts in Cadboro Bay.

Mika retorted that such reasoning assured Couvelier's support for any subsequent apartment proposal that comes before council.

"You have already given your decision that you will be voting in favor of them," he added. To which Cass gave a one-word reply: "Nonsense."

Broadmead general manager Gordon Rolston said following the hearing that site development will start in about a year, but that it will probably take seven to 10 years to complete all phases of the project.

Single-family building sites in the luxury subdivision will sell for about $55,000. Other approximate price tags will be $120,000 on condominium apartments, $145,000 on townhouse units and $165,000 on single-family detached homes.

Ask the Times

Q. During the thunder and lightning storm we had recently I wondered if anyone could be hit by lightning and survive? B.I.

A. Yes. In fact, a park ranger in Virginia named Roy Sullivan holds the world's record for being hit the most times by lightning — six. He was hit in 1942 and lost a big toenail, in July 1969 he lost his eyebrows, in July 1970 his left shoulder was seared, on April 16, 1972, his hair was set afire, on Aug. 7, 1973, his new hair was set afire and his legs seared, and on June 5, 1976, his ankle was injured.

The matter was raised by Ald. John Mika about 90 minutes after the hearing had started.

He noted that associate municipal solicitor Chris Nation — charged with advising Saanich on the draft land-use contract — and Ald. David Paterson are both employed by the legal firm of Pearlman and Lindholm, which also acts on behalf of the company, R & M Construction.

Mika said in view of the fact that Broadmead general manager Gordon Rolston is also a principal in R & M Construction, he wondered if the circumstances constituted a conflict of interest.

After briefly caucusing with other council members and officials, Mayor Mel Couvelier ruled that Mika's point did not affect the legality of the hearing, which then could continue.

At the end of the long hearing Mika requested a more precise ruling. He said Nation had indicated that his own position was not compromised, but that still left Paterson's position unclear.

Asked to comment, Nation said he could not express an opinion because he did not know the extent of any possible relationship between the alderman and the developer.

Couvelier said it was a reasonable answer, and there the matter rested.

Have They Ever Negotiated an Agreement!

Contractors and Victoria contruction unions have negotiated an agreement that has everybody smiling.

It is a labor-management campaign to raise funds for the United Way.

"This project is an example of the way management and labor can work together for the benefit of the whole community," Construction Association of Victoria president Dave Weller said.

"This is a healthy development and we hope it will provide the base for the kind of relationship we want in this industry."

A total of 23 local agencies will be helped by this year's Greater Victoria United Way campaign, which has a goal this year of $926,000, up nine per cent from last year.

The campaign, co-sponsored by Vancouver Island Construction Trades Council, will reach a climax on Oct. 4, Construction Day.

Teams will visit all major construction sites on that date and collect pledge cards authorizing payroll deductions.

Forms will have been mailed out in advance but teams will make a follow-up call on Oct. 4 because it is too easy to lose cards or forget about them, Weller said.

The target is to collect one hour's pay from everyone in the construction industry.

While management and labor representatives will travel as a team, the construction association will deal mainly with contractors while the union representatives solicit funds from their own members.

"But we will be working together and Oct. 4 will be the most important day of our campaign."

United Way

Crossett said there are about 500 union construction workers employed in the Victoria area at the moment and a reasonable target for the campaign would be $5,000.

"In fact we hope to raise much more than that. Union people are donating to good causes all year long but the United Way is something special. We hope to get a good response when we make our rounds."

All donations will be by payroll deduction, with the co-operation of the employers.

Pledge cards are being distributed in advance but team members will carry spare ones with them when they visit construction sites on Oct. 4, just in case the mailed ones have gone astray or have been discarded.

The Construction Day visits will involve all major construction products in the district. On small projects the Construction Association of Victoria will make a direct approach to the contractor to save time.

Business 'Deadly Serious' About Gov't Spending Cuts

For the first time in 10 years Canadian businessmen are deadly serious about Ottawa reducing its spending, Victoria Chamber of Commerce manager Brian Small said Wednesday.

Reporting on his trip to Halifax to attend the Canadian chamber convention, he said every resolution calling upon the government to help business was rejected by the 750 delegates.

"I haven't seen anything like it in the 10 years I have been going to these conventions," he said.

Delegates were determined that they were not going to be the cause of additional federal spending by asking for more benefits.

Small made the comments in reporting to the chamber board of directors at the Strathcona Hotel.

He said Canadian businessmen believe federal spending is a major cause of the present recession. By spending less and reducing taxes, Ottawa would return more money to the local level where business expansion could take place.

He said surveys taken at the convention showed that delegates considered the recession a more important issue than Canadian unity.

And the main economic issue was inflation (during a recession). Unemployment was rated as the second most serious economic problem.

However, 53 per cent of the delegates said uncertainty about Canada's future is seriously harming Canada. Another 42 per cent said it is harming Canada by a limited amount.

Only five per cent saw uncertainies about Canada's future as not at all harmful to the country.

On the question of mandatory retirement at 65, 49 per cent of the delegates were happy with the present policy, 43 per cent said it should be raised above 65, and eight per cent said it should be lowered.

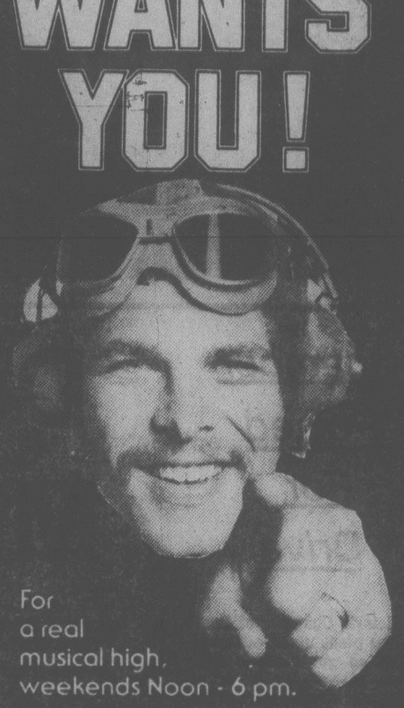

On lotteries: 81 per cent said the number should be limited by governments and 52 per cent said there are already too many. But another 47 per cent said the present number is about right.

On legalizing possession of marijuana: 63 per cent said no and 37 per cent said yes.

Delegates expressed concern about the growing power of the federal government. Only 25 per cent thought Ottawa was in balance with the provinces. Sixty-one per cent thought Ottawa's powers too strong while only 14 per cent thought the powers of the provincial governments too strong.

Small said the focus of the convention was a concern for the weak condition of the Canadian economy and delegates felt the answer was for Ottawa to play a diminished role in the economy.

Visitors Information Centre president Ted Balderson told the directors' meeting he hopes Washington State Ferries will beef up its Anacortes ferry service. When the Marguerite goes out of service this fall many tourists will have to make a wide swing north into B.C. to get to Victoria.

'Let Need Be Met'

A campaign by the provincial Retail Merchants Association for a crackdown on Sunday shopping won't be supported by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber president John Ansell, commenting on a letter from the RMA seeking support, said Wednesday the chamber has always opposed restrictions on shopping hours.

"We believe we should let the marketplace take care of itself. If there is a need in the private enterprise system for Sunday shopping, let that need be met."

The RMA expressed concern about the increased number of stores opening for business on Sunday and was seeking support for its request to the provincial government for stricter regulations.

Cleaner Sellers 'Deceptive'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gerald Mason Ltd., a firm doing business as Kirby Company of Vancouver, used deceptive practices in selling its vacuum cleaners, Justice H.A. Callaghan of the B.C. Supreme Court ruled Wednesday.

In handing down the decision, Callaghan granted the B.C. director of trade practices an injunction restraining the firm from continuing the practice.

Court was told the firm was involved with other companies in the promotion of a booklet of tickets sold to consumers which allowed either a discount on merchandise or services or some other benefit.

The Kirby ticket offered a carpet cleaning service but the words "call for appointment with preview of fabulous new Kirby" were also written in small print on the voucher.

The trade practices department became involved when a ticket holder complained that she had made an appointment to have her carpet cleaned but ended up being sold a vacuum cleaner instead.

Court held the ticket was issued for the sole purpose of obtaining access to the residences of potential purchasers.

Of Seagulls and Owls, And Sailing the World

Some midweek musings, and if you want to stop seagulls from pecking at your roof, simply put a stuffed owl on the gable. No seagulls! It's an old seafaring trick.

Are surveys of any use? The Buffalo Sabres put out a questionnaire this summer asking what was wrong with the production, besides not winning the Stanley Cup, of course. In one particular category, what one fan rated "excellent" another rated "poor". So you can't satisfy everyone. But there was one suggestion that perhaps seems justified. It was that the Sabres change the goal they defended once in a while so fans at that end of the rink could see them attack twice a game instead of only once. Well?

Add to things-I-didn't-know-department: Roscoe Tanner's serve in tennis has been timed at 140 m.p.h. and the first bikinis to be seen by the British public were visible on April 9, 1951, on occasion of the first Miss World contest.

So it's been that kind of a week as all hockey fans await the Cougars' home opener at Memorial on Saturday. And, for the edification of Island fans, Punch McLean, coach of the Memorial Cup-champion New Westminster Bruins, sees the race in the west as a four-way fight between his Bruins, Cougars, Seattle and Portland for honors . . . And also, he suggested in a radio interview, that the Canucks should find a place on the team for rookies Stan Smyl and Curt Fraser. If their skating is suspect, McLean feels they otherwise have the desire and talent.

Incidentally, the B.C. Lions don't have much a chance of a playoff spot in the Western Conference, being where they are — in last place — and having the tough part of their schedule ahead of them. But there is precedence on their side. It was in 1969, remember, and in late September the Lions were boasting a 1-10 record, Jackie Parker just having taken over from Jim Champion as coach and the Lions having blown his debut to Calgary Stampeders. But then, as often happens in the unpredictable world of sports, things started to take place that bear repeating. The Lions proceeded to win four of their next (and last) five games while Winnipeg and Edmonton went into the tank together; and when Saskatchewan Roughriders defeated Edmonton on a Jack Abendschan field goal in the final minute — presto! The Lions were in a third-place tie with Edmonton and also into the playoffs because they had defeated the Eskimos twice during the season. Oh, they lost in the playoff to Calgary, but that's not today's report from the past.

So now all they have to do this time is take care of Winnipeg (in Vancouver, Saturday), Edmonton, Ottawa, Toronto and Edmonton in that order and all will be rosy again.

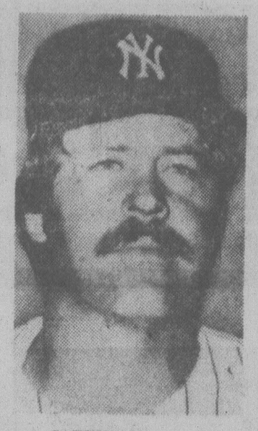

And it probably will happen in Regina this Sunday. That's when quarterback Ron Lancaster of the Roughriders should become the first quarterback in history to pass for 50,000 yards. If the figuring is correct, Lancaster needs only 29 yards to get that job done. Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesota Vikings held the National Football League record of 43,535 yards before this season started.

Incidental too, I kind of like the idea of the fans being given the opportunity of selecting the starting lineup for the National Hockey League All-Star Team to meet the Soviet National Team in their three-game championship series next year. Fans may vote and change their minds as often as they wish. Each ballot will carry the names of 80 players who have been nominated by a special panel of the Professional Hockey Writers Association. The players will be listed alphabetically and by position. There also will be a place for write-in nominees. Each NHL team is represented by a minimum of two players, Dennis Ververgaert and Don Lever being the Canuck nominees. Check your local supermarket for further details. The NHL-Soviet series replaces the traditional All-Star game between the Prince of Wales and Clarence S. Campbell conferences. It is probably significant, too, that the NHL is shutting down normal operations for the week when the games (Feb.8, 10, 11) are being played in New York.

And also, speaking of seafaring, the first person to sail alone around the world wasn't Sir Francis Chichester. It was a naturalized American Joshua Slocum. He was 51 at the time and set out in 1895. He could not swim. He had no radio. And the nearest thing he possessed to a chronometer was a tin clock with a broken face which he bought for a dollar. He dropped anchor at Gloucester on June 27, 1898, more than three years after he had set sail. And did you know that?

G'nite all.

Pressure Pinches Yankees

Bosox Still Hanging In

By Associated Press

One game — it could have been the loss to Cleveland Indians in April, Toronto Blue Jays in May, Oakland A's in June, Minnesota Twins in July or Seattle Mariners in August. Reverse the outcome in any of those contests, and Boston Red Sox would be in much better shape today.

They have been one game behind New York Yankees in the East Division of baseball's American League since last Saturday and each day that one game looms larger.

Boston beat Detroit Tigers 5-2 Wednesday night, while the Yankees were defeating Toronto 5-1, so the Red Sox are still running, albeit running in place.

"It's never over until you're out of it, and we're not out of it — not in any way," said Boston's George Scott. "We're only one game out with four left to play. You can't call that being out."

"It's the same thing I've been saying for the last few days," said Red Sox manager Don Zimmer. "We've got to win tomorrow night (tonight) and hope for help. Here we are with 95 wins, four games to play and we're fighting for our life."

"This is the tightest race I've been in," said Reggie Jackson, who played on three consecutive World Series winners at Oakland. "I don't like it."

Those Oakland teams took the AL West title five straight times, winning the division races more comfortably than the 2½ games by which New York won last year and the slim one-game edge they hold going into the final four games of this season.

"Last year was close enough for me," said Jackson.

Elsewhere in the AL, Seattle Mariners beat Kansas City Royals 4-2, Baltimore Orioles downed Cleveland Indians 3-1, Texas Rangers thumped Minnesota Twins 10-5 and California Angels defeated Milwaukee Brewers, 4-1.

The Red Sox, helped by a three-run first inning keyed by Carlton Fisk's two-run triple, posted their fourth consecutive victory and eighth in the last 10 games. Scott, fighting a season-long slump, knocked in a pair of runs with a single and his 12th homer of the year.

Jackson and his old Oakland team-mate Catfish Hunter helped reduce the Yankees' magic number to four. Any combination of New York victories or Boston losses totalling four will give the Yankees their third successive divisional flag.

Hunter, 12-5, won his ninth game in the last 10 decisions with a six-hitter. He gave up his usual homer, this one to Roy Howell, who committed a key error in the Yankees' three-run second inning. Jackson and Graig Nettles belted solo homers for the winners.

In the National League, both East Division contenders won. First-place Philadelphia Phillies edged Montreal Expos 5-4, while second-place Pittsburgh Pirates dumped Chicago Cubs, 8-3.

The Pirates have won 22 games in a row within the friendly confines of Three Rivers Stadium and must stretch that streak to 26 to catch the Phillies.

The Phillies, leading the NL East by 3½ games, and the Pirates, in second place, begin a crucial four-game series at Pittsburgh on Friday night with a doubleheader. They play single games Saturday and Sunday. Should the Pirates sweep the series, they would be one-half game ahead of the Phillies and would have to play a makeup game against Cincinnati Reds on Monday.

A victory in that game would make the Pirates champions. A loss would deadlock them with Philadelphia and the two teams would meet in a one-game sudden-death playoff Monday.

In other NL games Wednesday, Cincinnati Reds defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3, San Francisco Giants blanked San Diego Padres 1-0 and Houston Astros downed Atlanta Braves, 4-0.

Peace Returns To Oilers

Quarterback Dan Pastorini, who skipped practice Tuesday after a heated discussion with coach Bum Phillips, returned to his National Football League team Wednesday and said he was angered when criticized publicly by assistant coach Ken Shipp of Houston Oilers.

"I want to set the record straight," said Pastorini, whose play selection was criticized following the Oilers' 10-6 Sunday loss to Los Angeles Rams. "The calls I made on two third-down situations against the Rams were calls I was coached (by Shipp) to make during the week.

"I've been playing football 16 years and this is the first time a coach has criticized my ball playing publicly. Bum will be working more with the offence now and it will be much better. I am sure everything will be all right."

A 'Disgusting Exhibition' But Only One Suspension

NEW YORK (AP) — Left winger Frank Beaton will be suspended for the first game of the National Hockey League's regular season for being the first player off the New York Rangers' bench in Tuesday night's wild fight during an exhibition game at Madison Square Garden.

Brian O'Neill, the NHL's executive vice-president, said Wednesday that the suspension is automatic for any player judged to have led the charge off the bench to enter a fight.

O'Neill made the statement before returning to the league's Montreal headquarters for further review of the bench-clearing brawl which caused a 21-minute delay in the exhibition game against Philadelphia Flyers.

Seven Flyers and five Rangers were ejected for their roles in the battle, which O'Neill called: "One of the most disgusting exhibitions of violence I have ever seen in my 13 years of association with the NHL. The fans were cheated because so many players had to be expelled from the game.

"The violence was all over the ice and even threatened to include the fans," continued O'Neill. "If I have my way, there will be thousands of dollars worth of fines levied — far exceeding the amounts called for in the rulebook.

"I am very much upset by what took place," he continued. "None of us in the NHL has any use for that type of behavior. It has no place in the game. It was most distasteful."

"Bench-clearing — in any sport, whether the players leave a baseball dugout or the bench in any other sport — has no place in any game," added NHL president John Ziegler. "It tends to degrade the skills portrayed in the other 99 per cent of the contest."

O'Neill added the Rangers have been fined $1,000, another automatic penalty, because one of their players was judged to have been first off the bench. Further discipline, which O'Neill is empowered to impose, will be announced after further investigation.

O'Neill said it would be forthcoming likely by the end of the week, but that no hearing would be held.

"I saw everything I had to see," he said. "I hold team management 90 per cent responsible for that type of action, whether it is the coach, the general manager, or the players."

After doling out 38 minutes in penalties in the first 10:36 of the contest, referee Bob Myers assessed 219 minutes more for the carnage which went from one end of the ice to the other. The officials, hopelessly outmanned by the combatants, could do little more than watch.

The incident began to the left of the Philadelphia goal when New York's Anders Hedberg was high-sticked by Glen Cochrane with 4:45 remaining in the period. Play moved to the other side of the net where the two players paired off.

Beaton skated off the bench and into the fray; then Philadelphia's Bobby Clarke left his bench.

Canucks Clipped By Los Angeles

Times News Services

Butch Goring collected two goals and two assists Wednesday as Los Angeles Kings defeated Vancouver Canucks 7-4 in a National Hockey League exhibition game in San Diego.

Kings led 5-1 before Vancouver scored three quick goals in the final period. Then Goring stole the puck in front of the Vancouver net and beat goaltender Curt Ridley to make the score 6-4.

The Kings scored goals on all four of their power-play attempts, while Vancouver got one goal in four chances with a man advantage.

The other goals for the Kings were scored by Bob Murdoch, Dave Taylor, Don Kozak, Tom Williams and Pete Stemkowski. Brad Smith, Hilliard Graves, Ron Sedlbauer and Chris Oddlief-son connected for Vancouver.

While most observers would concede North American hockey supremacy to the NHL, the rival World Hockey Association need only point to the results of inter-league exhibition play to advance its cause.

WHA clubs evened the overall record between the two leagues as New England Whalers dumped New York Islanders 5-2 and Quebec Nordiques edged Colorado Rockies 3-2 in other exhibition activity. Each league now has won 23 games with five others ending in ties. This season, the WHA holds a 3-1-1 advantage.

Elsewhere Wednesday, Montreal Canadiens humiliated Toronto Maple Leafs 9-3, Boston Bruins downed Philadelphia Flyers 4-2 and St. Louis Blues tied Detroit Red Wings 2-2.

Reds, Indians Bar Women

CINCINNATI (AP) — As far as Cincinnati Reds and Cleveland Indians are concerned, there'll be no women reporters in their baseball clubhouses after games.

The Reds announced their decision following a ruling Monday by U.S. district judge Constance Baker Motley who said that baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn and New York Yankees were acting unconstitionally by barring women reporters from the locker room after a game.

The Yankees acted immediately and allowed the women in the previously all-male territory.

A Reds spokesman said that they will continue to provide players outside the clubhouse for women reporters, but that the clubhouse will continue to be for men only for their remaining home games this weekend.

Cleveland Indians said they would follow established American League policy if they had any more home games this season. That policy is to allow newswomen in the Yankees' dressingroom, but not in other league teams' clubhouses.

Some of the Reds players had no objections to keeping the women out.

"The Constitution says a woman can come in and I don't see why not. It doesn't bother me," said catcher Johnny Bench.

"There is no reason to keep them out," added pitcher Tom Seaver. "All I ask is that they let me keep my clothes on while a woman is in there. I'm not the kind who would go around naked in front of a reporter. I don't do it with the men reporters."

The federal court judge directed the Yankees to put in curtains or swinging doors to protect a player's privacy.

At least one player's wife also had an opinion on the ruling.

Rugby Time Has Come To 'Clean Up the Act'

RUGBY
max low

(Second of Two Parts)

Really wish my late rugby friend Maurice Wrixon was going to be around this season to see things get better.

Maurice died recently after devoting a large part of his life to the game he loved so much and his familiar figure on the sidelines will be sadly missed. One of the things he abhorred was the increasing violence and bad conduct creeping into rugby in recent years and it's a shame he won't be here to watch the improvement this season.

For that is what we're told there'll be — an improvement.

New Vancouver Island Rugby Union president Peter Seale has vowed to "clean up the act here" and says the union will no longer stand for "players fighting, joining in scraps after they've been started and giving referees a bad time."

Referees were given such a bad time in some matches last season, in fact, that finally they said 'that's it!' They would ref no more. After the last playoff games, their services were withdrawn and for some time union officials faced the prospect of opening a new season without referees.

They worked on the problem during the summer, though, and Seale says:

"We've come together now with proper respect and the referees will go on."

Rugby violence and bad conduct, of course, are not the sole preserve of Vancouver Island. They have become things that every rugby-playing nation in the world must contend with.

Writing in London's Sunday Telegraph recently, Wilfred Wooller said:

"Pleasing are the first fruits of a crusade some of us have been pursuing to clean up the amateur game and rid it of the unpleasant dirty play which has become a development of recent years.

"Australia has openly clamped down and the home unions are making discreet noises in the right direction.

"If further evidence of a result of dirty play at the highest level in full view of the public is required I commend them to the recent report of the Welsh Youth Union, a virile reservoir of boys around the 16 to 19-year mark.

"Last season no fewer than 204 boys were sent off, an increase of 700 per cent since 1974 and the Youth Union, gravely displeased, intends taking steps to eradicate the nuisance."

Outstanding Welsh international referee Merion Joseph, who has controlled games throughout the British Isles and France, was obviously disillusioned with what has happened to rugby when he retired recently.

"Most of the fun I used to get out of rugby has gone for me because of the win-at-all-costs attitude of the players," Joseph said. "Rugby is riddled with resentments and aggro. Dirty play is commonplace and club committees turn a blind eye in almost every case."

Writing in another of England's national papers, The Guardian, David Frost said:

"It would be good to see the cutting out of the dirty play which marred some games last season. Perhaps the recent court case, in which a player was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment and suspended for two years for causing grievous bodily harm to an opponent on the field, will act as a warning to the thugs.

"Perhaps, too, dirty players will take heed of the words of the new president of the (English) Rugby Football Union, Stanley Couchman, immediately following his election:

"'It is reasonable for a first offender not to be given too severe a punishment,' Couchman said. 'But for a persistent offender no penalty is too strong and action should be taken to remove him from the game altogether. The time for talk and no action has passed.'

"Let us hope referees, selectors and disciplinary committees at every level remember this," wrote Frost.

Let us hope, too, that disciplinary committees on the Island share the view that the time for talk and no action has passed and that this season they will do something about the problem before it gets out of hand.

Peter Seale assures me they will.

"All the clubs have agreed to back the referees and get tough with their own problem players," he says.

New-Look Blues Face Trios First

Esquimalt Legion Blues, an amalgamation squad from both the Esquimalt and Victoria minor hockey associations, meet Oak Bay Trios in the opening game of the Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League on Friday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Game time is 8 p.m.

The new Blues are formed from last season's Legion team and the now-defunct Victoria Ray's Red Wings.

Terry Foreman, who has coached Esquimalt for the past three seasons, is calling the shots for Blues. Players joining Foreman from last season's Esquimalt squad include Russ Kennedy, Terry Parsons and Murray Allen. Rhys Wickes, Tom Turnbull and reigning scoring champion Wayne Proceviat are among the former Victoria players on the club.

Kerry Park Islanders of Mill Bay face Lake Cowichan Baird's Trucking in the second game Saturday and the league gets into full swing on Monday.

Schedule for the first week:

Final Hillclimb?

Victoria Motorcycle Club will run its 54th annual — and perhaps last — Mt. Douglas Hillclimb on Sunday.

Saanich council earlier this year reversed its stand barring the club from using the Mt. Douglas Park property for the event — but suggested that a new site should be located.

TELFORD POWERS NANAIMO TO FINAL

Ray Telford took care of all the scoring Wednesday at Royal Athletic Park as newly-promoted Nanaimo United blanked Oak Bay 3-0 in a semi-final match of the annual McGavin Cup competition for first division teams of the Vancouver Island Soccer League.

Telford, who doubles as assistant coach of the Nanaimo squad, opened scoring at 31 minutes on a penalty kick.

Striker Rick Sage set up Telford for his second goal at 85 minutes and the leftwinger notched his final tally two minutes later after collecting a pass from Ron Sage.

United, which ousted Victoria Athletics 4-2 in the opening round of the competition to boost the injured players' fund, now faces defending-champion Victoria West in the McGavin Cup final Oct. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in Royal Athletic Park.

Maple Leafs Clip Eagles

Esquimalt Maple Leafs of the South Island Big Six Intermediate Hockey League scored three goals in the last four minutes Wednesday while posting a 6-2 win over Parksville Golden Eagles in an exhibition game at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Defending-playoff champion Victoria Athletics face a league All-Star team in an annual exhibition game tonight at 8:15 in Pearkes Arena.

League play is scheduled to open Oct. 4 with Duncan Blades facing Juan de Fuca Merchants at Juan de Fuca Arena and Western Homes Buckaroos tackling Leafs at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

KATHRYN SHIELDS

JENNIFER JOHN

Quality Added To UVic Staff

Two players with international experience have been selected to coach Univeristy of Victoria women's athletic teams this season.

Jennifer John, coach of the British Columbia senior team, has been named head coach of women's field hockey and Kathryn Shields, who assisted Mike Gallo last season, has taken over the reins of the UVic Vikettes basketball squad.

A teacher at Spectrum Community School, John has coached and played field hockey at the provincial and national level many times and is currently serving as president of the B.C. Women's Field Hockey Federation. She was captain and coach of the Canadian side which toured the United Kingdom in 1973 and captained other Canadian teams on cross-country tours and to Scotland.

Kathy, a Vancouver native and the wife of men's coach Ken Shields, was assistant coach at Laurentian University in the 1972-73 season and coached the UVic junior varsity women's team to the provincial junior championship in 1976-77 before becoming Gallo's assistant.

Her career as a player is impressive. Kathy was a member of the national team from 1970 to 1974 and competed in the 1971 world championship in Brazil as well as the Pan-American Games in Cali, Columbia.

She played for the Laurentian Vees when they took the Canadian Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Union title in 1976 and played for the UBC Thunderettes when they captured the Canada West University Athletic Association crown in 1970 and 1971.

The 31-member national squad will go up against the U.S. national team at a weekend regatta in Los Angeles before departing for an international meet in Sydney, Australia, starting Oct. 14.

The Canadians are to train near Auckland two weeks prior to the start of the 1978 world championships Nov. 1-5.

The Canadian squad, under head coach Tudor Rompa of Maple, Ont., includes two Victorians - Ina deLure, a member of the coxed fours, and Kelly Jacklin, a member of the eights.

European Cup Defenders Bounced by Notts Forest

Times News Services

Liverpool, winners for the last two years, crashed out of European Cup soccer play in the opening round Wednesday together with the team they beat in last season's final, Bruges of Belgium.

Liverpool hurled everything at their English rivals, Nottingham Forest, in a bid to pull back a 2-0 first-leg deficit and hang on to Europe's top club prize.

Over 50,000 Liverpool fans roared the red-shirted champions forward, but Forest, with England international goalkeeper Peter Shilton supreme, weathered the storm to grab a deserved goalless draw for a 2-0 aggregate victory.

Time after time Liverpool raced into the attack with Scottish international Kenny Dalglish and England's Ray Kennedy having fierce shots hooked clear in the first half.

It seemed the Forest defence must crack in the face of almost non-stop pressure, but it held on for a shock win.

Bruges, leading 2-1 after the first leg in Belgium, slumped 3-1 away to Wisla Krakow of Poland, the winning goal tallied seconds from time through Janusz Krupinski.

It was a day of frantic activity with more than 100 clubs battling for glory in the European Cup, Cup-Winners Cup and European Football Union (UEFA) Cup.

Bruges and Liverpool were not the only top teams to suffer first round defeats. Italian champions Juventus, who reached last season's semi-finals, crumbled against Glasgow Rangers of Scotland.

CANADIAN TOURNEY NOW 'MAJOR' EVENT

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Ladies Professional Golf Association championship has been designated the third major women's tour event, commissioner Ray Volpe has announced.

The 1979 event, to be held at the Richelieu Valley Golf Club at Ste. Julie, Que., with a purse increased to $150,000 from $100,000, will again be sponsored by Imperial Tobacco Ltd.

The Canadian LPGA joins the United States LPGA and the U.S. Open to form three major events for women pros, Volpe said.

Imperial Tobacco has signed a five-year sponsorship agreement through 1983 and established a $10,000 points fund for LPGA players based on the three major championships. The sponsor also announced it will make a cash award of $25,000 to any golfer who wins all three major championships in the same year.

1979! THE AUTOMOTIVE

For 1979, Pontiac-Buick dealers proudly introduce an all-new personal luxury Riviera, a remarkable Buick with enough news for several automobiles. The '79 Riviera represents the third stage in a revolution that began with the totally-new full-size Pontiacs and Buicks for 1977, and created our evolutionary mid-size cars of 1978. It implements new ways of automotive thinking, in concept, technology and design. Pontiac has its own news for 1979, including refinements and improvements, particularly to Acadian and Firebird. 1979 Pontiac presents a distinct breed of cars for the times. In a changing world, the revolution continues at your Pontiac-Buick dealers.

GRAND PRIX

The legend isn't just alive and well. It's thriving. You'll find something new to love every time you drive the inimitable Grand Prix, sporty SJ or even more luxurious Grand Prix LJ.

PHOENIX

Phoenix... our lowest priced six-passenger Pontiac. Phoenix gives you freedom of choice with competitively-priced Coupes, Hatchback and Sedans.

SUNBIRD

When your Pontiac's a sporty Sunbird, the fun never sets. For 1979 new standard features include AM radio, whitewalls, tinted glass and more in the Sunbird Coupe, Sport Coupe, Sport Hatch and Safari Wagon.

LE MANS

In Pontiac's class, nobody's got the magic of mid-size like LeMans. Make it a LeMans or Grand LeMans Coupe, Sedan or Safari Wagon or a Grand AM Coupe or Sedan and you've got the true mid-size.

PARISIENNE SAFARI

The full-size flagship of the Pontiac wagon fleet can seat up to eight. Parisienne, Catalina and Laurentian all offer proven full-size value in Coupes, Sedans and Safari Wagons.

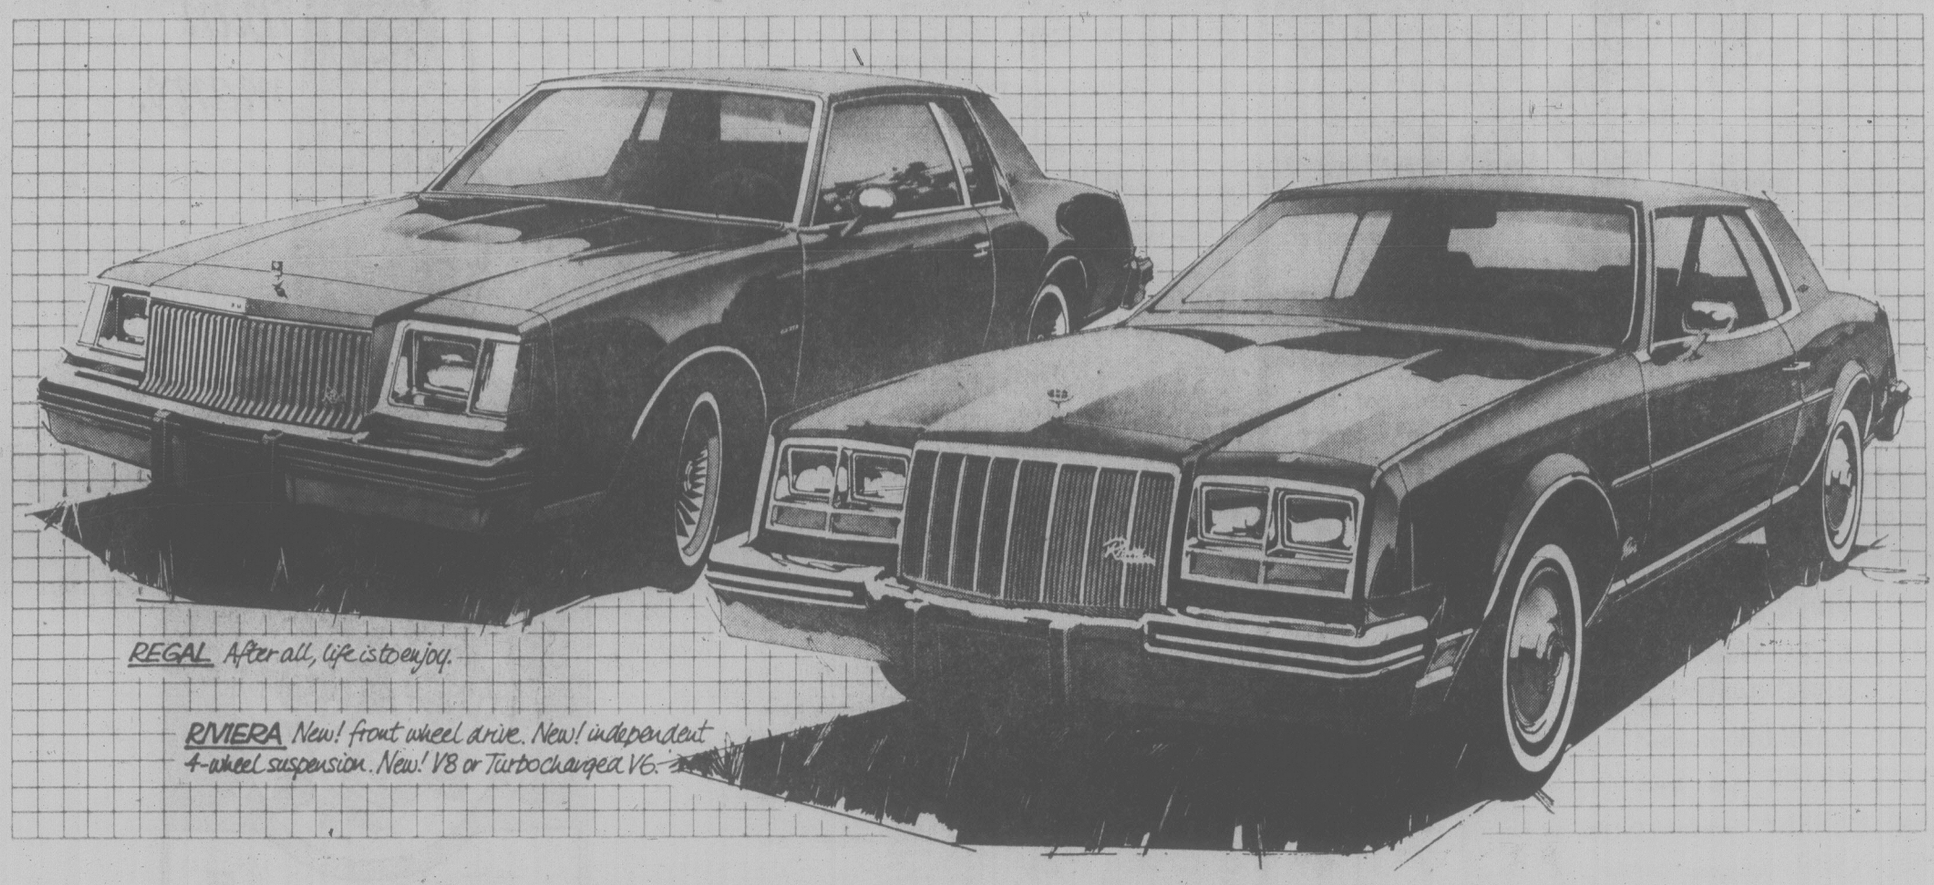

ACADIAN

Here's where small car equals big value. Two-door and four-door Acadian Hatchbacks come with a 2-bbl 4 cylinder overhead-cam engine, whitewall radials, reclining buckets, console and AM radio... standard!

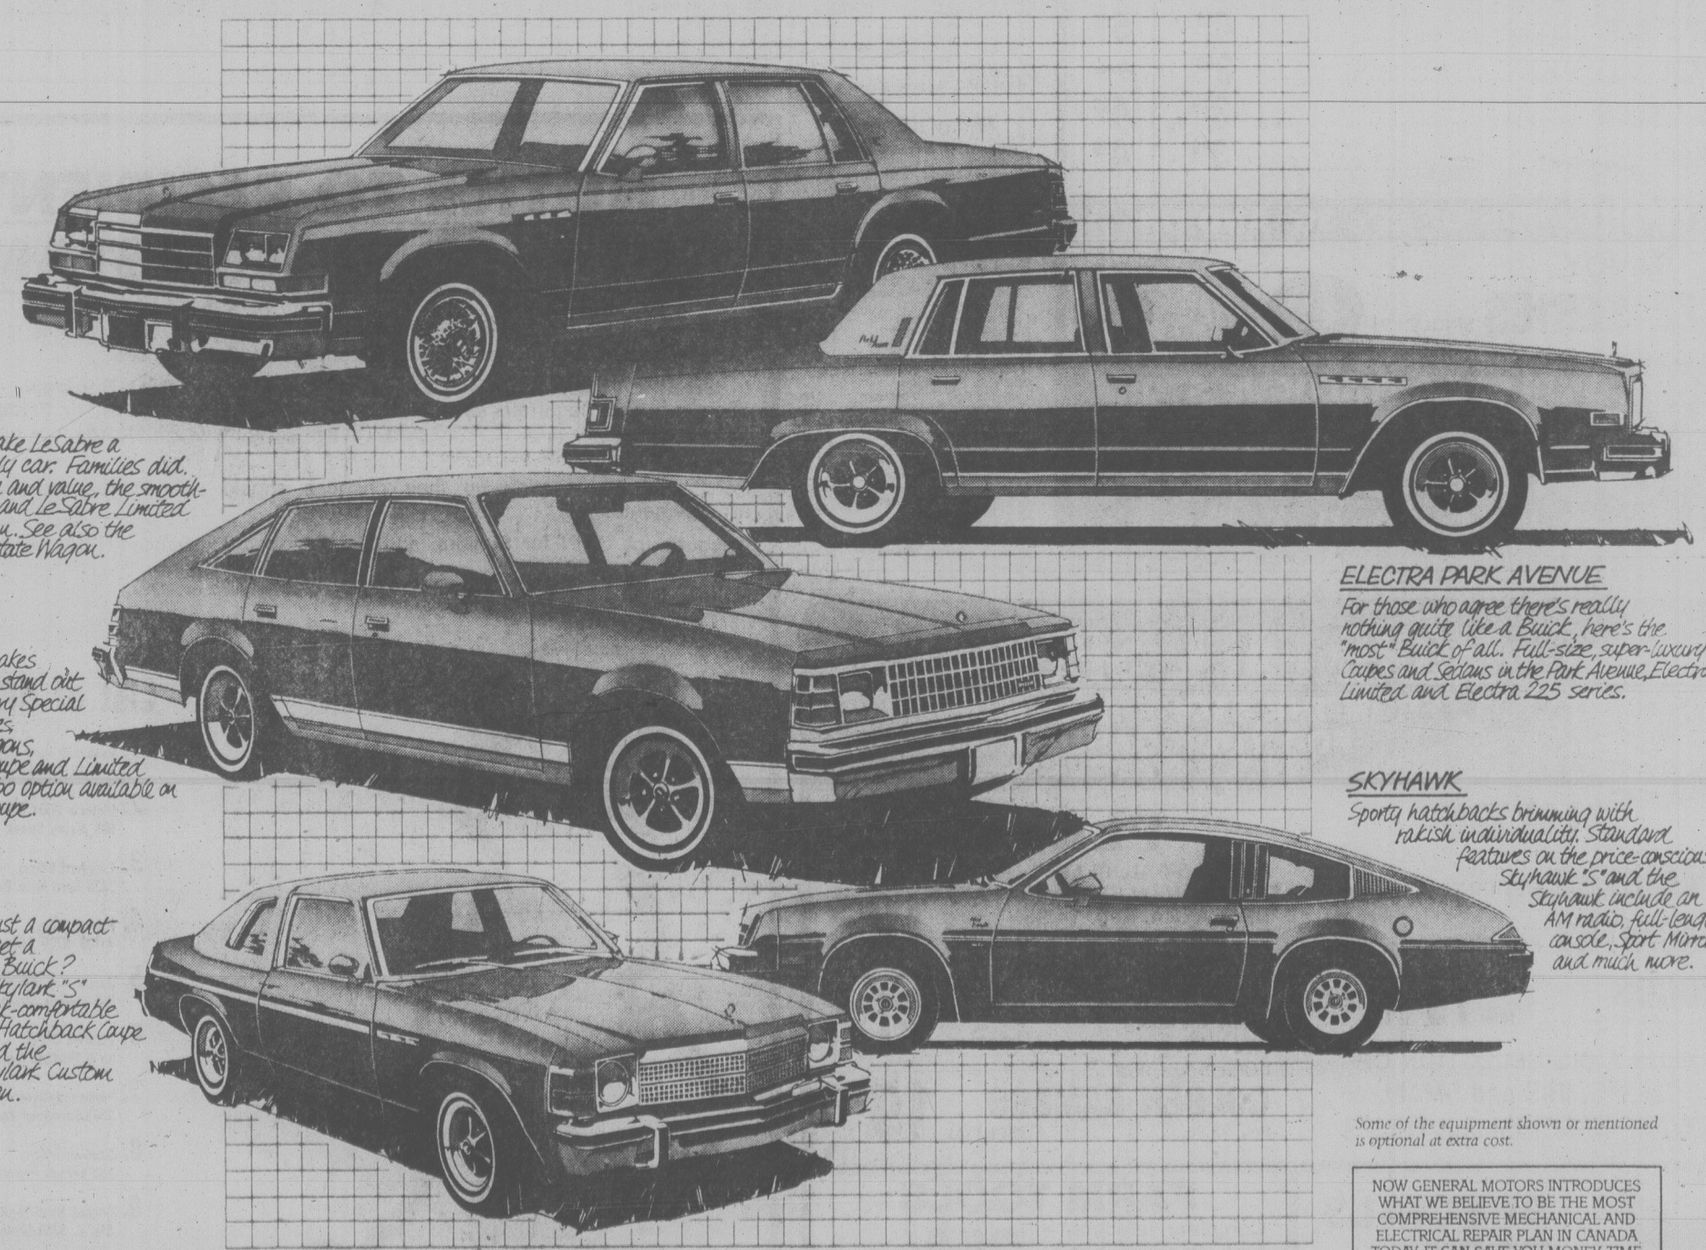

THE NEW PONTIACS

REVOLUTION CONTINUES

The 1979 Riviera is a personal luxury car with innovative, exciting engineering. Completely redesigned, lighter on its feet and more agile than last year, with front-wheel drive, independent 4-wheel suspension and automatic rear level control for excellent ride and handling. Standard features include air conditioning, an AM/FM Stereo radio and "power" just about everything. There are two new Rivieras, one with a standard 5.7 litre (350 CID) 4-bbl. V8, the other with a Turbocharged 3.8 litre (231 CID) 4-bbl. V6. The new Riviera is a trend-setting luxury car that performs with authority. Buick presents a revolutionary Riviera for 1979.

LE SABRE

Buick didn't make LeSabre a celebrated family car. Families did. Filled with room and value, the smooth-riding LeSabre and LeSabre Limited Coupe and Sedan. See also the sophisticated Estate Wagon.

CENTURY

Exciting design makes mid-size Buicks stand out anywhere. Century Special and Custom Coupes, Sedans and Wagons, Century Sport Coupe and Limited Sedan. New Turbo option available on Century Sport Coupe.

SKYLARK

Why settle for just a compact when you can get a six-passenger Buick? The practical Skylark "S" Coupe, the Buick-comfortable Skylark Coupe, Hatchback Coupe and Sedan, and the prestigious Skylark Custom Coupe and Sedan.

ELECTRA PARK AVENUE

For those who agree there's really nothing quite like a Buick, here's the "most" Buick of all. Full-size, super-luxury Coupes and Sedans in the Park Avenue, Electra Limited and Electra 225 series.

SKYHAWK

Sporty hatchbacks brimming with rakish individuality. Standard features on the price-conscious Skyhawk "S" and the Skyhawk include an AM radio, full-length console, Sport Mirrors and much more.

Another Que. Pitch in U.S.

CHICAGO (CP) — Quebec Premier Rene Levesque carried his uphill battle to win U.S. hearts and minds to the windy city Wednesday with an assurance that an independent Quebec would remain part of the North American mainstream.

"We're just as deeply-rooted a part of the North American way of life, values and perspectives as anyone else," Levesque told an audience of more than 400 at a dinner organized by the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at the Michigan Shores Club in suburban Wilmette.

Levesque said 18th-century Quebec shared the yearnings of its southern neighbors for democracy and economic development but was stifled by colonial wars while "your development ran its course freely."

Quebecers, he said, have "the feeling that we can run our own home as well as anybody else." He also pointed to his government's legislative record and to Quebec's strict law on political contributions which he called "a model of something fundamental for building any democracy."

Afterwards he faced tough audience questions on Quebec's economic prospects and on proposals for a partial government takeover of the province's asbestos industry.

He answered by giving a careful selection of economic indicators and by attacking some of the denunciations of his government that have appeared in Canadian and U.S. newspapers. He also took a jab at heavy government bureaucracy, which he called "obsolescent."

Levesque has visited the United States several times since he was elected premier in 1976 in efforts to win support from influential business people and foreign policy analysts. Wednesday was the first day of a six-day swing which will also take him to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Talking to a reporter before his speech, Levesque denied that his government's policies are affecting the continuing plunge of the Canadian dollar, which slid below 85 cents U.S. this week for the first time since 1933.

"That is obviously a result of mismanagement, wasted opportunity and poor economic playing," he said, pointing the blame at Ottawa.

"They used to threaten voters by saying that when the Parti Quebecois played a major role in the government, the Canadian dollar would drop to 85 cents. Apparently, they've done it without us."

ENGLISH 'CODDLED'

QUEBEC (CP) — English-speaking Quebecers are "coddled" by the provincial government if their treatment is compared to that of French-speaking minorities in the rest of Canada, says a Quebec government publication.

Le Quebec En Bref, distributed abroad by the intergovernmental affairs department, makes this assertion in an article entitled "Quebec Treats Its Minority Best."

The article says: "In Quebec, we have known this for a long time, but the anglophones in other provinces have always seemed to ignore this reality."

The article outlines the findings of a study by the Federation of Francophones Outside Quebec on the status of French-speaking minorities.

While English-speaking Quebecers have their own educational system, francophones in the rest of Canada "rarely have schools where teaching is given in French," the report says.

An Ottawa French-language daily sells 15,000 a day in Ontario, while the total circulation of English-language newspapers in Quebec is 350,000 a day, the magazine states.

And while there are 1,500 English-speaking lawyers in Quebec, there are only 282 French-speaking lawyers in the other nine provinces.

The article concludes that there exists a "double standard" in the country.

Protect Public, CA's Told

EDMONTON (CP) — It's time for chartered accountants to accept reasonable demands that they protect the public interest while inspecting financial reports for their clients, the president of the 27,000-member Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants says.

John W. Adams was looking forward to a year of change as 1,600 delegates gathered here this week for the institute's 76th annual meeting.

Adams has sparked many of the pending changes himself.

The president of Emco Ltd., a pipe-manufacturing firm in London, Ont., he was chairman of the institute's committee to examine the role of the auditor. The committee recommended 61 ways to make chartered accountants more responsive to society's demands.

Many people feel an auditor should not resign in a conflict situation without completing his reporting apd should make the circumstances of his resignation public, Adams said in an interview.

But, he asked, how could an accountant do so knowing he might be sued for libel? And how should an accountant hired to inspect fiscal reporting deal with illegal payments?

"It's my personal view that the profession should be encouraged to speak out," Adams said. "That's why our report calls for qualified privilege for auditors, to encourage this openness."

Adams said he also sees a need to narrow the choice of available accounting methods.

"For example, there are a number of ways of valuing inventories, especially in specialized industries like oil and gas, real estate, finance and construction. As things stand, if you take the financial statements for two competing companies, you have to go to the footnotes to compare the results equitably."

The institute's board of governors decided Wednesday to begin a three-year program in which various subcommittees will consider the recommendations of what is now called the Adams report and submit programs for action.

Meanwhile, Adams is concerned about bringing an adequate supply of people into a profession whose size has doubled in the last six years.

"Financial support (for business and commerce schools) is not out of the question," he said.

Attempts to deal with an increasing workload by extending to non-chartered accountants the work of public practice rights, auditing and expression of opinions on financial statements are worrisome, he said.

"So far, the marketplace has determined that CAs do the work, with businesses, stock exchanges and groups like the chartered banks demanding audits by CAs. We'd like to ensure that this practice remains."

Freak Mishap Fatal to Man

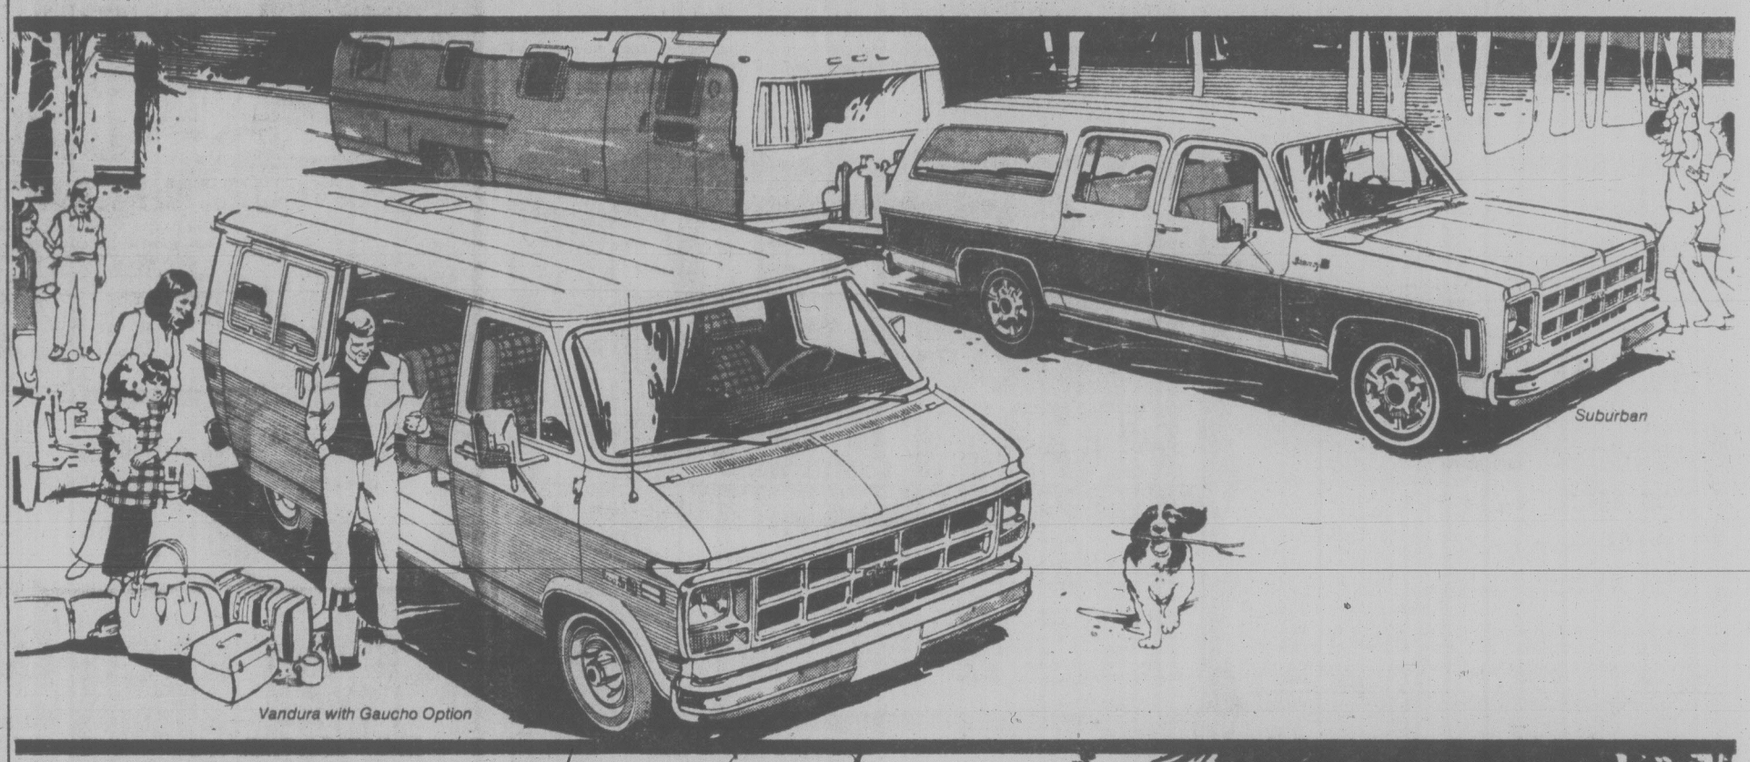

EDMONTON (CP) — George Henry Walters, 55, of the Grimshaw, Alta., district died Wednesday in a freak accident after a power line fell on the combine he was operating.

RCMP said Walters was apparently electrocuted when he tried to extinguish a fire that flared after a truck knocked a power pole onto the combine.

Walters attempted to throw wet sand onto the fire and the electric current apparently travelled through the sand and into his body, RCMP said.

GMC '79

this time, why not make it a truck?

Is it true that people with trucks get more out of life than people without trucks? Could be, if they get a '79 from GMC.

Think what you could do with one of the GMC trucks shown here.

The Suburban, at the top, is a strong favorite for trailering. With a properly-equipped Suburban you can tow up to 9,000 pounds. And as a "people carrier", a Suburban can seat up to nine. Comfortably. So if you've been into station wagons, you might be happier in a GMC Suburban.

Or a Rally Wagon (not shown) which can take as many as twelve people, and is one of GMC's versatile Van family. The Van illustrated is a Gaucho, a five-seater with highback front buckets, a rear bench seat, and tie-down cargo room in the back that's roughly six feet long by four-and-a-half feet wide. The more active your imagination, the more you'll enjoy talking with your GMC dealer.

Perhaps a Pickup is more your style, in which case your GMC dealer's language will include Widesides, Fendersides, six-passenger Crew Cabs, trailer-towing, slide-in Campers, add-on covers, a Pickup you can order with a V8 Diesel Engine, even some Pickups with an available V8 that can run on both unleaded and regular gas. Talk about the sky's the limit!

Then, there's Jimmy, the personality truck. Standard hardtop, or available soft top, standard buckets, optional folding rear bench seat. Another Jimmy "standard" is fun, and your options are wide open.

Your GMC dealer will advise you on the availability of 4-wheel drive, AM/FM Stereo and/or CB radio, air conditioning, automatic transmission, Cruise Control and power assists like steering, brakes and door locks.

Trucks are what we're all about.

Just how sophisticated can you get?

GMC's 1979 light-duty trucks are even better protected than before against rust corrosion, including more extensive use of pre-coated steel, zincrometal and corrosion-preventative sprays. It's all part of GMC's attack on rust perforation to protect your truck's good looks and the value of your investment.

FORD PRICE UP 4.9%

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd. announced Wednesday price increases averaging 4.9 per cent on its 1979 models being unveiled today and Friday.

The price for Ford's 1979 Pinto Pony is $3,771, up $55 from 1978. Prices for the Fairmont and Zephyr, introduced in 1978, have been increased by $120.

Airlift Job To PWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Western Airlines has won a contract to airlift Canadian Forces CF-104 Starfighters to Alberta from Europe for overhaul, the Alberta-based airline announced Wednesday.

The airline is to employ its new $8.5 million L-100-30 version of the Lockheed Hercules for a monthly round-trip between Europe and Edmonton, where the Starfighters will be overhauled by Northwest Industries Ltd.

With the purchase of the new Hercules, expected to arrive Dec. 15, PWA will sell off the oldest of its existing Hercules, which has put in 25,000 hours of flying during its 12 years of service.

Ken Bjorge, assistant vice-president cargo and contract, said Wednesday the airline might try to acquire a second stretch-version of the Hercules within a year.

He said the company's present trio of Hercules have not been unduly hampered by fuselage length because they have been used chiefly in the Arctic where loads are heavy rather than bulky.

"But we have lost out on international charter work," he said.

CLUTTER OF CLUCKS have Metropolitan Toronto commuters in a flap after an 18-wheel truck flipped and lost its load of live chickens on Highway 401 near Whitby on Metro's eastern outskirts. Transport ministry workers rounded up the three- and four-pound birds into the median.

CBC Under Fire from Deaf

OTTAWA (CP) — Groups representing Canada's deaf have chastised the CBC for refusing to join in tests of a new system developed in the United States which broadcasts television programs the deaf can read.

In a brief to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission, the Canadian Co-ordinating Council on Deafness and the Canadian Association of the Deaf say the CBC is ignoring more than 200,000 deaf taxpayers by refusing to help test a new closed-captioning system.

With the system, developed and tested by the Public Broadcasting System in the U.S., coded captions are picked up by specially-equipped television sets. The captions do not appear on ordinary television sets.

"The CBC has been sympathetic but they haven't really done anything," Gwenyth Andrews of the co-ordinating council said Wednesday.

The groups say decoding equipment will be on the market by next fall at a cost of between $300 and $500. This will allow many deaf Canadians to watch about 30 hours a week of closed-captioning programs on U.S. networks, but no Canadian programs.

Norm Grover, CBC vice-president of engineering, said there is little point in producing closed-captioned programs when decoding equipment is not available for deaf viewers.

He said the equipment may not be available until the fall of 1980 in the U.S. and that it was not known when it would appear in Canada.

And so far, he said the PBS has been unable to interest any firms in the system.

"It entirely depends on the number of deaf persons who would buy a receiver — and that depends on the price," he said.

MORE GADGETS

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian consumers will be able to own a wider variety of communication devices for direct attachment to federally-regulated telecommunications carriers under an announcement made Wednesday by Communications Minister Jean Sauve.

It is part of a program allowing the public to buy certain no-dialing devices rather than having to lease the equipment from the telecommunications carrier.

In 1976 the consumer for the first time was allowed to purchase automatic telephone answering machines, automatic recording machines and plugs and jacks.

Beginning Oct. 1 the list will include units which provide information on alarms, security and other services from a remote location.

Cable Via Satellite?

HALIFAX (CP) — A novel idea that would see satellites used to provide programs from as far away as the Orient to Canadian cable television stations was presented Wednesday to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission.

The system would use one of the Canadian Anik satellites to beam as many as 20 television stations to cable operators across the country, John Forbes, a spokesman for Trans Spectrum Services Ltd., said in an interview.

The application initially would apply only to the Shelburne and Lockporte areas of Nova Scotia and it would allow the company to beam in four Detroit-based stations as well as CBC and CTV programs, Forbes said.

He added the system would cost several million dollars. However, the profit would come when the satellite signal into Nova Scotia was expanded to cover the entire country.

To make a profit the company would have to sell its service at 13 cents a month per channel to 1.5 million Canadians, he estimated.

Europe, the Orient, South and Central America, Australia, New Zealand and other areas could eventually be patched into the network.

The lack of background information on the proposal as well as unresolved international jurisdictional problems were both cited by CRTC chairman Pat Pearce as possible problems with the proposal.

Among those opposing the application were the CBC, the Atlantic Television System, the Canadian Association of Broadcasters and the Canadian Cable Television Association.

DRIVERS MOW DOWN PARK ANIMALS

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — More than 300 wild animals have been mowed down by motor vehicle traffic or trains travelling through Banff National Park during the last three years. The carnage has prompted wardens to dub the Trans-Canada Highway the Meatmaker.

And the prospect of a twinned Trans-Canada route through a 30-kilometre stretch of the park in the 1980s has them concerned.

A study by Parks Canada and Banff National Park reveals that since 1970 an average of 91 animals a year have been hit by traffic or trains going through the area.

Most are elk, usually young females. Deer, sheep and moose also are often hit.

Accidents usually occur at night in clear weather and on dry roads. The animal almost always dies instantly. If a motor vehicle is involved, damage is about $1,000.

Officials blame increasing wildlife tolls on greater numbers of cars coming through the park. Last year, more than 2.5 million vehicles entered Banff's east gate — 300,000 more than in 1976.

That year, a record 141 animals died on roads.

CN Crews Cut to Save $80M

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian National Railways expects to save $80 million over the next 10 years through a precedent-setting agreement with the United Transportation Union (UTU) to reduce crews on freight trains in Western Canada.

The deal, signed in August and ratified earlier this month by the UTU's general committee for Western Canada, will see freight crews reduced from four to three on 80 per cent of the company's freight trains in the west.

The agreement is the first in Canada and only the second in North America. The Milwaukee Road has a similar pact with the UTU in the United States, but CN officials say that Conrail, the largest U.S. railway in terms of freight, took a keen interest in the agreement as soon as it was signed.

UTU president Al Chesser has repeatedly rebuffed attempts by the U.S. National Railway Conference to make reduced crews an issue in industry-wide bargaining, insisting that the railways negotiate it company by company.

"The agreement represents a significant change in railroading as we now know it," George McDevitt, one of the union's two vice-presidents for Canada, said in a statement this week.

U.S. and Canadian railways have been fighting for years to eliminate a brakeman from the current crew consisting of one engineer, two brakemen and one conductor. The UTU has taken CP Rail to court to prevent it from arbitrarily eliminating the second brakeman.

The industry argument is that the extra brakemen is wasteful and unnecessary, both from a safety and an operational standpoint.

In getting the union to accept the reduction, CN had to promise to introduce the cuts, which represent widespread job losses among the 4,000 trainmen concerned, through attrition.

The Crown-owned railway will deposit one-quarter of the money it saves from the cutback — about $20 million by 1988 — into a special fund to provide those supplemental benefits.

The agreement, to take effect before the end of the year, applies only to freight trains operating west of Armstrong, Ont.

Clothing Import Talks Begin

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has begun talks with India, Singapore and Sri Lanka aimed at establishing voluntary restraints on the level of some clothing items imported into Canada, the trade department announced Wednesday.

The move follows protests from the domestic clothing industry that planned imports in 1979 "would significantly exceed historical import levels from those countries."

The trade department said it is initiating the talks because "such increases could be disruptive to domestic production and employment."

The domestic clothing and textile industry lobbied hard for quotas on imports, complaining it could not hope to compete with countries where wages are a fraction of those paid to Canadian workers.

Clothing imports from all countries were held at 1975 levels for 18 months and are gradually being relaxed beginning Jan. 1, 1979.

However, the government has warned that increases will be monitored closely so as not to disrupt domestic clothing manufacturers.

Before The Judge

A 16-year-old girl was charged Wednesday in the family division of provincial court with theft over $200 in connection with an incident late Tuesday afternoon at the Hillside shopping mall.

A night deposit bag, destined for the night deposit vault at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, was snatched from the grasp of Catherine Bingeman, assistant manager at Jus-Rite Photos in the mall.

A female was chased and caught by three persons and the bag, containing $320 in cash and $44 in cheques, was retreived.

Judge Harold Alder remanded the juvenile, whose name cannot be published, in custody at the juvenile detention home until Friday when she will plead.

★ ★ ★

A father and his son were committed by Judge Blake Allan to stand trial on a charge of armed robbery.

Angus Nelson Townsend, 43, of 2683 Blanshard, and Michael Nelson Townsend, 23, of 3140 Washington, were jointly charged with armed robbery in connection with an April 28 holdup at Ron's Service Station, 2200 Quadra, during which $267 was taken.

In an afternoon appearance before Judge William Ostler, the younger Townsend was charged with a July 9 attempted armed robbery at Merit Service Station, 603 Gorge Road.

Townsend was remanded in custody until Friday for election of trial method and possible bail hearing.

Ostler handed a 17-year-old a suspended sentence, six months' probation and 60 hours of community service work for creating a scene Aug. 25 at the McDonald's Restaurant in Colwood.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court the manager of the restaurant called Colwood RCMP at about 10:35 p.m. and said he was unable to convince Logan and two companions who were drunk and obnoxious to leave.

When police arrived and asked him to leave, Lang continued, Logan refused and began swearing at the officers, who had to forcibly put him in the police vehicle.

Ostler levied fines against drinking drivers from a low of $50 to a high of $1,200.

Fined were: Larry Allan Wallis, 22, of 534 Nova in Nanaimo, $1,200; David Gardner Griffith, 28, of 1377 Saunders, $550; Vincent Mark Kennedy, 23, of 2074 Harbour View, $450; Monika Clarke, 24, of 940 Tiswald, $450; John Sladon, 26, of RR1, Cowichan Station, $300; and Audrey Myra Senini, 44, of 405 Catherine, $50.

In addition, Mrs. Senini was placed on nine months' probation, ordered to perform 100 hours of community service work, and ordered to attend any Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Society counselling and any other institution as directed.

Man Found Guilty of Bilking Banks

Leo Daniel Woodland, 46, was found guilty in county court Wednesday on four counts of uttering forgeries and $12,700 in fraud involving two banks.

A jury of eight men and four women deliberated 3½ hours after two days of Crown evidence, returning their verdict at 6:20 p.m.

Judge Leslie Cashman adjourned Woodland to Oct. 19 at 9:30 a.m. for sentence.

The charges alleged transactions by Woodland, alias Robert Hardy and Allen White, in March of last year at the Fort Street branch of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and the Shelbourne Street branch of Bank of Montreal.

Forged cheques for $7,800 and $4,900 were deposited and subsequent withdrawals of cash and certified cheques were made by a person identifying himself as Hardy at one bank and White at the other.

Police investigating the forgeries used a photograph of a man they knew as Woodland to show bank employees who agreed it was the man they knew as Hardy or White.

One bank witness also identified the accused as Ian Good, in whose name there was an account at the Hillside shopping centre of Bank of Nova Scotia, and where the accused posing as Good cashed $5,000 worth of certified cheques payable to Good.

The defence, represented by Jay Clarke, of Vancouver, and Michael J. O'Connor, called no evidence in the trial. Clarke said the offences of uttering and fraud were conceded, but issue was taken on the matter of identification. He cited a lack of corroborative evidence such as handwriting analysis or identifying documents taken from the accused.

Where witnesses find no outstanding features to describe the accused, an eyewitness identification must be the result of an impression only, Clarke said. The bank employees, he suggested, honestly but mistakenly imposed one identity over another.

Clarke also referred to what he said was an unfair action by Cpl. Robert Pringle of Saanich police in showing several bank witnesses a picture of Woodland and describing his appearance that day prior to them giving evidence in a preliminary hearing, alleging this aided in their identification.

Crown counsel R.A. Mulligan said all facts pointed to conviction of the accused, who "had an interesting, profitable scheme for a period of time."

Cashman instructed the jury to direct itself first to the issue of identification, without which there could be no conviction; any reasonable doubt must be resolved in favor of the accused, he said.

Cashman agreed with Clarke that Pringle's action "was quite improper for a officer to do," but it was for the jury to decide how this affected other evidence.

Price, Pace Hit French Palate

By WILLIAM RICE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Although the great restaurants of France are thriving and their chefs are national celebrities, there has been a marked decline in that nation's standard of eating. According to two masterfull French cooks on a visit here recently, the pace and price of modern life have accomplished something that war and Depression never could: eating well is a secondary concern for many in the land that coined the term gastronomy.

Georges Blanc, whose Chez La Mere Blanc restaurant in Vonnas rates two stars in the Michelin Guide, and Pierre Verot, a specialist in charcuterie, were here to do demonstrations and present special dishes at a fashion show.

Blanc deals with restaurant-goers and tourists from abroad, while many of Verot's clientele are local housewives; so their points of view diverge frequently. But both cited such familiar themes as lack of time, more women working outside the home and the combined influence of the automobile and super-highways as causes for the changing profile of the French national diet.

"People today are spending a lot less for everyday life and spending more on leisure and pleasure," said Verot, whose Maison Verot provides pates, sausages, catering services and even wines for residents of the industrial city of St. Etienne.

A few search out and demand the best food, but many French settle for mundane meals or products that are faster to obtain or easier to prepare. "There is a gap" in the quality level they demand, Verot acknowledged.

While many American women and men are using leisure time to craft French culinary creations at home, the French have been exploring supermarkets and fast-food restaurants and eating frozen foods from large refrigerators or freezers they have purchased only recently. Bread is purchased at the bakery instead of being made at home. A pate of hors d-oeuvre for company is bought at a shop such as Verot's.

Maison Verot has changed with the times, not by reducing quality, but by breaking out of the traditional small-shop mold. Verot and his brother sell wine, cater receptions in a St. Etienne mansion on Sundays, the day the shop is closed, and have begun manufacturing products. Instead of being solely dependent on day-to-day business in the neighborhood, they are able to profit from the special-occasion customer as well.

"People go to a luxury restaurant for a special occasion," Verot said. "For that event the price doesn't matter. But each day I have to provide a good pate for a reasonable price to a woman on a budget."

Verot's 19-year-old nephew, Jean-Marc, accompanied him as an assistant. He has been learning the manufacturing end of the craft for the past three years. But he had another purpose. As a business-school student, he wanted to observe American food businesses at first hand.

Here are three easy steps to help you reinvest in new Canada Savings Bonds

1 Locate and identify your bonds

☐ 1969/70 Series (S24) maturing November 1, 1978,
Look for "S24" or "SR" preceding the serial number on the corner of your maturing bonds.

2 Find out the cash value of your bonds

At maturity, every holder of "S24" or "SR" bonds will receive the face value shown on the bond, plus a special cash bonus payment. In addition, depending on the type of bond you own and whether you have been clipping your interest coupons, you may also be entitled to receive interest up to an amount equal to the face value of your bonds. For example, if you own a $1,000 Coupon Bond with all interest coupons attached, you will receive at maturity:

	S24	SR
Face Value	$1,000.00	$1,000.00
Cash Bonus Payment	115.00	177.50
Regular and Compound Interest	1,000.00	1,000.00
TOTAL VALUE	$2,115.00	$2,177.50

If you have any questions about the value of your bonds, just ask the people where you bank or invest after October 1.

3 Special arrangements make it easy to reinvest

After October 1, simply present your "S24" and "SR" Series Canada Savings Bonds to your bank or other authorized redemption agent. All the paper work in connection with the redemption of your bonds will be done for you at that time. Holders of "SR" bonds will receive their funds immediately. For "S24" bonds the transfer of funds will take place automatically on November 1, the maturity date of this Series.

In the same transaction, you can sign up for your new Canada Savings Bonds. And this year there is a dual purchase limit. You may reinvest all proceeds from your maturing bonds, including face value, cash bonus and interest, in the new Series. In addition, you may also buy up to $30,000 of the new Bonds. It's a great way to keep your money working for you!

Act soon

There are more than 900,000 Canadians who own maturing bonds. If you are one of them, go to your bank, investment dealer, trust company or credit union as soon as possible after October 1 and avoid the rush!

New Canada Savings Bonds offer you a great choice

New Canada Savings Bonds are dated November 1, 1978 and yield an average annual interest of 8.90% when held to maturity in 1985. Each new bond earns interest of 8.50% the first year and 9% for each of the remaining 6 years.

And you have a choice of bonds. There's a Regular Interest Bond that pays interest each year by cheque or, if you prefer, by direct deposit into your chequing or savings account. And a Compound Interest Bond that reinvests your interest automatically after the first year at the guaranteed annual rate of 8.90%.

Whichever type of bond you choose, you will own a safe, secure investment which can be turned into instant cash whenever you need it. Buying Canada Savings Bonds has been a great Canadian tradition for over 30 years. They're the proven choice.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Over the years I've read many letters in your column from people complaining that a friend, relative or neighbor habitually imposes on them. Then they ask, "What should I do?" And you always trot out your stock answer, "TELL THEM HOW YOU FEEL!"

Then I'd say to myself, "What a cop-out. Everybody knows that, but they're hoping Abby can offer some magic words that will make it easier for them."

Then I was faced with a very irritating situation. A couple I'd known for years made a habit of dropping by our lake cottage uninvited every Sunday morning. They'd even bring some of their friends and spend the entire day eating our food, drinking our beer, and using our towels which we'd find wet all over the place.

I finally got fed up and told this couple in no uncertain terms that they are not to come over unless invited!

At first they were hurt, but they got over it, and when we invited them they came gladly. We're still good friends, and now I'm sorry I didn't tell them sooner.

I just want to say that what appears to be a stock answer, "TELL THEM HOW YOU FEEL," shouldn't be dismissed as a cop-out. It's really the only workable solution to many a tough problem.

READER

DEAR READER: Thanks, I needed that. Telling someone how you feel doesn't necessarily mean telling them off.

DEAR ABBY: Is divorce contagious? I'm beginning to think it is. It seems to break out in large numbers in certain communities, and even in certain families.

If divorce is contagious, some smart scientist could make a fortune if he came up with a vaccine to prevent it. What are your thoughts on the subject?

YOUNG PROFESSOR

DEAR PROF: Divorce is not contagious, but it breaks out in certain communities because some people who have only considered it have gathered the courage to go through with it after friends and relatives have made the daring plunge.

The only way to prevent divorce is to eliminate marriage.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when people ask to borrow your comb?

I wash my hair and comb it every day before school, and find it very annoying when kids ask me if they can use it.

I feel like a snob and get mean looks if I say no. What alternatives do I have?

ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: Carry two. One for your own use, and the other for lending.

Don't Skin Those Spuds

QUESTION:

Do potatoes cooked in the skin really have a higher nutritional value than other potatoes?

ANSWER:

If you cook any vegetables in larger pieces you will help to retain more nutrients, especially ascorbic acid and thiamin. More nutrients will be retained if the skins are left on the potato, also if less time and water are used in the cooking. Cook by boiling, steaming or baking only until the potato or other vegetable is edible. Use a minimum of water and do not overcook!

QUESTION:

I am confused. I have to lower my triglyceride level, but I cannot find any information about the triglyceride content of food.

ANSWER:

Triglyceride is the chemical name for fat. If a tablespoon of oil contains 14 grams of fat then it contain 14 grams of triglyceride. In any food composition tables where the fat content of a food is listed it also indicates the triglyceride content.

The fats in the blood are usually referred to as the TRIGLYCERIDES. The fat content in the blood varies throughout the day and is usually higher a few hours after eating. The level of fat in the blood of some people is influenced more by the carbohydrate (sugars and starches) content of the diet than by the fat content of the diet.

Alcohol also may influence the fat content or the triglyceride level, of the blood. As the level of fat in the blood is influenced by many factors, I would advise you to ask your doctor for a dietary consultation with the dietitian at your local hospital, or health unit.

QUESTION:

Is bread fattening?

ANSWER:

No particular food is fattening. Food is fattening when your TOTAL food intake is greater than your body needs. The body cannot use the excess so it stores it as fat, as a reserve for the future. A continued excess of only 100 calories a day will gradually add 10 extra pounds a year. We should eat a balanced diet and select foods each day from the Four Food Groups in Canada's Food Guide.

The Four Food Groups are: Meat and Alternates; Milk and Milk products; Fruits and Vegetables; and Bread and Cereals. Canada's Food guide suggests 3 servings of Bread and Cereal daily, preferably whole grain, as they are important sources of carbohydrate, the B vitamins, and iron.

If you want to reduce your intake of calories, choose foods recommended by Canada's Food Guide and omit the zero foods, such as candy, pop, cake, cookies, pies, and chocolate bars.

Feeling Tired, Listless? Check Your B Vitamins

By DR. JEAN MAYER and DR. JOHANNA DWYER

Is your blood tired? Are you pale, wan and listless? Then, as the ads proclaim, you may need more iron. Indeed, you may have iron-deficiency anemia.

However, there are other forms of anemia which, though less prevalent, are not caused by lack of iron but a deficiency of various vitamins.

A sufficient shortage of one or both of two B vitamins — folic acid and vitamin B-12 — may cause anemia.

In general, all the B vitamins play a vital role in the breakdown and utilization of dietary fats, proteins and carbohydrates. But folic acid and B-12, are required in addition for the synthesis of nucleic acids, in particular the key substance called DNA, the constituent of cell nuclei which determines heredity. For red blood cells to be formed, DNA must be made in parent cells in the bone marrow.

The difference between the form of anemia that results from iron deficiency and those that involve a lack of folic acid or B-12 is not apparent to the naked eye. But a sample of blood placed under a microscope immediately reveals the cause. A deficiency of iron causes fewer and smaller red blood cells to be made. A deficiency of folic acid, or vitamin B-12 also causes fewer red cells to be produced, but many of these cells are giant and malformed.

If folic acid deficiency is the cause, the damage ends there because supplements of folic acid will reverse the process, and a correction in diet can cure the anemia permanently. But if the cause is a deficiency of vitamin B-12, complications can follow if the deficiency is prolonged.

Vitamin B-12 is necessary for the synthesis of myelin, the sheath of tissue that surrounds nerve fibers. Without it, nerve tissue in the brain and spinal cord slowly degenerate until (sometimes after many years) the damage becomes irreversible. Incidentally, you don't suddenly develop a B-12 deficiency. It generally takes years of deprivation.

Dr. Victor Herbert, an authority on vitamin B-12, has observed that damage to the nervous system without the anemia is more likely to occur in people who are financially well off, while poorer people tend to have both the anemia and nerve degeneration. He explains it this way: the well-to-do person is more likely to eat fresh fruits and vegetables, which are rich in folic acid.

A poor diet is not the only cause of B-12 or folic acid deficiency. Chronic alcoholism, malabsorption caused by intestinal disorders or surgery, heredity factors (such as Addisonian pernicious anemia, a disorder of B-12 absorption) and, possibly, oral contraceptives can all raise the requirement for one or both of these vitamins. In any of these conditions a physician should prescribe a treatment.

For most of us, however, a good diet is a good safeguard. Folic acid, as its name suggests, is especially abundant in leafly vegetables, in liver, dried beans, peas and other legumes, nuts, whole wheat, and in some fruits, such as oranges. Large amounts of folic acid can be destroyed both by heat and by exposure to air, so it is best to use fresh foods, raw or lightly cooked, and store them out of the air in a cool place.

THE HORSE BIKE

BONN (Reuter) — The newest thing in bicycles is one that is ridden like a horse.

The bouncing bike looks like a conventional machine, but instead of pedalling up and down with alternate feet the rider sits as on a horse and presses both feet down at the same time.

The Hercules Cycle Co. of Nuremberg, which says it's the world's oldest bicycle maker, announced it has signed a declaration of intent to acquire the West German manufacturing rights for the Bals bike, invented by German engineer Gunter Bals.

The machine will be marketed for between $175 and $225, and sales of 10,000 are expected in the first year.

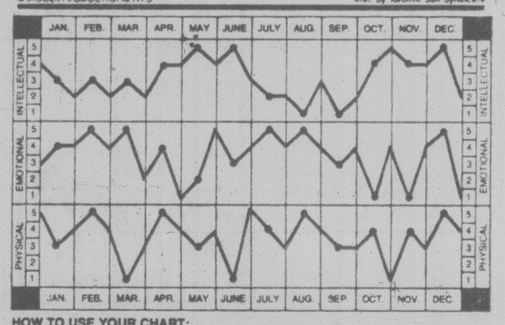

Bio-dex

Sept. 29/78 By Ken J. Michaels

Your computerized biorhythm

©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978

Dist by Toronto Sun Syndicate

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle- You may find yourself in an embarrassing situation this evening. Be careful where you go and what you eat for dinner.

6-10 Neutral Cycle- Avoid taking unnecessary risks if you plan to travel this weekend. The car you travel in should be checked.

11-15 Positive Cycle- A person wearing dark pants may come to your attention. Play your hunch and answer all questions frankly.

In many parts of the country the trees are beginning to put on their magnificent fall display of color. The highway departments will tell drivers to "Watch the road — not the trees", and that's sound advice. Let me add another warning: Watch your Bio-dex! No need to stay home when your Bio-dex is low — just take extra care, keep your eyes on the road and the other guy, and go easy on the gas.

Dr. L. L. COLEMAN

No Guesswork Needed Here

I think I have low blood sugar. Sometimes, for no apparent reason, I feel faint and begin to perspire. It's very embarrassing when this happens in the office. Is there any diet that's good for this condition? — Miss S.L.

Dear Miss L.:

You think that you have low blood sugar? That "thinking" may be the real basis for your problem. Guesswork about low blood sugar (hypoglycemia) is never an effective diagnostic procedure. For there are dozens of reasons for faintness, dizziness, sweating, palpitation and nervousness.

Hypoglycemia, in the past decade, has become a "fashionable" disease. For some unknown reason, it has become a popular self-made diagnosis which, in many instances, is not substantiated by a complete physical examination.

The word and the idea seem to have captivated the imagination of sophisticates, even in the absence of any positive medical proof.

There is no guesswork about hypoglycemia. Few tests are more reliable than the blood sugar studies that must be done to definitively show its presence.

For those who have had glucose tolerance tests that are positive, the diet for the relief of symptoms of low sugar is very exact. A diet high in proteins and low in carbohydrates and sugars is most important. Perhaps the most significant aspect of this diet is that it should be eaten in at least six to eight sittings during a 24-hour period.

It would be obviously ridiculous to embark on any such diet until all avenues of diagnosis have been exhausted to determine the exact cause of your transitory episodes of discomfort.

Is it dangerous for someone with an ulcer to take a long flight to Europe? — Mr. F.

Dear Mr. F.:

A jet flight does not exert any special body stress on those people who have chronic duodenal or gastric (stomach) ulcers. Certainly, anyone who is in the midst of an acute attack would do himself an injustice to be separated from the security of his own doctor. This, of course, similarly applies to flying to a far-distant land with any acute medical problem.

Although the flight itself may not affect the condition, the anxiety level would be so high that the pleasure of a European holiday would be diminished.

Incidentally, are you aware that a new drug, cimeditine, now does wonders for the more rapid control of the gastric secretions responsible for ulcers? A double reason for consulting your doctor!

ANTI-CANCER AGENT TESTED

BATH, England (CP) — A chemical agent that shows high activity against cancer of the breast has been synthesised at Bath University.

Dr. Malcolm Sainsbury of the university's chemistry department said that the agent is one of a group derived from a substance produced from a plant growing in Australia and the Pacific.

Speaking during the annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, he said the chemical involved was called ellipticine. At least 20,000 man hours of research had gone into its development.

Large-scale clinical trials of the anti-breast cancer agent now are being carried out.

Dr. Sainsbury revealed the chemical's existence in a lecture on natural substances in the fight against cancer. He said that the basic chemical from the plant attracted research workers because it was relatively simple in structure as well as being active. Therefore, synthetic versions and variations of it were easy to make.

In theory a billion derivatives were possible but obviously these had to be narrowed down. The agent now undergoing trials is only one of a number that may prove valuable.

Treatment is by injection in a cancer site. The agent is a flat molecule which apparently inserts itself into the spiral strands of the nucleic acids of a cell. This distorts their form, unwinding them so that they cannot replicate. Instead of multiplying, the cells die.

Dr. Sainsbury said that no explanation had yet been found for the chemical's preference for cancer cells over healthy ones. He emphasised that treatment for one form of cancer might be useless against another. But he was confident that research would pay off. It would eventually be possible to synthesize drugs to conquer common forms of cancer with negligible side effects.

Parents Get Help

OTTAWA (CP) — A workshop at Algonquin College gives guidance to parents of pre-school children. Topics discussed include physical activity, stories, music, crafts and imaginative play.

New Snappy Spelling

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Schoolchildren here are gaining the chance to learn to spell correctly with a new approach called morphographic spelling.

Developed four years ago in the U.S., morphographs are the "smallest units of meaning in written language." Er, for example, is an English morphograph meaning more — as in longer or quicker.

Ron Posno, special education consultant for the London board of education, says morphographs are always spelled according to specific rules. Students memorize the morphographs and are taught consistent rules for combining them.

The program teaches pupils more than 12,000 words in 140 20-minute lessons. Designed for use with students in any grade from 4 through 12, it teaches principles for spelling nearly all English words.

The teacher leads the class from a handbook that indicates exactly what the instructor is to say and when and how students should respond.

With the teacher's snapping fingers setting the tempo, the class immerses itself in the words and rules being taught — including a great deal of oral spelling done in unison with eyes closed, eyes open, with the teacher spelling along, without the teacher spelling.

Posno said morphographic spelling has been in Canada for about three years. The approach has not been tested on a large scale in either Canada or the U.S., but is expected to be in the next several years.

He said the morphographic system only teaches spelling and is no substitute for a total language approach that also concentrates on grammar, reading and comprehension.

FACT. All mattresses are not born equal.

Only Beautyrest* has the "The Hidden Difference" of individually pocketed coils. It's a difference you can feel.
In a Beautyrest, each coil is in its own individual pocket of fabric, not wired to its neighbour, as in conventional mattresses. This means that each coil can give where your anatomy applies pressure, yet "resist" and support you without being dragged down by its neighbour. There is none of that "hammocking" effect that is inevitable when ordinary coil springs are wired together. Beautyrest . . . a very fine investment, because it lasts so many years. All Beautyrest mattresses and box springs are 'Sanitized'.®

Pay-Price Spiral Could Be Costly

TORONTO (CP) — A return to wage-and-price controls or a move toward policies that would cause a massive increase in unemployment could be in the offing if wage increases start spiralling again, a chief official of the new federal monitoring agency has warned.

Robert Douglas, executive-director of the Centre for the Study of Inflation and Productivity, said in a speech to the National Dairy Council of Canada that there is a danger some groups will try to make up for recent food price increases by demanding large pay raises.

"If wage increases start to rise again, we could break out into another wage and price spiral that would threaten all the gains we have made in restoring our international competitiveness," Douglas said.

"Such a wage-and-price spiral would hurt the dollar badly and would pose some difficult policy choices for the government—either a return to controls or a massive increase in unemployment as restrictive monetary and fiscal policies squeeze the real growth out of the economy.

"These are not very palatable choices and it makes our behavior over the next few months all that much more crucial," Douglas said.

Wage-and-price controls, with a pay-increase limit of six per cent this year, are being gradually eliminated. At the same time, devaluation of the dollar—which closed below 85 cents U.S. Tuesday—has made Canadian industry more competitive with foreign producers.

Douglas noted that recently food prices have been rising at an annual rate of 17 per cent. But economists at the centre, which was set up to monitor and report on wage and price trends as the controls are removed, expect food prices to level off for the rest of the year.

But there was a danger that with food prices rising faster than wages, some groups would become "impatient" and not wait for the anticipated moderation, he added.

Douglas said the centre, with a staff of 75 compared with the Anti-Inflation Board's 900, will not set any numerical guides for wage and price increases and has no power to regulate or roll back.

"The centre does not have the resources, the mandate or the intention to watch everything that goes on in the economy; we must be selective."

BEAR DEATH SUED FILED

REGINA (CP) — An examination into the bear-mauling death of a five-year-old city girl last year in Waterton Lakes National Park in southwestern Alberta will be held here Nov. 2-3.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Muser of Regina are suing the federal government for the death of their daughter Allison July 1, 1977 near Cameron Creek in the park. The parents claim the federal parks branch was negligent in not warning visitors about the dangers of bears.

Barry Collins, defence lawyer for the department of justice, said the examination will allow both parties to cross examine each other and "sort out the facts."

New Bush Plane Flight-Tested

EDMONTON (CP) — The Cox Turbo Otter, considered by some as an airplane which will revolutionize bush flying, has taken its first test flight at Canadian Forces Base Nameo.

The plane is a $1.4-million conversion of a standard single-engine DeHavilland Otter powered by a small, light Pratt and Whitney PT6A-27 turbine engine instead of the obsolete Pratt and Whitney piston engine.

The conversion, masterminded by bush pilot Ray Cox and aeronautical engineer Aimo Pitkanen, is designed to reduce maintenance and permit starts in temperatures as low as -40 degrees Celsius.

It also will permit the Otter to take off on a 50-metre runway, instead of the standard Otter's 300-metre runway.

"Now I know how the Wright brothers felt on their first test flight," said Cox as he and some 200 others watched the plane go through its paces Tuesday.

The Turbo Otter is expected to be certified by the federal ministry of transport in January, when Cox's 20-man operation will begin converting standard Otters to turbine power. Cost will be about $350,000 a plane.

Cox, who financed his prototype with a $350,000 loan from the Alberta government and from family sources, said request for conversions have come from as far away as Africa and South America.

'Flaws' Noted In Bank Bill

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some of the proposals in the new banking legislation being considered by Parliament contain "fundamental flaws", said the chairman of the Bank Act revision committee of the Canadian Bankers' Association Tuesday.

Robert MacIntosh said in an address to a service club that the idea of expanding the membership of the Canadian Payments Association to include credit unions and trust companies would mean that the federal government had "agreed to concede significant power over the payments system to the provinces."

Under the current system, chartered banks are entrusted with the operation of the payment system by which funds are transferred from one person or business to another.

MacIntosh said the proposal would lead to different controls and inspection procedures by member companies and it also raises questions about the ability of some provincial bodies to meet their obligations.

It may be that the federal government will not require provincial governments to provide proof that the inspection and control over provincial institutions is the same as its own control over banks, said MacIntosh.

"Just wait until someday you are holding a cheque paid to you by a debtor and drawn on a financial institution which has regrettably failed overnight," he said.

MacIntosh said bankers are also concerned revisions relating to foreign banks. He said foreign banks now account for at least $3 billion in commercial credit in Canada but they operate under provincial legislation and entirely outside federal control.

"This creates the ridiculous situation that foreign bank subsidiaries can perform some functions in Canada which Canadian banks cannot," he said.

"All we are asking is that the foreign banks be brought under the same sort of legal constraints and requirements we have ourselves, and the intent of the new Bank Act revision is to do this," he said.

Puppets Star

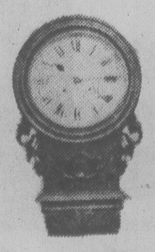

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — Herbie Horse, Freddie Frog and Farmer John all appreciate the work of Suzie Sun and Willie Wind although Farmer John is slow in catching on. What happened during a 20-minute show presented to local children recently, was that Farmer John came under the influence of Mr. Meanie Energy. The crazy names and lesson taught to the children by the puppet show—don't waste energy.

U.S. Blamed For Deaths From Fallout

LAS VEGAS (WP) — Three widows, their children and the parents of a 14-year-old boy, claiming millions of dollars in damages, Wednesday charged that radioactive fallout from atom-bomb testing in Nevada killed their husbands, fathers and son.

The action is the first time that death claims have been filed against the government on behalf of civilians whose only connection with the bomb testing program was to have lived in the path of its radioactive clouds.

The relatives alleged, in damage claims filed with the U.S. government here, that negligence or carelessness in the above-ground testing of scores of A-bombs in the 1950s resulted in three fatal cases of leukemia and one of lymphoma.

The claims are apparently only the first in an expected series of attempts to officially pin responsibility on the nuclear testing program for the loss of loved ones.

Relatives of four other southwest Utah and northwest Arizona residents are expected to file similar claims soon. These will link three more leukemia deaths, an one of multiple myeloma to the A-bomb fallout that time and again wafted over the area's residents to the tune of repeated assurances of safety from federal officials.

For years, many people living downwind of the testing site had believed that radioactive fallout was responsibile for a seemingly high incidence of leukemia and other cancers in their midst.

But they have now been moved to act, apparently because of disclosures of leukemia cases among soldiers at a 1957 test blast dubbed "Smoky," and the awarding of veterans benefits to one serviceman who blamed his leukemia on Smoky.

The leukemia and other cancer deaths among civilians have left sorrow and bitterness among friends and relatives on the ranches and in the tiny towns that dot the mountains and valleys of southwest Utah and northwest Arizona.

They caustically recall that bombs were set off only when the wind blew fallout toward them but were not detonated if fallout would be carried to Las Vegas.

"We were just guinea pigs, and then we became statistics," says Irma Thomas, a St. George, Utah, resident who has waged a long, fruitless effort for federal recognition of the issue.

Dale Haralson, a Tucson lawyer, said that claims related to eight deaths had been filed or were imminent. He said that his clients alone represent six leukemias, among 2,000 people in the Kanab, Utah, and Fredonia, Ariz., area. A normal rate, he said, is six cases in a population of 100,000.

Comet Shower Brought Life: Experts

LONDON (AP) — Two of Britain's most distinguished astronomers have theorized that life on earth did not result from the bubblings of some primeval soup but from showers of comets and meteorites from outer space four billion years ago.

The theory, put forward by Sir Fred Hoyle and Prof. Chandra Wickramasinghe in a book published today, suggests that life elsewhere in our galaxy is almost a certainty.

Hoyle and Wickramasinghe, who is head of the department of applied mathematics and astronomy at University College, Cardiff, base their ideas on the relatively recent discovery of a number of organic molecules in space.

In their new book, Lifecloud, the two astronomers said discovery of those molecules means the building blocks of life are widely distributed throughout space and need only the right conditions for evolution to begin.

"Since other planets probably exist in vast numbers — there may well be 10 billion or more stars with planets in our galaxy alone — the prospect for the emergence of life on a galactic scale appears very favorable," they wrote.

Hoyle and Wickramasinghe have submitted that the earth's oceans and the atmosphere might have provided conditions receptive enough for life to survive and evolve when a comet containing the necessary precursors of life arrived.

The astronomers suggested that physical travel to or from other civilizations is unlikely simply because of the huge time scales involved. But they said communication with other civilizations by radio signals may be possible during a shorter time scale, although even that would take a few thousand years for a message to arrive.

Glaucoma Drug Gets U.S. Okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pharmaceutical company Merck Sharp and Dohme announced U.S. approval Wednesday of a new drug to treat glaucoma, an eye disease that can cause permanent blindness.

The West Point, Pa., company said the new drug Timoptic had won approval by the Food and Drug Administration and would be available to opthalmologists in the United States next week.

Glaucoma is a buildup of fluid pressure inside the eye that can damage the optic nerve and gradually destroy sight if left undiagnosed and untreated.

The company said Timoptic, the firm's trade name for timolol maleate, effectively controls elevated fluid pressure without the blurring of vision or irritation often associated with other glaucoma drugs now on the market.

The drug is already available in Denmark, the Netherlands, Iceland and Switzerland.

'Vitamin B-15' Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) announced Wednesday the recall or seizure of several thousand dollars worth of "vitamin B-15," an unapproved substance whose promoters claim can treat a wide variety of ailments.

The so-called vitamin, also called calcium pangamate or pangamic acid, was developed by the inventor of Laetrile, a substance purported to be a cancer cure which the National Institutes of Health has said is worthless.

The FDA says the chemical structure of "vitamin B-15" has not been defined, that there are no studies to show it is a vitamin or nutrient, and it is not known to be safe.

The FDA said Super X Drug Stores of Cincinnati, Ohio, recalled more than 15,000 bottles containing the substance and labelled Pangam-15 (B-15) after a government inspector informed the store that the product, manufactured by Natures Bounty Inc. of Bohemia, N.Y., is not an approved dietary supplement.

Promoters of the product have claimed it is effective in treating a variety of ailments ranging from heart disease and diabetes to alcoholism, hepatitis and skin conditions.

But Wayne Pines, a spokesman for the FDA, said there has been "no scientific substantiation for the elaborate claims made for it" and the product's safety and usefulness are unknown.

CARTER HAS LEBANON PEACE PLAN

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Carter has told reporters that he is developing a peace plan to end the bloodshed in Lebanon.

ABC television, quoting a senior Carter administration official, reported Carter's "next project" in the Middle East is to resolve the current conflict in Lebanon and that both Israel and Syria would be involved.

ABC correspondent Frank Reynolds said the official told him that the plan is in its initial stages.

Lebanon Palace Shelled

BEIRUT (AP) — Shellfire hit the Lebanese presidential palace and the courtyard of the premier's office today as Syrian gunners and Christian militia engaged in their heaviest fighting since the Camp David summit ended almost two weeks ago.

The Christians' radio station accused the Syrians of escalating hostilities to try to create suitable grounds for undermining the Camp David accords. Syria leads the Arab coalition opposed to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace negotiations with Israel.

A police spokesman said direct hits blasted the water reservoirs of the presidential palace in Baabda, eight kilometres east of Beirut, and shattered the glass front of the palace press room.

President Elias Sarkis was in another part of the palace and the press room was empty, the spokesman said.

Crash Warning Futile

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — About 40 seconds before the worst plane crash in U.S. history, a new warning system sounded an alarm that a jetliner was about to collide with a small plane. But controllers talking to the pilots could not hear the alarm, and those who could were unable to contact them.

A computerized warning system in operation a little more than a month sounded an alert at the Miramar air control station while the tower at Lindbergh Field — eight miles away — was controlling the flights, the chief federal crash investigator said Wednesday night.

A shrieking siren sounded, warning of the impending collision at 3,000 feet between a Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 and a single-engine Cessna that killed at least 150 persons Monday.

The system signaled the alert only 40 seconds before the collision "and possibly less," Phillip Hogue, head of the National Transportation Safety Board investigation team, told a news conference.

But the warning was not received by controllers at Lindbergh Field — where both pilots intended to land — which had taken over guidance of the two planes minutes before, he said.

Controllers at Miramar, who had broken radio contact with the pilots, frantically called the Lindbergh Tower to relay the warning and urge the jetliner pilot to climb.

But they were too late, he said. The Lindbergh tower told them "PSA is going down."

Both pilots had been given routine advisories about the proximity of the other plane on two different occasions, he said, the first when the jetliner was three miles from the airport and the second when it was one mile away.

PSA Capt. James McFeron acknowledged both advisories, Hogue said. But garbled recordings of the radio transmission made it unclear whether the pilot of the small plane responded to both alerts or only the first.

Hogue said investigators were playing down the theory a third plane was in the same air space and contributed to the crash. Investigators had speculated the other plane confused the jetliner pilot into thinking he had the small plane in sight, not realizing he was looking at the wrong plane.

The pilot of a "third plane" located Wednesday turned out to have been seven to eight miles west of the jetliner when it was hit, indicating he was too far away to have been involved, Hogue said.

Investigators have not completely eliminated the "third plane" possibility, he said, "but it would appear not to be a factor."

The Bridge Expert

The late Helen Sobel was acknowledged to be one of the finest players the world has ever seen. Although she was an all-round excellent player of the cards, her defensive play was superlative. An example can be observed in today's deal, which was played in the Vanderbilt Cup Championships of 1945. She was sitting West.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

2 ♡	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♣.

Not having any desirable opening lead, Mrs. Sobel elected to open the ace of clubs. At trick two she led the club deuce, dummy's king taking the trick. On this lead South discarded his four of spades.

A spade was then played to South's ace, after which a second spade lead was ruffed in dummy. Declarer's problem now was how to get back to the South hand to ruff his last spade with dummy's remaining trump. He feared that West had no more clubs, so he cashed dummy's ace and king of diamonds preparatory to trumping a third diamond lead. On the diamond king Mrs. Sobel dropped the queen!

Declarer now had to do some more thinking. After considerable musing, he apparently decided to trust the fall of the diamond queen somewhat more than the club opening as being from doubleton. So he led a club off dummy, East following suit with a low club.

After some more thought, he decided to ruff with the heart seven instead of with the nine or jack, for he would need the high hearts more the next time he ruffed a club or a diamond lead out of dummy.

The upshot of it was that West overruffed the seven with the eight and led another trump. East now had to get a trump and a spade trick; and the contract went down one.

In retrospect, declarer could have made the hand in many different ways. However, whether he played the hand correctly or not, is really immaterial, for his play should not be permitted to detract from Mrs. Sobel's excellent falsecard of the diamond queen. Had she not played this card, declarer would have led a third diamond to get back to his hand for the ruffing of his remaining spade.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, September 29
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Idea which had been on back burner will come to fruition. You will be at right place at right time — you gain recognition and chance to prove a major thesis. Display versatility. Be alert, cheerful. You are going to win!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You can make correct decision which adds up to a bigger bank account. Follow hunch, use lessons learned in recent past. Cancer, Capricorn, Aquarius persons figure prominently — and so does the number 11. Yes, you will locate item that has been missing or lost.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be active, shake off fears, doubts — cycle is high and your judgment is on target. Know it and act as if aware of it. Be a self-starter. Highlight independence, originality; encourage new contacts. Accept challenges. You're a front-runner!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be meticulous concerning details — take nothing for granted, especially in connection with sales, rentals, leases. Aquarius, Gemini, Scorpio persons figure prominently. A clandestine conference could be scheduled.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Social life accelerates — a Gemini makes you laugh and also provides needed information. Gloom is chased — you have reason to pull out all stops for a celebration. Smile! Your sunny, Leo personality wins the day!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make peace at home, defer to wishes of family member. Accent on authorities, those who call the shots and pull the strings. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure prominently. You get money from surprise source.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Survey long-range prospects — be aware of cultural gaps, differences. Do some market research. Pisces, Virgo and possible contractual obligations figure in scenario. Give full play to instinct, intuition. You are going to obtain some vital answers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on responsibility, investment, involvement, discussing budget with partner, mate. Older individual expects you to fulfill obligation — and you should. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently — and so does the number 8.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emphasis on testing, finding out whether you are in love or a victim of habit pattern. Aries, Libra figure prominently. A partnership — or marriage proposal — commands spotlight. Hold off on new project. You have to tie some loose ends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get basic information, work out plan, make dependents understand they must pull their own weight. Be creatively selfish — protect your own interests. Being self-sacrificing now merely encourages ridicule.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good Moon aspect coincides now with getting to heart of matters. Your feelings, style, individuality dominate — you can make sweeping, significant changes. Know it and be confident. Member of opposite sex does care — very much.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You'll be more relaxed in your own environment. Versatility, art, charm, humor could flourish — where you live! Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Individual who has been free and easy in making claims may now have to back them up — and it's to your advantage.

IF SEPTEMBER 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY — You are intuitive, sensitive, perceptive, capable of learning through process of teaching others. Aquarius, Cancer, Leo persons play key roles in your life. You make new start in October — the 7th, 16th and 25th of that month will be productive, significant, memorable days. You seek justice, but attract those who want the scales balanced to their advantage. You're no angel, but probably "too good" for many who are around you.

Brigades Kill Worker

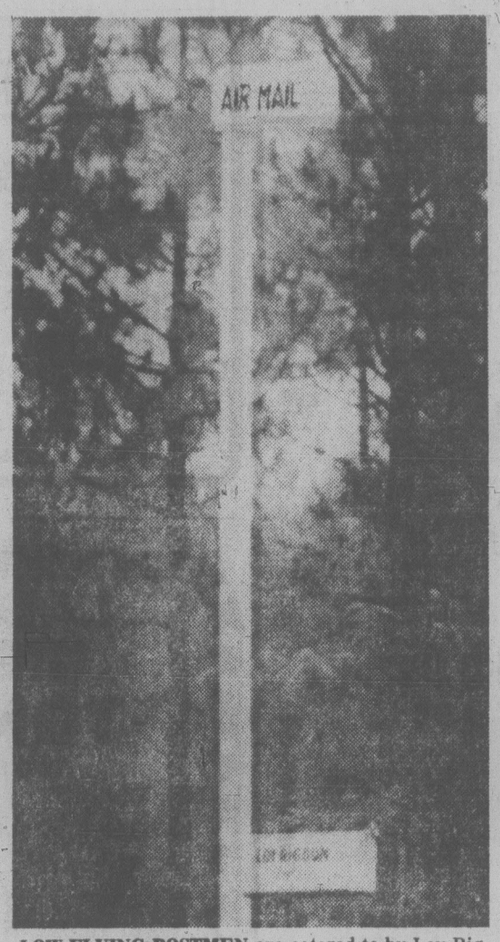

TURIN, Italy (AP) — An auto factory foreman was shot and killed by Red Brigades terrorists today as he was leaving his apartment to go to work.

It was the first fatal terrorist strike in Italy in three months, since terrorists killed a prison guard last June during the trial of Red Brigades leaders here.

Two men and a woman fired at least 10 pistol shots at Piero Coggiola, a 46-year-old foreman at the Lancia factory, as he left his apartment house and approached his car to drive to work, police said. The trio fled in a car driven by a fourth terrorist.

A man later telephoned the Turin newspaper La Stampz and said: "We are the Red Brigades. We have kneecapped Lancia foreman Coggiola."

The call indicated the terrorists did not know they fatally wounded the foreman and that they intended only to shoot him in the legs, their usual mode of attack.

Nuclear Accord Near

NEW YORK (Reuter) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators, amid signs they are nearing agreement, today went into a second round of talks on a new accord to limit nuclear arms.

Informed U.S. sources said agreement is close on a new strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT), and talks this week between State Secretary Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko might remove the final obstacles.

One U.S. source said it is too soon to predict the outcome "but we are hoping to make substantial progress this week."

ABC television correspondent Frank Reynolds, who was among a selected group of dinner guests at the White House Tuesday, reported in a broadcast Wednesday night that a top administration official had said the United States and the Soviet Union are "very close" to a SALT accord.

"We could now agree to their proposals, and they could agree to ours, were it not for the pride of authorship," the official was quoted as saying.

A SALT signing ceremony with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev might be held in Washington before the end of this year, ABC also quoted the top official as saying.

The opening session here Wednesday of the latest Vance-Gromyko meeting lasted 2¼ hours and was devoted entirely to SALT.

Warning System a Waste?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Failure of an expensive new computer system might block early warning of aircraft or missile attack against Canada or the United States, the General Accounting Office (GAO) says.

Despite cost overruns of more than $100 million, the GAO says the new North American Air Defence Command (NORAD) computer system, "will have an information processing capability no better" than equipment it is to replace.

Based in Colorado Springs, Colo., NORAD runs a defence network aimed at providing the earliest possible warning of attack. It also monitors Soviet satellites.

The GAO, an investigative arm of Congress, says a central element in the new 427M system, a computer designed to process signals from all missile, bomber and space monitoring stations, might block the information from reaching central command posts if it fails.

A second computer is designed to take over if the first fails, but some circumstances might still produce a delay in communications of up to 15 minutes, the GAO says.

If both machines fail, the GAO says, the system "could take up to two hours to repair and this could be disastrous."

The GAO says the problem can be resolved by wiring the system in such a way that critical signals can still be read by other computers at NORAD. The GAO says NORAD and Aerospace Defence Command officials are considering that possibility and "feasible replacements" for the central computers.

The cost of the sophisticated new central computer system was pegged in 1972 at $90.6 million. But the GAO says various troubles have "resulted in escalating program costs — more than $100 million over" what was originally approved.

France Joins Arms Talks

PARIS (Reuter) — France formally announced Wednesday its return to regular international disarmament negotiations next January, ending a boycott started by then President de Gaulle 16 years ago.

The way was cleared for French participation in June when the United Nations decided to replace the 31-country Geneva disarmanent conference with an enlarged and more representative body to meet for the first time at the beginning of next year.

Creation of the new committee was the main achievement of the special UN General Assembly session on disarmament. The committee's composition closely follows proposals personally submitted at the UN by French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

The United States and the Soviet Union will no longer serve as co-chairmen. Instead the chairmanship will rotate on a monthly basis among all the committee members.

The presidential spokesman said Giscard d'Estaing told his cabinet Wednesday that "decisions taken at the special UN session in the spring make it possible for France to assume the place reserved for it in the committee."

"It will work for progress in genuine disarmament which will at the same time take account of the legitimate rights of all nations to security," the president added.

De Gaulle refused to allow French negotiators to attend the original Geneva conference when it opened in 1962 because he regarded it as an instrument of big-power domination.

Wheat Cartel Spurned

By CLAUDE ADAMS
Times Washingotn Bureau

WASHINGTON — A coalition of Canadian and U.S. senators seeking to float the idea of a wheat cartel that would set a fixed export price received no encouragement from the U.S. administration this week.

The U.S., which as the world's biggest grower and exporter of wheat effectively sets the global price, is not disposed to foist a minimum price — $4 a bushel, as is being suggested — on the rest of the world. At least not without the agreement of the importing countries.

That was the message Wednesday from a U.S. agriculture department official, Thomas Hughes, at a special meeting of the senators. Members of the group, who have been agitating for a cartel arrangement since they met in Winnipeg last summer, conceded that they aren't making much headway.

"Cartel" and "price-fixing" are unwelcome terms in Washington these days and the senators judiciously avoided using them, preferring to speak of "co-operation" and the financial pressures on wheat farmers on both sides of the border.

But their scheme, which would also involve Australia and Argentina, amounts to the same thing and the U.S. is cool to the idea, especially while talks to formulate an International Wheat Agreement are taking place in Europe.

Last summer, after the Winnipeg meeting, the leading American proponent of the idea, Senator George McGovern, wrote President Carter asking him to set up an "executive" task force to study "close co-operation" among the big four wheat exporters.

He never got a reply. Mr. Hughes said Wednesday the idea is so complicated that it requires more study.

Together, the U.S. and Canada supply about two-thirds of the wheat sold on the world market. Farmers groups in both countries insist they are being grossly under-compensated.

Wedding Send-Off Brought the Police

Girardi, 22, and his bride, Deborah, were married Saturday and set off on a honeymoon in Michigan's upper peninsula.

But on Monday, Baraga County sheriff's deputies forced Girardi's car to the side of the road and brusquely ordered Girardi to get out of the car.

One deputy frisked Girardi while the second searched the car, looking for a gun.

The police search was prompted by a telephone call from Cindy Nelson, 20, who worked at a service station in Three Lakes where the couple had stopped minutes earlier for gas.

When Ms. Nelson began to fill the tank, she found a note reading, "Help me, I'm being kidnapped. Call the police." She complied.

Girardi eventually convinced police his bride was not a kidnap victim but his brother had played a practical joke. Police allowed the Girardis to continue their honeymoon.

ESCAPED CON TREED BY BEAR

THUNDER BAY, Ont. — When Mark Dunville escaped from the Thunder Bay correctional centre he successfully dodged police and guards but still got caught — by a bear.

Early Tuesday evening, Leah Tronson went outside her home on Highway 61 near the correctional centre south of the city to stop her dog from barking.

When she heard a man calling for help, she went back in her house, locked the door and called police, who arrived with spotlights.

It wasn't long before they found the escaped prisoner perched atop an automobile corralled by a bear that had pursued him from the bush.

The animal fled when police arrived and the prisoner was captured.

EDMONTON — Hazel-eyed, dark-haired Linda Bochon was crowned Miss Edmonton 1979 Wednesday night.

The 24-year-old model and secretary read poems in English, French and Ukrainian in the talent presentation, then struggled unsuccessfully to hold back tears as the announcement was made that she had beaten out seven other finalists in a televised pageant.

MOSCOW — A Soviet-born businessman from Britain arrested while visiting Moscow in 1968 has been released after serving a 10-year labor camp term, dissident sources say.

The sources say 57-year-old Nikolai Sharygin was freed a week ago but refused to accept an internal passport identifying him as Soviet citizen because he wants to go back to Britain where he lived for 22 years before his arrest.

LONDON — Bill Carter, brother of U.S. President Carter, has arrived in Libya at the head of a people's delegation from Georgia, the Libyan news agency JANA reported today.

It said the visit, which began Wednesday is part of a policy of establishing good relations between Libya and "popular bodies and organizations in the world."

For Those With Everything

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Neiman-Marcus, the Dallas-based specialty store, is now offering the ultimate gift for the person who has everything — a granite mountain cavern to store it in.

Neiman-Marcus's just-released Christmas catalogue contains three "his and hers" temperature- and humidity-controlled vaults deep within a 2,100-metre mountain in Utah's Wasatch Range. The price — $90,000 for a 50-year lease.

"One may store here, with impunity and far from all uninvited eyes, the originals of oils you'd hate to lose, the real jewelry, a very rare vintage Bordeaux, a golden ingot or two . . ." the catalogue says.

Protecting the vault, in addition to its natural setting, is a surveillance system with closed-circuit and hair-trigger alarms powered by waterfall-generated electricity.

Caroline's Honor At Stake

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — Prince Rainier of Monaco and his daughter, Princess Caroline, sued a satirical Belgian weekly for the equivalent of $23,000 in libel damages Wednesday over an article about a Brazilian millionaire's insinuation that the princess was not a virgin when he knew her.

Counsels for Prince Rainier and his daughter, now married, brought the action against the weekly Pan for an article in January, 1977, which they said commented ironically on Prince Rainier's intention to sue Brazilian millionaire Francisco Scarpa over his comments.

In a television interview in October, 1976, Scarpa implied Princess Caroline was not a virgin when he met her. Criminal proceedings against him in Brazil were dropped after he said he did not know the princess personally and was not in a position to make revelations about her private life.

Pan said it would not apologize for the article, which it said did not cast a slur on Princess Caroline's honor.

Follies' Failings Forgiven

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

There are so many things right about the Dawson City Gaslight Follies that a reviewer feels inclined toward a forgiving mood over the most obvious weaknesses.

Some of the show at McPherson Playhouse goes off like a firecracker and some like a damp squib, but on the average it's pleasurable to good entertainment.

The "chorus line" of five girls has eye-appeal, can dance, sing and in the case of Ann McCutchen tootle a flute with such charm that one wishes the show had made more use of her talent.

The dancing, singing, instrumental talent — which includes pianist-banjoist-cornettist Greg Sumner and the banjo-comedy performance of Lyall Murdoch — and the show's several evocatively designed and professional looking sets lift the whole presentation well above average.

What pulls it down is its narration and deliberately but weakly pun-infested comedy.

The first-night audience responded with laughs and loud groans but this aspect of the show, apart from one or two reasonable sight-gags, needs sharpening.

There are nevertheless, a couple of comedy highlights which owe little to the writers but much to the actors. Memorable is Vancouver's Garfield White as prima donna "Madame Olga Petravitch", partnered by Victoria's Dave Denton-Dumbleton, in a hilarious duet sequence (Dave is a last-minute addition to the show and he's great).

The other highlight is almost any sequence involving Doug Cameron, a sleek, stylish and truly funny actor who makes his material seem much better than it is.

There is plenty of talent in the cast to supply all the energy this kind of show needs and it erupts intermittently throughout. But pacing is badly planned, there are episodes of unintelligible speech, and too much narration of the reminiscent kind interfering with the action.

Mark Smith is a genial Arizona Charlie Meadows, the real-life character who built and ran Dawson City's Palace Grand Theatre in the 1890s, but his narration episodes, framed and dimly spotlighted need much more vital and broader projection to sustain the energy which must invest slowed-down tempos as well as fast.

Gaslight Follies will be repeated tonight and Saturday. The Friday night spot is occupied by jazz violinist Stephane Grapelli.

Federal Cash For Seniors

Grants totalling $10,630 have been awarded to four Victoria senior citizen groups by the federal government New Horizons program.

A grant of $4,405 was given the Lower Vancouver Island Association for Widows (Widows' Information Centre), headed by Mrs. Eleanor Moseley. Members of this group operate the crisis centre, organize socials, and help with research and community groups.

The New Horizons Committee for Continuing Education received $3,150 to provide an education program for seniors. Mrs. Doreen White is president of this group.

The Lambrick Park Musical Group, widely known in Saanich, received $1,800 to continue its concerts, and the Capital Regional District New Horizons Group $1,275 to organize a one-day conference on the needs of seniors.

The seminar will include discussions groups, speakers and panels. Group president is James F. Oakman.

Contract Awarded

B.C. Hydro has awarded a $2,669,915 contract to Canada Wire and Cable Ltd. of Vancouver for supply and installation of an underground circuit in the Greater Victoria area.

The circuit is to be installed between Horsey substation in Victoria and the Esquimalt substation. Work on the project is expected to start early in 1979.

ESQUIMALT STUDENT REWARDED

W. Bruce Sampson, 453 Head, has received an education award from the Rotary Foundation for study abroad for 1979-80.

The award is for postgraduate study in economics at the University of Essex, England.

Lack of Industrial Growth Seen

By HOBART ROWEN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Real economic growth in the industrial countries will amount to only 3¾ per cent this year and in the first half of 1979, not enough to make any important reductions "in the substantial amount of prevailing economic slack."

This is a key conclusion of a report entitled "World Economic Outlook," circulated confidentially to the members of the International Monetary Fund' Executive Board just prior to the annual meeting concluding today.

This forecast contrasts with a more ebullient 5.2 per cent growth rate in 1976, which dropped to a 3.7 percent level in 1977 — where it seems to be stuck.

On the other hand, the staff paper makes some optimistic projections for 1979 reduction in the U.S. current account deficit (goods and services transactions) and in the Japanese current account surplus — projections which have formed the basis of mild optimism about strengthening of the foreign exchange rate of the dollar.

This optimism is not universally shared. Economist Edward M. Bernstein, whose private views are distributed regularly to central bankers, says that "markets can't wait for the trade balance to improve." Bernstein argues that an import surcharge may be necessary to curb excessive Japanese sales here.

Bernstein said that a key reason for the dollar's weakness is that oil-cartel countries for the first time have sold off assets held here, and invested them elsewhere. In the second quarter, according to Bernstein, the oil group sold about $2.7 billion in U.S.-held assets, mostly Treasury bills.

In an interview at the IMF-Bank meeting, Rene Larre, director-general of the Bank for International Settlements at Basle, said that "markets are impressed by the fact that the statistics do not show the tendency to equilibrium" genrally forecast during the sessions here.

Larre said that the market "has been gambling against the dollar, selling short, and this has been rewarded. It seems to feel that it can go on indefinitely." Eventually, Larre said, the big U.S. deficit "will be mended" and the dollar weakness will end.

Perennial Plants Need Care

The group of plants known as herbaceous perennials contains many desirable subjects for beds and borders.

The only true perennials are trees which persist longer than the life span of man. Ther herbaceous perennials, while persisting many years, include very few that do not need attention every two to five years to provide stronger new growth that will bear blooms of maximum size and make an excellent display.

The fibrous-rooted section, as distinct from the fleshy and the tuberous-rooted kinds, develop new growing sections around the perimeter of the original plant, and the older central section becomes more woody each year with no new growths.

Some herbaceous perennials form this woody centre in two years, but most will make a presentable plant for about five years.

By that time the soil has been depleted of humus, its plant food content has been used in making new growths and flowers each year, and it is incresingly difficult for food to pass through the woody fibres and reach the new growing sections on the outer edge.

Fortunately, this does not mean the plants are of no further use. The clump can be lifted from the soil, the younger outer pieces removed from the woody centre with their attached roots, and each piece will make a new plant. This is called the lifting, dividing, and replanting of herbaceous perennials.

The actual time lapse from planting to renewal depends on the type of soil in the garden and the amount of humus added to that soil. A given kind of perennial may exhaust the soil in one garden within two or three years, but do well in another garden for five or six years.

There is no doubt that thorough and careful soil preparation before planting or replanting lessens the frequency of renewal.

Dividing perennials is done in late summer to early fall while the soil is still reasonably dry and warm. With the minimum of watering after replanting, new roots quickly form and reach out for food and moisture. If heavily watered, the soil is cooled and there is no reason for new roots to form and extend because water is readily available, therefore a good root system is not made before the growing season ends.

In some instances it is then possible to break off the new growths with their roots from ther perimeter of the old clump, in others it is necessary to pry the clump apart into smaller pieces.

This is accomplished by thrusting two digging forks back to back into the centre of the clump and forcing the handles apart until the hard centre breaks. Each piece is then subdivided in the same way. When the centre is not too hard or large, two hand forks back to back will do the job.

When this method is used the roots are gently pulled from the tangle without damage, whereas cutting with a spade severs the roots and the divisions take much longer to become reestablished.

The soil is then renewed with compost (not peat moss) and a group of three, five, or seven pieces planted to give the effect of the large clump that was removed. This group will give a fine display of large blooms because each piece is on its own roots and not depending on food from a woody rootstock.

Drapeau 'Didn't Understand'

MONTREAL (CP) — An engineer who worked with a Quebec government watchdog committee overseeing Olympic costs says Mayor Jean Drapeau did not have the experience necessary to direct Games construction.

"He did not have the knowledge of management that was required to direct a construction site like the Olympic Park," Denis Lahaie told a provincial inquiry into the $1.27-billion cost of the 1976 Games Wednesday.

Lahaie, 50, was responsible for overseeing construction of sports facilities for the five-member watchdog committee, which had been created in 1973 after Prime Minister Trudeau demanded and received guarantees against an Olympic deficit.

He said Drapeau's principal adviser seemed to be French architect Roger Taillibert "who also did not have the experience to handle this type of operation in the way things are done here.

"Drapeau and Taillibert talked about 'a critical path,' but I always had the impression that they were talking about something else than what is usually meant when the expression is used," he said.

In a July, 1974, letter to the secretary of the watchdog committee, Lahaie predicted the main games facilities would have to be built "under conditions approaching panic," mainly because of a lack of "dynamic and always-present leadership."

Construction of the 70,000-seat stadium and adjacent swimming pools at the $850.6-million Olympic Park in Montreal's east end did not begin until six weeks after the letter was written.

"There is no person, with a little authority and having an overall view of the operations, who devotes the totality of his time and his energy to the installations," Lahaie said in the letter which outlined his conclusions after 14 months overseeing construction.

The letter, which appears to have a desperate tone to it, also said that "no real form of cost control has ever existed and there will never be any other than the not very realistic method of not authorizing an expenditure when it is found to be too high."

Lahaie's letter, written with only two years to go before the Games opened, said "nothing is ready yet" to begin construction of the most crucial facilities including the stadium and the mast which has not yet been built.

"The evolution of events until now and the structure put into place to direct the work does not allow me to assure you that the appropriate measures are being taken in order to hold the Olympic Games in 1976," his letter concluded.

Lahaie, a former director of construction for the Quebec government's public works department, told the inquiry that he nearly cried in the summer of 1974 when good weather was wasted. Construction did not begin until late August on the stadium and swimming pools.

He also said that there was a lack of cost controls over construction of the cycling velodrome built beside the stadium. By July, 1974, the city still did not have a calendar for completing construction of the 7,200-seat velodrome which was begun in August the year before, Lahaie said.

The lack of normal controls on velodrome construction definitely had an effect on the increase in costs from a 1972 estimate of $7.5 million to the final cost of $74.5 million.

Lahaie also told the inquiry he met with Drapeau about 20 times in an effort to get information for the watchdog committee, whose creation had been agreed to by the city in 1973. The city named two of the committee's members while the province named three.

"We were never refused any information but we never received anything either," he said. Drapeau and other Olympic organizers "always received us well but they were never able to give concrete and precise information."

No Exceptions For Police: PM

HAMILTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today that if the MacDonald royal commission investigating allegations of illegal RCMP activities finds specific cases where the law has been broken, they will be referred to provincial Crown prosecutors for action.

Addressing 1,700 students at the suburban Ancaster high school, Trudeau said the commission still is looking into the allegations but the government does not know what it will report.

Trudeau told the students that it is not always easy to be a policeman and that laws had been changed to clarify the police role in society. Parliamentary action, for example, was taken to make wire tapping legal in certain circumstances, he said.

Canadians are living in a changing society facing more sophisticated ways of committing crimes and police must be able to combat this by any legal means at their disposal, the prime minister said.

Guerrillas Focus Sights On Whites' Farms

By DAVID OTTAWAY
Washington Post

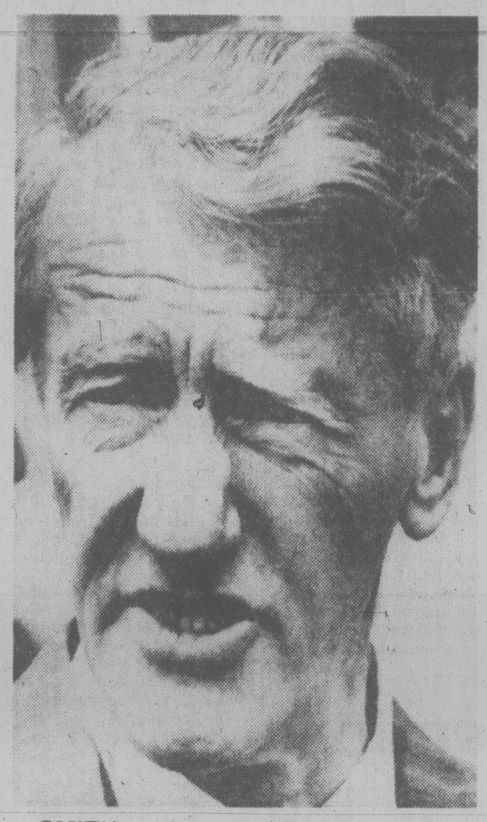

SALISBURY — In a war of growing racial bitterness, black nationalist guerrillas are mounting a major campaign to drive white farmers off their land just as planting time approaches. The attacks are growing despite their possible devastating effects on next year's harvest and food supplies.

More than 200 farms already are officially listed as "vacant" and half a dozen farming districts — several of them within 100 miles of Salisbury — are more or less abandoned because of the constant guerrilla threat.

While this is still a small portion of the 6,600 registered white farms, the number of white farmers sticking it out in war-torn Rhodesia has dropped in the past few years from 6,100 to around 5,800 and is steadily declining.

Guerrillas may well be zeroing in on the rich white farmsteads in preparation for a radical land reform permitting the resettlement of tens of thousands of black peasants now living in the country's poor, overcrowded tribal trust lands.

Rhodesia is one of about a dozen countries in the world producing enough both to feed itself and to export surpluses, thanks to its incredibly productive white farmers settled on the best lands. Until recently, nearly half of the country was reserved for 275,000 whites, leaving 6.7 million blacks to eke out a living on the rest.

SMITH . . .farmers should regroup

There is some indication that control of the land has become linked with the visibly mounting racial bitterness as the war drags on. One of the guerrillas who killed 10 survivors of the air Rhodesia Viscount crash earlier this month was heard to shout, "You (whites) have stolen our land" before opening fire.

One sign of the increasing danger to white farmers is that the army is reportedly suggesting to those living in some particularly "hot" districts that it might be better if they "consolidated" themselves into more easily defendable points. But Prime Minister Ian Smith last week reassured those hanging on in the guerrilla threatened eastern border area that "no farmer will ever be told he's got to go."

Nonetheless, he, too, hinted that it might be better for beleaguered farmers in districts like Melsetter, 50 miles south of Umtali, if they regrouped themselves in order to facilitate the over-stretched army's task of defending them.

The problem for white farmers is not that the countryside is becoming swamped with guerrillas but that they are switching tactics.

No longer are the guerrillas only blasting the well-protected white farmsteads with bazookas and rifle fire in nighttime hit-and-run raids. They have now turned to driving off the farm labor, ordering black workers to return to their tribal trust lands and sometimes burning down their grass-and-pole huts if they refuse.

Since last March, scores of farmers have faced this problem in northern and eastern Rhodesia. Just last week, the local press reported three white farms were burned out in the Shamva district 40 miles northeast of Salisbury. On one, 30 black homes were set afire.

In addition, white farmers living on lonely, dirt side roads face an increasing threat of ambush by guerrillas. Scores have alredy been killed in this manner.

Just how much this new guerrilla campaign is going to affect the planting of crops over the coming two months is still not clear, but government authorities and the local white Rhodesian press are clearly worried about it, compounding the general uncertainty among white farmers over their future here.

"Harvest of Fear" the magazine Illustrated Life Rhodesia called the coming season. "Guerrilla sights are focused on the farmers of Rhodesia," it began. "The insurgents are aiming to drive men off the land both by terrorizing them and by making it impossible for growers to plant and reap their crops."

"Economy Waiting for Vital Crop Decisions" was the recent front-page headline of the Rhodesian Financial Gazette. It said that "most farmers are delaying final planting until the last possible moment while they try to assess the likely course of events over the next year."

Yet, according to various farming association sources, many white farmers are more anxious than ever before "to stick it out" because of the expectation that economic sanctions will be lifted once a black majority government takes over next year. This in turn would assure far higher prices for export crops.

The economic sanctions imposed by the United Nations after whites here declared their independence of Britain in November, 1965 have required farmers to pay high prices for imports while their goods sold way below the going world rate.

"We are aiming at an expansion of our crop of 10 per cent so to be in a position to deal with a sanctions-free market," said Donald Bullock, president of the Rhodesian Tobacco Association in an interview. "Our objective is to regain our position on the world market as a major tobacco growing country."

Bullock said the industry, which has 1,600 growing members and an international reputation, also hopes to increase the crop by 10 per cent every year thereafter.

Such enthusiasm and ambitious plans are hard to match with the host of uncertainties hovering over the future of white farmers in Rhodesia. Yet Bullock, like Denis Norman, president of the Rhodesian National Farmers Union, remains bullish. Sales of seed and herbicides are higher than last year and fertilizer about the same, according to Norman, who also estimates farmers' "planting intentions" to be similar to those of a year ago.

He said 50 per cent of them had already made up their minds to go ahead and plant. But, he added, generally "they want to be in a less vulnerable position" in case they cannot reap the next crops.

As for tobacco growers, who can practically smell the higher prices promised once sanctions are lifted, "unless physically stopped from doing so, they will go ahead," according to Bullock. "If they have got their labor force still, they definitely will. A bloke doesn't give up very easily here," he added.

Hundreds Enlist in Panama To Battle Somoza Regime

PANAMA CITY (AP) — A group of several hundred young men kissed mothers and sweethearts goodbye Wednesday and went off to join the guerrilla war against Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza.

"I know I'm doing the right thing," said 23-year-old Virgilio Molina. "I'm going because I love liberty and I want to help my brothers in Nicaragua."

"He says they need him and he wants to go," she said. "He has wanted to go for a month now. I will stay with my parents while he's gone."

Somoza's national guard last weekend crushed a two-week uprising in which thousands of Nicaraguan civilians joined the Sandinista guerrillas. Somoza is making overtures to some of his political opponents, but not to the guerrillas who have vowed to resume the battle.

The volunteers gathered in front of a church, lining up in crooked files of about 10 men each. Some carried duffle bags and military field jackets. Others had suitcases.

Most of the volunteers appeared to be Panamanian, but several Costa Ricans and Venezuelans and two West Germans were in the group.

Said Klaus Scholzel, 22, of Munster, West Germany: "I heard about the terrible massacres that were being committed in Nicaragua by the national guard and I decided I should come.

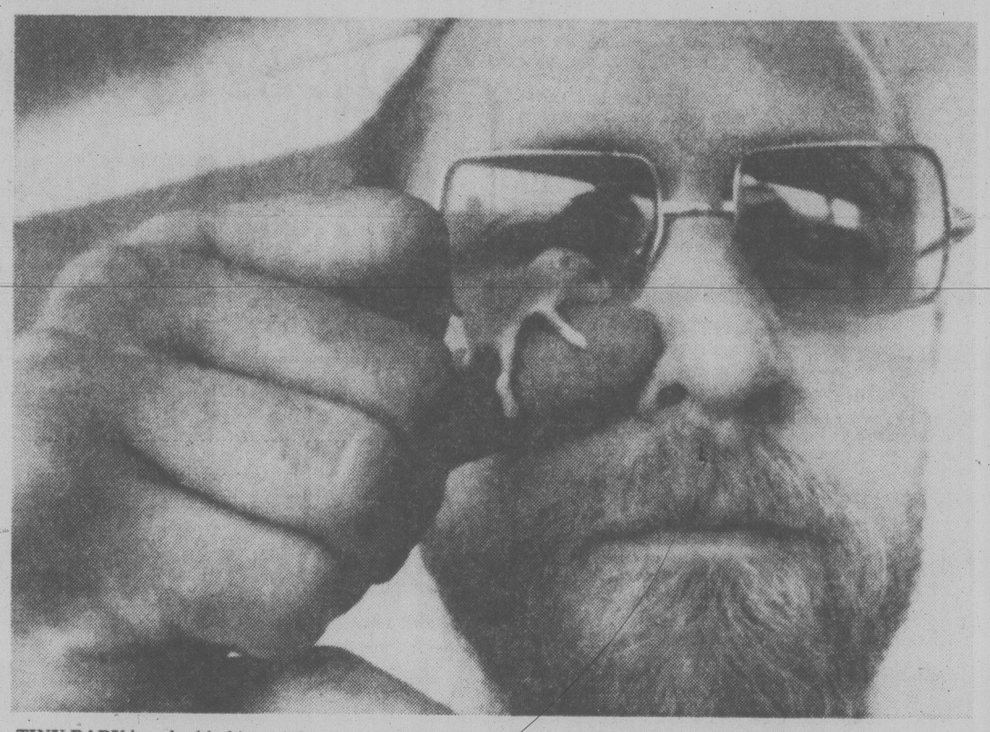

"I really don't know what they plan to do with us or how we are going. We've been told we will be going to Nicaragua and we will be fighting with the Sandinistas."

The volunteer brigade has been organized by Dr. Hugo Spadafora, Panama's vice-minister of health, who quit his post Sept. 15. He said others will be joining them en route and they will be trained by the Sandinistas. But he refused to say where or for how long.

Both the Panamanian and Costa Rican governments are outspoken opponents of Somoza and gave refuge to all who fled from Nicaragua during the uprising. Panama has a major military garrison at David, and the troops there have been alerted to help Costa Rica's civil guard, its only military force, should Somoza's troops invade Costa Rica.

Meanwhile, in Managua, Somoza has freed seven of his leading political opponents in an attempt to ease the pressure on him from the United States and Latin American countries.

But the only legal opposition party threatened to withdraw its members from Congress and the judiciary, saying it does not want to provide any semblance of credibility to Somoza's claims that he is moving Nicaragua toward democratic government.

HASH HAUL

KARACHI (Reuter) — Acting on information provided by the RCMP, police here seized about 1,400 pounds of hashish worth several million dollars on the black market and arrested five people.

Karpov Winning In 27th

BAGUIO, Philippines (Reuter) — Champion Anatoly Karpov tonight sealed his 41st move in what looked like a winning position in the 27th game of the world chess championship.

Challenger Viktor Korchnoi had gained a slight advantage from the opening. But he fell into devastating time trouble and lost a pawn which could prove his downfall when the adjourned game is resumed Friday.

Saudis Put Lid On Price

OLSO (AP) — Saudi Arabia's deputy oil minister said today a five per cent increase in world oil prices at the end of this year would be reasonable and that the global economy could not take a bigger one-shot boost.

Abdul Hadi Taher, who is also head of Saudi Arabia's state-owned Petromin oil company, was here to participate in a three-day seminar on Scandinavian-Arab oil cooperation. Because of its North Sea oil deposits, Norway has become a major petroleum producer.

Ministers of the 13-country Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, who at a June meeting continued a freeze on crude oil prices, will meet again in December to set prices for 1979. They have agreed that prices must be raised.

Taher told Norwegian reporters: "All the talk and speculations here about a major price increase in December are unrealistic because the world economy and the world market cannot absorb a too-high price increase.

"A five-per-cent price increase in December would be reasonable. Such a moderate price increase could be followed up later with more frequent increases in the range of two or three per cent the next few years."

Tayeh Abdul Karim, oil minister of Iraq, acknowledged in an interview with the Oslo newspaper Dagbladet that the Arab countries have different opinions about the size of a price increase.

"However, for the industrialized world the price of oil is not the most important factor," he added. "What is important is the availability of oil. In such a context the situation now is about the same as it was before the price increase in 1973."

New Pope Pleases With Informal Touch

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Within a month after his election, Pope John Paul has transformed the normally sedate papal audiences into informal gatherings, peppered with personal anecdotes and broken with laughter from his guests.

On Wednesday, when the weekly general audience was divided into two groups because of an overflow of pilgrims, the 65-year-old pontiff acted as a master of ceremonies. He called up a Grade 5 Rome student from the crowd and interviewed him in front of the 10,000 persons packing the Vatican's audience hall.

"Do you always want to be in the fifth grade?" the Pope asked Daniele Bravo, lowering the microphone to the boy's height.

"Yes," the youth replied to the laughter of the crowd, "so that I don't have to change teachers."

"Well, you are different from the Pope," the pontiff said. "When I was in 4th grade, I worried about making it to the 5th and when in the 5th, about passing to the 6th."

Such anecdotes, told with frequent timid smiles and in the familar "I" instead of the formal "we" normally used by the popes, and mixed with occasional interviews from the crowd, are emerging as trademarks of John Paul's papacy, endearing him to the public.

By contrast, his predecessor, Paul VI, was noted for his formal and intellectual approach to his general audiences, resorting to humor only on rare occasions.

John Paul's relaxed and informal manner is reminiscent of the style of Pope John XXIII, also noted for his joviality and innovative actions, such as visiting prisoners in Rome's Queen of Heaven jail. Both men share humble origins and service as patriarchs of Venice before ascending to the papacy. Pope John died in 1963.

Vatican watchers say the informal style that began to emerge the moment John Paul appeared on the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica after his election a month ago extends even beyond his general audiences. And they say it is getting his message across.

On Wednesday, the Pope referred to his casual manner, saying: "I try to explain, word by word, the way a parish catechist (religious instructor) would do."

Arcangelo Paglialunga, Vatican writer for the newspaper Il Gazzettino of Venice, said: "He says things, with his optimistic smile, that people are craving for.

"His working-class background helps him with the crowd. In four Sundays, well over 50,000 still came to see him."

"You feel he loves you," said 90-year-old Caterina Pepitone of Athens, Ga., on a pilgrimage to see John Paul.

Croatian Rivalry Victim?

GREENBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — A Yugoslav immigrant who told authorities last month that his life had been threatened by a European terrorist group was gunned down today as he walked from his home, police and the FBI said.

Anton Cikoja, 48, who operated a machine shop in the Bronx, was walking to his car in this suburban Westchester County community when three shots were fired, police said.

Cikoja moved to the United States from Yugoslavia 11 years ago, police said. Law enforcement officials said Cikojas received a letter in August demanding $5,000, signed by a group calling itself the Croatian National Terrorist Army.

No group by that name has been active in this area, but there have been a number of violent incidents involving persons demanding independence for Croatia, one of six republics in Yugoslavia.

SUB HEADING FOR MEXICO

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — The Auguste Piccard — the Canadian-owned submarine with a sail — finally is headed for the Gulf of Mexico where it will probe the floor for suspected reservoirs of oil.

The 27.9-metre vessel spent an unscheduled 27-day stay here while the captain and owners, Horton Maritime Explorations Ltd. of Vancouver, untangled government red tape.

A contract with several United States oil companies required that the Piccard leave Vancouver by the end of August, so the sub was allowed to travel as far as Bellingham. Government approval finally was handed down earlier this week, and the sub weighed anchor Tuesday.

The sub, the first ever fitted to provide geophysical surveys, was painted international orange during its stay here.

The trip to Mobile, Ala., will take more than three months. The sail was added to the vessel because the Picard makes only five knots under its own power and the sail is expected to boost that to six knots.

The sub is expected to make intermediate stops in San Francisco and San Diego on the West Coast before heading for the Panama Canal.

'79 Stability Predicted

MONTREAL (CP) — There should be no dramatic changes in Canada's economy for 1979, speakers told a meeting of the Conference Board in Canada today.

Lawrence Murphy, the board's chief economist, said 1979 may provide the foundation for economic expansion that "could begin" in 1980.

The board, a non-profit, private organization which does economic and management research and forecasting, predicts a real growth in the gross national product of 3.7 per cent for 1979.

Murphy told about 400 representatives from labor, business and government that he thought the Canadian dollar would "get a bit weaker before it gets strong."

"We could be suffering greater deficits in the current account of the balance of payments which would put some pressure downward on the dollar," he said.

Economic forecasts for 1979 issued so far all call for sustained growth only if there is no recession in the United States.

Ms. Slater said economic growth in the U.S. is expected to continue throughout 1979 and into the foreseeable future.

"This growth may at times be a bit more sluggish than we would like," she added. 'Undesirably high rates of inflation and unemployment may persist, buf I see no recession on the horizon."

The chief general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada agreed that economic growth next year will be modest, but said such growth means capital requirements will be "substantially greater than they are now."

Robert Utting said the required capital will be available "if, as we have begun to do, we put our house in order."

Restoring the perception of Canada as a safe and profitable economy in which to invest is the prime condition for attracting capital, Utting said.

Pay Quickly And Save . . .

REGINA (CP) — City council changed the fine schedule making it an $8 offence to walk on the left side of a crosswalk unless overtaking another walker.

However, for those who pay up quickly, there is a $5 rebate.

If the fine is paid within 10 days of receiving it, an $8 fine would be $3; a $10 fine would be $5; and a $15 fine would be $10.

For those who admit their guilt quickly, it will cost $3 to ride a bicycle or motorcycle with less than one hand on the handlebars, chaining a bike to any tree, post or building not designated for that purpose, or carrying an extra person on a bicycle.

Assistant city manager Warren Petersmeyer told council that the cost of having a summons delivered is $12 per ticket, which does not include administrative costs. Using the rebate, the city hopes law-breakers will pay their fines promptly and it will not be necessary to issue as many summons.

Petersmeyer said that because so many persons let fines go until the summons stage, the police chief has told officers not to issue as many tickets because the administration time and cost is simply not worth it.

Papa May Be Saved

Federal Environment Minister Len Marchand said Wednesday Ottawa is taking a second look at a decision to close down weather station Papa, 320 kilometres off the B.C. coast.

Government spokesmen said earlier the proposed shut down, part of the federal spending cutback, would result in a saving of $4 million.

Marchand, who was in Victoria for a one-day forest conference, said he wants to find out if new technology will provide enough weather information without the two weather ships used at the station.

Marchand also said there is a desperate need for intensive reforestation in Canada.

DOWNTOWN TIME-SAVER

Passenger Ferry Push

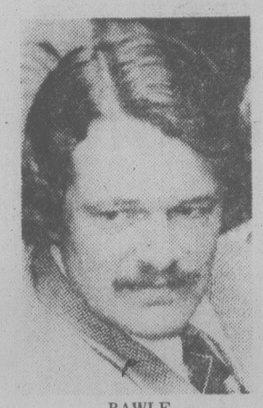

The B.C. Ferry Corp. wants a privately operated, passenger-only ferry service between downtown Vancouver and Victoria and Nanaimo.

Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf, the minister in charge of ferries, said Wednesday such a service would cut the existing ferry travel time.

He said the run to Nanaimo and Swartz Bay would be convenient for both Vancouver Islanders and visitors.

"It would easily lend itself to a reservation system as well," Bawlf added.

The minister said although the B.C. Ferry fleet is heavily subsidized, he's confident a passenger-only service would be profitable enough to attract private enterprise.

BAWLF

The key to the profitability would be the short travel time of a fast harbor-to-harbor ferry.

Bawlf said a passenger ferry could run from downtown Vancouver to downtown Nanaimo in about an hour and a similar run to Swartz Bay would take about an hour and 20 minutes.

To date there have been no formal approaches made to the crown corporation although several B.C. firms have indicated interest in building or operating ferries of this type, Bawlf said.

"From what I can see of the economics, the cost to the user would be far less than the airplane and not too different from the present business ferry combination, but with a tremendous saving of time."

Asked if a profitable passenger ferry might necessitate even higher subsidies for the B.C. Ferries fleet, the minister said a private system would complement rather than compete with the existing service.

As it stands now, 93 per cent of visitors to Vancouver Island travel on the B.C. Ferries system.

"Any alternative — any added service — would be of benefit to Vancouver Island," he said.

Bawlf said he cannot say if the government would be prepared to offer incentives for this type of service.

He also said the conventional car-ferry system will have to expand.

Bawlf said during the first 17 years 100 million people were carried across the Strait of Georgia on the ferries.

"But we've reached the point now where last month alone we carried more than a million people and over the next eight years we'll carry another 100 million."

Bawlf's ministry is currently conducting a study outlining alternative methods of expanding the service.

Dollar Still On Skids

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian dollar hit yet another 45-year-low on international money markets in early trading today, dropping to 84.60 U.S. cents from Wednesday's close of 84.71 cents.

Traders said there were "no new developments" to explain the decline.

However, they said Finance Minister Jean Chretien's statement Wednesday that the government will not seek help from the International Monetary Fund (IMF) to support the dollar is continuing to have a negative effect on the market.

Chretien said he has been advised the Canadian dollar is undervalued and there is no need to prop it up through exchange controls or other means, so the government will let the international money market set the dollar value.

One foreign exchange dealer said he thought commercial demand for the dollar should help boost the currency back toward the 85 U.S. cents level later today.

On Wednesday, the dollar climbed as high as 85.09 U.S. cents after rumors circulated of a major sale of Alberta natural gas to the United States.

Chlorine Carriers 'Serious' Threat

VANCOUVER (CP) — Railway cars carrying pressurized chlorine liquid from the Hooker Chemicals Ltd. plant in North Vancouver are a serious threat to all British Columbians, a report by an environmental consulting firm says.

The report, by Beak Consultants of Vancouver, says the likelihood exists of a major rail-car accident every 25 years "causing the release of 16 tons of chlorine in a puff followed by a continuous release of 1,000 pounds per minute at some point in B.C."

A 4.5-hectolitre (100-gallon) canister, owned by Hooker, fell from a truck and ruptured on a city street Monday, spewing deadly chlorine gas into a residential-industrial area. At least 78 persons were treated after inhaling the gas and 200 others were evacuated from a 25-block area surrounding the accident.

Two sisters, treated in hospital Monday for exposure to chlorine and released, have been readmitted. Janice Hiley, 12, has suspicious spots on her lung and Cindy Hiley, 15, has toxic pneumonitis, said Teresa Hiley, the girls' mother.

Dr. David Bates, a respiratory specialist at the University of B.C. medical school, said, however, there is little danger of permanent lung damage to those stricken by the fumes.

He said it normally takes three or four days to recover from exposure to chlorine.

Lawyers say it will take thousands of dollars and possibly years of legal argument to untangle the mesh of insurance problems created by the accident.

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. (ICBC) is responsible for damage or injury claims arising from the accident and company spokesmen said Wednesday that ICBC has never before had to deal with such a large-scale accident.

"It's going to be a bloody nightmare, I can assure you," said one ICBC em-

FACULTY BUCKS AMERICAN BOSS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Malaspina College faculty association wants the college council to re-open its search for a Canadian president at the Nanaimo institution, faculty association president Ellis Lindsay said today.

Lindsay said earlier in a telephone interview from Nanaimo that American Jack Nutt, president of Highland Community College in Highland, Kansas, will be the new Malaspina president.

Lindsay said a large number of Canadians applied but the selection committee did not consider any of them qualified.

However, Lindsay said the committee should have determined earlier which Canadians would be qualified and then asked those people to apply for the position.

Nutt, 40, said in a telephone interview Wednesday that any nationalism debate that might surround his arrival "wouldn't be an attractive part of the move."

"But, I hope that I'll be accepted as Jack Nutt, educator, and not known as Jack Nutt, that Yankee," he said.

Nutt has 12 years experience as a community college administrator, and has a PhD in education from Washington State University.

He said he hopes that immigration clearance will allow him to assume his post in Janaury in time for the second semester.

Knesset Ratifies Camp David Pact

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government began preparations today for peace negotiations with Egypt, its largest Arab foe, after the Israeli parliament voted by an overwhelming margin to ratify the Camp David accords and withdraw all Jewish settlers from the Sinai peninsula if Egypt makes peace.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin said negotiations could start as early as next week on the peace treaty, which he and President Anwar Sadat pledged at Camp David to complete within three months.

Egypt's acting foreign minister, Butros Ghali, said in Cairo that Israeli and Egyptian delegations will meet in Ismailia, on the Suez canal. An advance Israeli party was going to Cairo today to re-establish the direct links Egyptian President Anwar Sadat severed in July.

Ghali, speaking with reporters, lauded the Knesset decision as "proof of a positive change in Israeli public opinion because they now realize that occupying other countries' lands cannot bring peace."

He also urged other Arab countries to reconsider their refusal to negotiate with Israel, so that "we can achieve a comprehensive peace in the region."

The 120 members of the Knesset, Israel's one-house parliament, put peace with Egypt in exchange for the Sinai settlements to a vote early today following more than 17 hours of emotional debate. The vote of 84-19 with 17 abstentions showed wide acceptance for the two frameworks for peace drafted at Camp David and the painful settlement resolution demanded as a condition for further negotiations by Sadat.

Winding up the debate, Begin said a peace treaty between Israel and Egypt would be "the great turning point in the history of the Middle East."

"The circle of wars would be closed for five years, perhaps 10 years, perhaps 50," he said. "Syria can't attack us because it knows that would be suicide. Jordan can't attack because the Hashemite king (Hussein) would lose his crown."

Carter Poised On Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration readied plans today to take emergency action to end a three-day rail strike as union and industry negotiators met past a midday government deadline without settling their dispute.

Sources close to the talks said Labor Secretary Ray Marshall was making a final attempt to mediate the dispute as aides prepared to announce that the two sides had failed to negotiate an end to the strike.

A labor department spokesman said Marshall was in contact with the White House, where Carter was expected to invoke his emergency powers under the National Railway Labor Act to get the trains moving again.

The president could ask Congress to end the strike through emergency legislation, but congressional sources said legislative leaders were told Carter would not take that route at this time.

South Africa Gets a Hawk

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Pieter Willem Botha, the hawkish minister of defence, became South Africa's eighth prime minister today, promising to maintain law and order but also announcing a quest to improve relations with the country's black majority.

Botha, 62, nicknamed "Pete the Weapon" for his tough military views, emerged the winner to succeed outgoing Prime Minister John Vorster, 63 and ill, after a three-hour caucus of the ruling National Party's 172 deputies and senators.

Botha, no relation to the foreign minister, stepped out on the front steps of the Parliament building to the cheers of more than 1,000 spectators to make his first official speech as prime minister.

"We must set ourselves certain goals," the balding, bespectacled Botha told the crowd and the country, which listened on radio.

"First, the maintenance and development of orderly government.

"Secondly, at all times to uphold honest public administration and effective government.

"Thirdly, to apply a positive policy to improve the relations between the different population communities, taking into account the inalienable right of self determination of all peoples.

"Fourthly, the application of a positive policy to build friendly relations with neighboring states on the basis of non-interference in each other's internal affairs.

"Furthermore, more economic development through dedication in our work ane through economic patriotism.

"And in the sixth instance, the determined maintenance of law and order through an effective police force and a well-balanced defence force to guard the integrity of our borders."

Botha, defence minister for 12 years, is a relative moderate on race relations, South Africa's crucial issue, but he is unlikely to modify the National Party' fundamental policy of apartheid, or separate development of the races. That is a policy that rejects giving the country's blacks any political or property rights outside their tribal homelands. There are four million whites in South Africa and 18 million non-whites.

TWO-PER-PERSON DOG LIMIT EYED

TORONTO (CP) — A city council committee passed a draft bylaw Wednesday that would limit to two the number of dogs a person may keep in Toronto.

The bylaw will be presented for approval to the last regular city council meeting, Oct. 10, before municipal elections in November.

Under the bylaw, pet owners would be limited to keeping two dogs per person in each household. A family of four, for example, would be allowed to have a maximum of eight dogs.

Dog owners would also have to pay $15 instead of $10 to purchase a dog licence for a second dog.

The committee was told city council might seek provincial legislation enabling it eventually to restrict the total number of dogs per household, instead of just per person.

B.C. Exports Jump by 17%

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's exports of produced or processed goods totalled $3.5 billion for the first six months of 1978, up 17.7 per cent from the first half of 1977, the Employers' Council of B.C. said Wednesday.

The national average increase is 15 per cent.

Dick Bryan, the council's economic research director, said the decline in value of the Canadian dollar has allowed exports to continue to grow at healthy rates despite a world-wide slowdown.

"Our growth rate for the first half compared with a growth rate of 22.9 per cent for the same period of 1977, and 18.5 per cent in the first six months of 1976," he said.

Lumber sales to the United States in the first half were up 33.4 per cent compared with the first half of 1977, reflecting a stronger United States housing market.

Pulp exports, while unchanged in value, increased 17.2 per cent in volume.

The dollar value of B.C.'s copper exports increased by 2.6 per cent in the first half, while volume increased by 6.1 per cent.

Coal exports increased 12 per cent, both in value and volume.

"We don't expect a strong pick-up in coal demand in the near future," Bryan said.

Uproar over 30% Pay Hikes

DELTA (CP) — A strike-ending settlement at Island Cement Co. that gives 80 workers a wage increase of 30 per cent over two years triggered an anguished reaction Wednesday from the Employers Council of British Columbia.

Council vice-president Jim Clifford said high settlements such as this led the country into three years of anti-inflation controls starting in 1975.

"It scares the hell out of me," he said.

The settlement includes a $1.40 hourly wage increase over two years and a cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) clause providing one cent for each three-tenths rise in the consumer price index starting in August, 1979.

The employees are represented by the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International Union, Local 277.

Clifford said that although most COLAs are restricted in some way, the Inland COLA clause is like those of the early 1970s which contributed to large settlements and the need for wage controls.

Union president Bruno Schachel said part of the reason for the high settlement was because the 55 employees had heavy financial losses when they had to move to the Vancouver area from Bamberton on Vancouver Island, where the company was previously located.

In addition, he said, "we have a cement plant here that produces twice as much as the one it replaced with half the fuel and half the manpower."

Schachel said that because the COLA clause does not come into affect until next August, the company added an extra 45 cents an hour in the first year, bringing the increase to 90 cents effective Nov. 1.

Base rate at Inland will be $8.25 an hour and the rate for tradesmen and control room operators, the classification which includes at least half the employees, will be $10.25.

Saanich council by a close vote has given the go-ahead to a multi-million dollar housing development project by Broadmead Farms Ltd. in the Minnie Mountain Area.

Capital Region Safety Council manager Ken Wyatt is convinced children need a lot more education before they are sent out into today's "traffic jungle"

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Traffic safety education in Canada generally — and in B.C. particularly — is a tragic flop, says the manager of the Capital Region Safety Council.

Ken Wyatt said in an interview the need for traffic education in the province is urgent.

"B.C. has a tremendous network of roads and terrific traffic problems. Yet we're doing very little in education of people in traffic safety."

Federally, he says politicians wear blinkers when it comes to traffic safety.

"In Canada the federal government doesn't provide safety funds to provinces in contrast to the United States where the federal government takes a big part in traffic safety."

Wyatt says about one of every three people will be involved in an accident yet little is done to educate young people in traffic safety.

"We send children to school for 12 years yet we don't provide education so they can go out in our traffic jungle," he said.

What traffic education exists is largely provided by volunteers.

Wyatt has spent all his working life in the field of transportation, starting with 25 years in the Canadian Army. Before coming to Victoria he spent four years in Winnipeg in the education section of Manitoba's motor-vehicle branch.

Wyatt said he and others involved in traffic safety education are like "preachers of the gospel, trying to shake people out of their apathy, to get them off their butts and do something."

Psychologists, he said, claim people have learned half what they will ever learn by the time they are 12.

Yet less than half of the elementary schools in the Capital Regional District avail themselves of the training provided at the Tom Thumb Safety Village in Colwood.

"I don't believe that the schools which do not take part in the program (which also provides bicycle safety education) don't believe in safety but rather that they suffer from the malaise of apathy," he said.

While people in general, including politicians, are apathetic, Wyatt said large companies employing professional drivers are well aware of the need for defensive driving training.

He mentioned the Altrans Express trucking firm which every year provides a travelling classroom in which drivers receive instruction between Vancouver and Montreal.

For three years, Wyatt said, B.C. Hydro has provided defensive driving education for its drivers. In each of those years 62 per cent less of Hydro drivers were involved in accidents.

"Traffic education can be — and should be — cost effective," said Wyatt.

He said the eight hours of instruction and the $15 it costs to take the CRSC's defensive driving course could save drivers that amount many times over and perhaps even their lives.

He wants high school students prepared in traffic safety before they can take to the road in their own cars. He said this should include 25 hours of classroom theory, eight hours behind the wheel and at least eight hours of observing somebody else driving.

While federal, provincial and municipal governments enact unpopular enforcement legislation they fail to see traffic safety education as effective preventive medicine, Wyatt said.

"The total benefits accrued would be a reduced demand on medical staff and hospital facilities," he said.

Chamber Poised For Drive

Victoria Chamber of Commerce plans an all-out campaign to get Saanich residents to vote in favor of industrial development in the Nov. 18 referendum.

And the chamber is determined not to blow the job this time.

Chamber president John Ansell concedes the chamber's effort at two Saanich public hearings on the issue was half-hearted at best.

"But now we will stand up and be counted."

The chamber is 100 per cent behind Royal Oak as a site for industrial development, he said.

"Many people think of an industrial site as smokestacks and wall-to-wall buildings," he said.

But in fact the industrial site planned for Royal Oak would have a park-like atmosphere with a strong emphasis on landscaping.

Developers Win Minnie Mt. Fight

Couvelier's Vote Sinks Protests From Residents

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The development firm Broadmead Farms Ltd. successfully scaled the heights of Minnie Mountain early today, winning Saanich council approval to proceed with a multi-million-dollar housing development on its prominent 72-acre property at Ten Mile Point.

Council's 5-4 decision, with Mayor Mel Couvelier casting the deciding vote, came at the end of a marathon 5½-hour public hearing attended by nearly 500 residents.

Most were crammed into the Cadboro Bay United Church gymnasium, but latecomers had to content themselves with overflow accommodation and televised coverage in the nearby church building.

The occasion marked the first time this year that Saanich council has rejected majority neighborhood opposition — in this case based largely on dislike of multiple-family accommodation — to approve a major development proposal.

Although the 40 or so residents who addressed council were divided fairly evenly between supporters and opponents, the latter group was clearly in the majority among the audience as a whole.

* * *

Boss and numerous other speakers urged council to retain the present single-family zoning on the Minnie Mountain property.

They claimed that Broadmead's plan to include 62 townhouses and 71 condominium apartments in its 210-unit project would inject a clashing urban density and style of living into an area they cherish for its tranquil, village-like atmosphere and charm.

Many also voiced the fear that the development, if approved, would open the door to other projects of similar or higher densities in the years ahead.

In the sombre hyperbole of one resident, semi-rural tree-lined avenues such as Arbutus and Queenswood might some day become "Apartment Alley" and "Townhouse Tour" respectively.

Residents supporting the Broadmead proposal cited the developer's tasteful subdivision in the Royal Oak area, and said a similar development at Minnie Mountain would enhance the site itself and the surrounding area.

Some expressed concern that if the present plan is rejected the firm might sell the property to a less sensitive developer who would cover the entire site with single-family homes.

* * *

They argued that a mixed-density style of development is the best use because it allows the developer to set aside more land for open space and general recreational use than would be the case under a single-family approach.

"I get the feeling we may ask for too much and end up with something we will like a lot less than this particular plan," said one resident.

Broadmead architect Dick Mann pointed out that the higher-density part of the project generating all the controversy amounted to no more than four per cent of the total site area, while in return the developer was providing nearly 18 acres or 24 per cent as open space.

He described it as a fair trade-off for both groups.

It was nearly midnight before all the residents had their say and the council discussion began.

With each alderman's contribution, following a general pattern of pro-development and anti-development factions seen on other occasions, a certain tension developed as it became obvious that the mayor would again find himself in a tie-breaker role.

In favor of the Broadmead proposal were Aldermen David Paterson, Fred Severson, Ian Cass and Geoff Vantreight. Opposed were Aldermen Howard Sturrock, Bob Cameron, John Mika and Mary Casilio.

Couvelier dismissed what he said were the two main fears of the opponents — that the Broadmead proposal would set a precedent in Cadboro Bay and that present residents' property values would be depreciated.

He denied that any zoning decision taken by council creates the so-called domino effect, and said there was no way this council could predict the attitudes of future councils or the desires of property owners.

But the mayor indicated that his support of the development was based largely on financial considerations. (Broadmead estimates the municipality will receive tax revenue of at least $175,000 annually from its Minnie Mountain development).

Couvelier said a recent study by the provincial ministry of housing showed clearly that municipalities bear a net cost burden on single-family detached residential areas, while enjoying a net gain from apartments, commercial development and the like.

He agreed with Paterson that rejecting the Broadmead proposal because it contained apartments would be tantamount to asking residents of the Gorge, Tillicum and other Saanich neighborhoods to subsidize their counterparts in Cadboro Bay.

Mika retorted that such reasoning assured Couvelier's support for any subsequent apartment proposal that comes before council.

"You have already given your decision that you will be voting in favor of them," he added. To which Cass gave a one-word reply: "Nonsense."

Broadmead general manager Gordon Rolston said following the hearing that site development will start in about a year, but that it will probably take seven to 10 years to complete all phases of the project.

Single-family building sites in the luxury subdivision will sell for about $55,000. Other approximate price tags will be $120,000 on condominium apartments, $145,000 on townhouse units and $165,000 on single-family detached homes.

Ask the Times

Q. During the thunder and lightning storm we had recently I wondered if anyone could be hit by lightning and survive? B.I.

A. Yes. In fact, a park ranger in Virginia named Roy Sullivan holds the world's record for being hit the most times by lightning — six. He was hit in 1942 and lost a big toenail, in July 1969 he lost his eyebrows, in July 1970 his left shoulder was seared, on April 16, 1972, his hair was set afire, on Aug. 7, 1973, his new hair was set afire and his legs seared, and on June 5, 1976, his ankle was injured.

The matter was raised by Ald. John Mika about 90 minutes after the hearing had started.

He noted that associate municipal solicitor Chris Nation — charged with advising Saanich on the draft land-use contract — and Ald. David Paterson are both employed by the legal firm of Pearlman and Lindholm, which also acts on behalf of the company, R & M Construction.

Mika said in view of the fact that Broadmead general manager Gordon Rolston is also a principal in R & M Construction, he wondered if the circumstances constituted a conflict of interest.

After briefly caucusing with other council members and officials, Mayor Mel Couvelier ruled that Mika's point did not affect the legality of the hearing, which then could continue.

At the end of the long hearing Mika requested a more precise ruling. He said Nation had indicated that his own position was not compromised, but that still left Paterson's position unclear.

Asked to comment, Nation said he could not express an opinion because he did not know the extent of any possible relationship between the alderman and the developer.

Have They Ever Negotiated an Agreement!

Contractors and Victoria contruction unions have negotiated an agreement that has everybody smiling.

It is a labor-management campaign to raise funds for the United Way.

"This project is an example of the way management and labor can work together for the benefit of the whole community," Construction Association of Victoria president Dave Weller said.

"This is a healthy development and we hope it will provide the base for the kind of relationship we want in this industry."

A total of 23 local agencies will be helped by this year's Greater Victoria United Way campaign, which has a goal this year of $926,000, up nine per cent from last year.

The campaign, co-sponsored by Vancouver Island Construction Trades Council, will reach a climax on Oct. 4, Construction Day.

Teams will visit all major construction sites on that date and collect pledge cards authorizing payroll deductions.

Forms will have been mailed out in advance but teams will make a follow-up call on Oct. 4 because it is too easy to lose cards or forget about them, Weller said.

The target is to collect one hour's pay from everyone in the construction industry.

While management and labor representatives will travel as a team, the construction association will deal mainly with contractors while the union representatives solicit funds from their own members.

"But we will be working together and Oct. 4 will be the most important day of our campaign."

United Way

Crossett said there are about 500 union construction workers employed in the Victoria area at the moment and a reasonable target for the campaign would be $5,000.

"In fact we hope to raise much more than that. Union people are donating to good causes all year long but the United Way is something special. We hope to get a good response when we make our rounds."

All donations will be by payroll deduction, with the co-operation of the employers.

Pledge cards are being distributed in advance but team members will carry spare ones with them when they visit construction sites on Oct. 4, just in case the mailed ones have gone astray or have been discarded.

The Costruction Day visits will involve all major construction products in the district. On small projects the Construction Association of Victoria will make a direct approach to the contractor to save time.

Pay-Price Spiral Could Be Costly

TORONTO (CP) — A return to wage-and-price controls or a move toward policies that would cause a massive increase in unemployment could be in the offing if wage increases start spiralling again, a chief official of the new federal monitoring agency has warned.

Robert Douglas, executive-director of the Centre for the Study of Inflation and Productivity, said in a speech to the National Dairy Council of Canada that there is a danger some groups will try to make up for recent food price increases by demanding large pay raises.

"If wage increases start to rise again, we could break out into another wage and price spiral that would threaten all the gains we have made in restoring our international competitiveness," Douglas said.

"Such a wage-and-price spiral would hurt the dollar badly and would pose some difficult policy choices for the government—either a return to controls or a massive increase in unemployment as restrictive monetary and fiscal policies squeeze the real growth out of the economy.

"These are not very palatable choices and it makes our behavior over the next few months all that much more crucial," Douglas said.

Wage-and-price controls, with a pay-increase limit of six per cent this year, are being gradually eliminated. At the same time, devaluation of the dollar—which closed below 85 cents U.S. Tuesday—has made Canadian industry more competitive with foreign producers.

Douglas noted that recently food prices have been rising at an annual rate of 17 per cent. But economists at the centre, which was set up to monitor and report on wage and price trends as the controls are removed, expect food prices to level off for the rest of the year.

But there was a danger that with food prices rising faster than wages, some groups would become "impatient" and not wait for the anticipated moderation, he added.

Douglas said the centre, with a staff of 75 compared with the Anti-Inflation Board's 900, will not set any numerical guides for wage and price increases and has no power to regulate or roll back.

"The centre does not have the resources, the mandate or the intention to watch everything that goes on in the economy; we must be selective."

BEAR DEATH SUIT FILED

REGINA (CP) — An examination into the bear-mauling death of a five-year-old city girl last year in Waterton Lakes National Park in southwestern Alberta will be held here Nov. 2-3.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Muser of Regina are suing the federal government for the death of their daughter Allison July 1, 1977 near Cameron Creek in the park. The parents claim the federal parks branch was negligent in not warning visitors about the dangers of bears.

Barry Collins, defence lawyer for the department of justice, said the examination will allow both parties to cross examine each other and "sort out the facts."

New Bush Plane Flight-Tested

EDMONTON (CP) — The Cox Turbo Otter, considered by some as an airplane which will revolutionize bush flying, has taken its first test flight at Canadian Forces Base Nameo.

The plane is a $1.4-million conversion of a standard single-engine DeHavilland Otter powered by a small, light Pratt and Whitney PT6A-27 turbine engine instead of the obsolete Pratt and Whitney piston engine.

The conversion, masterminded by bush pilot Ray Cox and aeronautical engineer Aimo Pitkanen, is designed to reduce maintenance and permit starts in temperatures as low as -40 degrees Celsius.

It also will permit the Otter to take off on a 50-metre runway, instead of the standard Otter's 300-metre runway.

"Now I know how the Wright brothers felt on their first test flight," said Cox as he and some 200 others watched the plane go through its paces Tuesday.

The Turbo Otter is expected to be certified by the federal ministry of transport in January, when Cox's 20-man operation will begin converting standard Otters to turbine power. Cost will be about $350,000 a plane.

Cox, who financed his prototype with a $350,000 loan from the Alberta government and from family sources, said request for conversions have come from as far away as Africa and South America.

'Flaws' Noted In Bank Bill

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some of the proposals in the new banking legislation being considered by Parliament contain "fundamental flaws", said the chairman of the Bank Act revision committee of the Canadian Bankers' Association Tuesday.

Robert MacIntosh said in an address to a service club that the idea of expanding the membership of the Canadian Payments Association to include credit unions and trust companies would mean that the federal government had "agreed to concede significant power over the payments system to the provinces."

Under the current system, chartered banks are entrusted with the operation of the payment system by which funds are transferred from one person or business to another.

MacIntosh said the proposal would lead to different controls and inspection procedures by member companies and it also raises questions about the ability of some provincial bodies to meet their obligations.

It may be that the federal government will not require provincial governments to provide proof that the inspection and control over provincial institutions is the same as its own control over banks, said MacIntosh.

"Just wait until someday you are holding a cheque paid to you by a debtor and drawn on a financial institution which has regrettably failed overnight," he said.

MacIntosh said bankers are also concerned revisions relating to foreign banks. He said foreign banks now account for at least $3 billion in commercial credit in Canada but they operate under provincial legislation and entirely outside federal control.

"This creates the ridiculous situation that foreign bank subsidiaries can perform some functions in Canada which Canadian banks cannot," he said.

"All we are asking is that the foreign banks be brought under the same sort of legal constraints and requirements we have ourselves, and the intent of the new Bank Act revision is to do this," he said.

Gentle & Poetic...

..In styling, this fine, smooth, almost silky hair, was layered in a series of swooping curves and waves that break from a high, almost central parting. Blending shears and an ultra sharp razor were the tools used. It was finished by conditioning and blow-drying.

Puppets Star

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — Herbie Horse, Freddie Frog and Farmer John all appreciate the work of Suzie Sun and Willie Wind although Farmer John is slow in catching on. What happened during a 20-minute show presented to local children recently, was that Farmer John came under the influence of Mr. Meanie Energy. The crazy names and lesson taught to the children by the puppet show—don't waste energy.
